Rockefeller Nominee For Vice President

Hopes Ford Will Run For President In '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today proposed former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, one of the richest men in the world, as the nation's next vice president.

Ford announced his decision on the 11th day of his presidency during a relaxed and informal televised and broadcast ceremony from the Oval Office in the White House.

The nomination of Rockefeller, 66, will go to Congress for confirmation by majority vote by both houses — which congressional leaders said could be completed before the November elections.

Rockefeller said he hoped Ford would run for president in 1976, and said he would be "delighted" to campaign this fall for Republican congressional candidates.

But the nominee said it was too early to make any decisions on his own political plans two years hence.

Minutes after being nominated by Ford for the No. 2 spot, Rockefeller told reporters he expected to place his vast financial holdings in a blind trust, and said he would reveal his income tax returns and other financial statements to Congress if asked during his confirmation hearings.

Rockefeller, who avidly but unsuccessfuly sought the presidency three times only to be rebuffed by his party, said he was now in a position of "relaxed desire to serve my country."

"The role of the vice president totally depends on the President," said the former New York governor. "If he wants to use him, wonderful. If he doesn't that's fine."

In announcing his decision, Ford called Rockefeller "a good partner for me and I think a good partner for the country and the world."

Two of the four most recent vice presidents ascended to the presidency upon the death or resignation of their predecessor —Ford when President Nixon resigned Aug. 9 and Lyndon B. Johnson when President Kennedy was assassinated in 1963.

Rockefeller was elected four times governor of New York and resigned last year after 15 years in that position to head a self-created Commission on Critical Choices for America.

Before Nixon resigned and Ford took over, political Washington viewed the commission as a springboard for another Rockefeller race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's wife did not accompany him to the White House. He explained she had been at the beach yesterday and simply did not have time to get "presentable."

His wife, the former Margaretta Fitler Murphy, married him in 1963 after she divorced her husband and Rockefeller divorced his wife of 32 years.

The initial reaction from Republicans in Congress to Rockefeller's selection was favorable. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a conservative, said Rockefeller "was not one of those I recommended but he is a distinguished American." Thurmond said he expected to support the nomination.

A liberal Republican, Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, who also harbored presidential ambitions, said a Ford-Rockefeller team in 1976 would be an "absolutely winning ticket."

In political ideological terms, Rockefeller is believed to be somewhat to the left of Ford even though he himself became more conservative in his last years as governor of New York.

When he sought the GOP presidential nomination in 1964, he was booed at the national convention by delegates who nominated Barry M. Goldwater, then and now a staunch conservative. Rockefeller was seen then as the embodiment of the Eastern, internationalist wing of the party.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the politically astute Republican Senate whip, said he was surprised at how many conservative Republicans had put Rockefeller on the list of candidates they had submitted to Ford. He said Rockefeller was not their first choice, but was frequently their second or third choice.

"I believe he is widely accepted and highly regarded," Griffin said.

The initial reaction from

Hamilton Land Disposal Voted

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A House Armed Services subcommittee today approved an Air Force proposal to dispose of 273 acres of land at Hamilton Air Force Base, the first and most important step toward possible eventual civilian use of the property.

Approval by the parent committee is almost automatic, officials said, and no action by the House itself is required.

Once the land is declared excess to the needs of the Department of Defense, it can be disposed of by the General Sur-

92-Cent Tax Rate Set By San Rafael Council

The San Rafael City Council last night set a tax rate of 92 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, down seven cents from last fiscal year's 99-cent rate. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 5.)

The council noted that residents of the former Terra Linda Community Services District are exempted form the 1971 sewer bond tax and will pay only 88 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The city administration predicted in June that an $8 million budget for 1974-75 would require a 96.5-cent tax rate, but last night reported the city's assessed valuation is higher than anticipated.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser said that last fiscal year's assessed valuation of $193 million has been boosted to $225 million. Bielser also said that the city expects higher interest income earnings this fiscal year.

The city tax rate breakdown is: general fund, 65 cents; library fund, 12 cents; employees' retirement fund, 10 cents; sewer bonds, four cents; payment of open space bond principal and interest, one cent.

Bielser said the city is able to reduce the tax rate while maintaining a reserve fund of $300,000.

Ross Taxes Slashed By Nine Cents

Ross town councilmen last night approved a 1974-75 tax rate of $1.66 per $100 assessed valuation, a nine-cent drop from the 1973-74 rate.

The tax rate will raise sufficient revenue to finance the $407,780 budget adopted earlier this month, according to Virginia Stott, town clerk.

Councilmen were able to lower the rate because reassessments and new construction have raised the town's assessed valuation by 21.12 per cent, she said.

In spite of the lower tax rate, most homeowners tax bills will be increased because of increased assessed valuation.

Two Perish In Tragedy On Freeway

It began shortly before 2 p.m. when the truck, driven by Mary Rebecca Wittman, 55, of San Francisco, broke down on northbound Highway 101 near Ignacio.

Mrs. Wittman began walking along the freeway shoulder, according to the California Highway Patrol. She was seen by Officer John Joseph Morre, 28, of the Novato Police Department, and he stopped to offer help.

The highway patrol said the officer and Mrs. Wittman were standing behind his patrol car talking, when another car went out of control and slammed into them.

Mrs. Wittman was killed instantly and Morre suffered severe injuries.

The car's driver, John Arnold Johnston, 59, of Santa Rosa, may have fallen asleep at the wheel, according to officers, who said he told them he had no idea what had happened.

The crash propelled Johnston's wife, Cheiko, 45, through the windshield.

Novato firemen using special power tools worked frantically to free her from the wreckage, but she later died at Novato General Hospital.

Johnston was not injured.

Morre was reported in fair and stable condition today at the Novato hospital with a broken pelvis, multiple fractures of the leg and minor cuts.

Mrs. Wittman and Mrs. Johnston were the 10th and 11th persons killed in traffic accidents in Marin to date this year, as compared to 20 highway deaths during the same period in 1973.

Pollution Limits Hit Dairies Hard

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — Stringent pollution limits that will cost Marin and Sonoma dairies some $70,000 each were imposed today by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Deadline to meet the new restrictions was set for September, 1976, for dairies on the Tomales Bay and Walker Creek watersheds, and one year later for all other dairies.

Approximately 164 dairies are in the board's Bay Area jurisdiction, 74 of them in Marin and 60 in Sonoma. The staff said about 20 of the two counties' dairies will have to meet the 1976 deadline.

The board unanimously rejected appeals to give Tomales Bay and Walker Creek dairies the extra year granted others.

Board members and the staff, however, stressed that the 20 dairies could be given the extra year if they cannot meet the deadline.

Marin County Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, whose district includes West Marin, argued unsuccessfully that there are too few construction firms to do the required work within two years.

If the new controls drive dairies out of business, he warned, "The pressures for development would be incredible."

A report by the board's staff conceded the controls will drive some dairymen out of business, but said these would be "dairymen who were planning to leave the business anyway."

"Most of those abandoning dairy farming turn to raising beef cattle," according to the staff report.

The board's action prohibits all discharges of the manure wash water or other animal wastes to adjacent watercourses, and requires that stormwater runoff from corrals, pens, or other animal confinement areas be collected and retained.

The staff emphasized that the order wasrequired under guidelines adopted by the State Water Resources Control Board in March, 1973. "In our region," it said, "the most serious source of animal waste is dairy farmers."

The staff said the problem was especially acute in Tomales Bay, where harvesting of shellfish has had to be halted during the past four winters because of pollution from rain water draining from dairies.

The board's resolution commended Marin and Sonoma counties for helping dairymen

Panoramic Highway Will Close

A main route to Stinson Beach — the Panoramic Highway — will be closed for more than a month beginning Monday, the county public works department said today.

It will be closed between Ridgecrest Road on Mount Tamalpais and Shoreline Highway near Stinson Beach.

The Ed Dorsett Co. will be repairing two slides. The work is expected to keep the highway closed until Sept. 26.

The Fairfax-Bolinas Road has been closed since yesterday between Ridgecrest Boulevard and Shoreline Highway to permit replacement of two culverts, with work due to be completed Friday.

Corte Madera Councilmen Cut Tax Rate Eight Cents

In a midnight change of heart, the Corte Madera Town Council last night chopped eight cents off its tax rate as it adopted its 1974-75 budget. (Other Corte Madera Town Council stories, page 17.)

The move will reduce the tax rate to $1.29 per $100 assessed valuation, saving the owner of a $40,000 home (assessed for tax purposes at $10,000) $8 for the fiscal year.

The town will lose approximately $32,624 in revenue. No cut was made in the $1,604,258 budget. The final budget is up $168,960 from last year's total. A balance of $172,219 is predicted at the end of the fiscal year, more than enough to cover the lost revenue.

Councilman Larry P. Weingarth wavered for several seconds before casting the deciding vote in favor of the cut, joining Jana G. Haehl and Herber C. Leney. The measure passed, 3-to-2.

"We need to make this kind of a gesture to the taxpayers," said Mrs. Haehl, who proposed the cuts. "Besides, I'm convinced we'll have extra revenue by the end of the year from one source or another."

Mayor Robert J. Flahive, opposing the cut, called the budget "an austerity budget," said it was "unrealistic to lower

Bids For Mill Valley Project Run $300,000 Over Estimate

Financing of East Mill Valley's long-awaited public safety building isn't going to be any easier the second time around.

Mill Valley City Councilmen made that discovery last night when it was announced that the low bid on the planned police and fire building is $958,889 or about $300,000 over estimates. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 11.)

The revelation had an air of dejo vu about it — it was the second time the building cost had greatly outstripped the money available to build it.

Voters approved a $275,000 bond issue in 1972 to construct a fire station to serve the burgeoning East Mill Valley area from a site on the Sycamore Avenue extension.

But preliminary planning soon showed the station could not be built for that amount.

So $100,000 was added from revenue sharing funds and second bond issue, this one from $545,000, was approved by voters last year. That money was to pay for new police quarters as well.

Other bids received ranged from $978,500 to $1,018,000.

An ad hoc committee will meet Friday to consider what to do, with a report to the council due before its Sept. 3 meeting.

The choices, said Usher, are three: reject the bids and redesign the project; accept a bid

Bill Passed To Protect Pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today passed landmark legislation designed to protect the pension rights of 30 million American workers.

The compromise pension reform bill, one of the most important social issues facing the 93rd Congress, was expected to win final congressional approval from the Senate later this week.

The legislation, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, is mainly designed to guarantee that the worker who has been enrolled in a pension plan for a number of years will not lose his pension rights if he is fired, quits or if his company goes out of business.

Cyprus Issues Warrants For 3 In Death Of U.S. Ambassador

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cypriot government has issued warrants for the arrest of three Greek Cypriots in connection with the fatal shooting yesterday of U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies, a government spokesman said.

Diplomatic sources said Davies was the victim of a deliberate assassination attempt.

The government spokesman declined to name the three wanted men or to say whether they were military or civilian.

On the military front, the sitaation was calm. Greek Cypriot Radio Nicosia said today there have been no violations of the cease-fire between Turkish soldiers and Greek Cypriot troops since last night.

In a broadcast monitored in Israel, Nicosia radio described the situation on the island during the day as quiet and calm.

Charges of atrocities continued, however. In Ankara, Turkish Information Minister Orhan Birgit said Turkish troops on Cyprus have uncovered the bodies of 57 Turkish Cypriot victims of a Greek massacre in a small village near Famagus-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

S. Korean Cabinet Offers To Quit

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea's cabinet including Premier Kim Jong-pil, and other high-ranking officials offered their resignations today, taking responsibility for the assassination of President Park Chung-hee's wife.

Kim

Park accepted only two of the resignations — Home Minister Hong Song-chul and security chief Park Chong-kyu. He named Park Kyung-won to the Home Ministry, but left the security post vacant temporarily.

A total of 40 top officials originally offered to quit today, a day after Mrs. Park's burial. She was killed last Thursday by an assassin's bullet meant for her husband.

The officials included all 20 cabinet ministers and 15 members of the presidential staff. Others included diplomatic and municipal officials.

The president issued a special statement today thanking the nation for its mourning and sympathy for his slain wife.

The suspected gunman, Moon Se-kwang, 22, was shot on the spot and arrested. He is still being questioned.

Offers A Port

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A top Israeli military analyst says the United States should consider moving the 6th Fleet's home port facilities to Israel if American warships are barred from harbors in Greece.

Reserve Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog said yesterday Israel should offer the fleet home port bases to ensure U.S. support in the face of reported Soviet arms buildups in neighboring Arab countries.

The Greek government withdrew its troops from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last week and left undecided the fate of the 6th Fleet, which has home port facilities in Greece and Italy.

Herzog, former chief of military intelligence, said the United States might not only be ousted from Greece but also from Turkey.

Sadat To Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will visit the United States sometime this year, according to a joint communique issued in Cairo and Washington.

Sadat was invited to make the trip by former President Nixon during Nixon's last overseas tour. The communique said no date has been set for the trip, but that President Ford "is looking forward with pleasure to the visit."

Jordan's King Hussein wound up a state visit Sunday, and Egyptian foreign minister Ismael Fahmi completed talks with top U.S. officials yesterday. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Fahmi signed a joint communique which stressed their agreement that the Middle East peace conference in Geneva should be resumed "as soon as possible."

A Marcos Pledge

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos says a Moslem rebellion in the southern Philippines must be wiped out before martial law is ended and a parliamentary government can be introduced in the country.

Marcos, 56, imposed martial law on the Philippines on Sept. 21, 1972. When a new constitution was ratified in 1973, martial law was "technically and legally" lifted.

In an interview, Marcos said, "The next phase will be a shift toward a parliamentary form of government." He gave no indication when the shift would come.

Rebozo Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Watergate grand jury is investigating charges that Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo illegally spent at least $41,000 in campaign funds on homes owned by Richard Nixon and to buy a set of diamond earrings for the former president's wife.

It was one of the few charges that the President himself personally profited from the Watergate scandal — something Nixon has steadfastly denied.

According to papers filed yesterday in U.S. District Court, the prosecutors believe the money came from a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes and a $50,000 donation from food chain owner A. D. Davis.

Purges Military

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier Constantine Karamanlis has shaken up the Greek armed forces in his month-old government's first move to dismantle the command structure set up during seven years of military rule.

Political analysts said the move to reassert civilian rule over the military might represent a first step toward promised parliamentary elections in Greece.

Karamanlis, head of Greece's first civilian government since 1967, announced the shakeup last night, purging key officers picked by the junta.

He appointed 62-year-old Gen. Dionyssios Arbouzis as armed forces commander, the top military post in the country.

Town Captured

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops scaled a rocky mountain peak to capture a key government garrison town today, climaxing a month-long siege in the strategic Central Highlands.

Military sources said the Communists scaled a 3,700-foot-high mountain this morning to capture Mang Buk, an embattled town and military headquarters complex 275 miles north of Saigon.

The fall of towering Mang Buk, which looks down on a valley between Kontum and Quang Ngai provinces, came after a month-long siege by North Vietnamese infantry and artillery forces.

Wallace Hit

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace has kept his "segregation forever" promise by refusing to appoint blacks to important boards and commissions except where federal funding requires it, a federal district court was told yesterday.

Attorney Morris Dees, representing blacks who seek appointment to influential state boards, said Wallace had attempted to rely on "good faith" in justifying his appointment record.

Dees said the record showed race discrimination, because of the 71 blacks appointed 66 were named to boards and commissions related to federal funding.

"Gov. Wallace pledged segregation now, segregation tomorrow and segregation forever, in his 1963 inaugural address," Dees said in a brief filed with the court.

Most Admired

NEW YORK (UPI) — His rating has slipped a bit since May, but a new Louis Harris poll says Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger still is the most-admired public official in the United States.

The poll, a survey of 1,502 persons taken in late July and released yesterday, said 79 per cent of those questioned rated Kissinger's performance good to excellent, compared with 15 per cent who said it was fair to poor.

Kissinger had attained an 85-10 per cent rating in May, just after he had negotiated a ceasefire in the Middle East.

Corn Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although August rains ended a two-month drought in the Midwest they did not significantly improve the projected corn harvest, according to a special report from the Agriculture Department.

The experts said the final size of the grain crop will depend on whether enough rain falls the rest of the season. Also, the crop is maturing slower than usual and could face danger from killing frosts in the fall.

To Hospital Board

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Dr. Edgar K. Rose, 52, a Napa radiologist, was appointed yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the California Hospital Commission.

AMONG YOUNG

Amnesty Views Vary In Nation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

About 12 million young Americans faced the decision.

The Vietnam war was raging when Richard A. Nelson, got his draft notice. "The choices were simple," he said. "I could go to jail for five years, the military for two, which meant possible, almost certain death —it was at the height of the Tet offensive in '68 when I was drafted —or alternative service.

"It was the odds game, and I didn't want to go to jail."

Nelson joined up. He is now 26 and lives in Washington, attending school on the GI Bill. He was asked about President Ford's announcement yesterday that he would consider some form of amnesty for the young men who decided to leave the United States, or go over the hill instead of fight.

"For my money," he said, "it took a lot more guts to leave than go into the Air Force like I did. I don't think they should be persecuted for having the strength of their convictions. I didn't have the guts to do it."

Another 26-year-old vet who was wounded in December, 1968, Gary Bardin, of Wilson, N.C., heard Ford tell the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Chicago that he would permit those who left to "work their way back into American society."

"In my heart," he said, "I can't support amnesty. I asked for a transfer to go to Vietnam because a friend of mine was killed during the Tet offensive. I felt I had to go and do my part and fight for my freedom. I feel that (draft dodgers) should have to pay the price."

The same decision, two different views. But among those who made the other decision, to leave, there is also disagreement.

Gerry Condon, 27, lives in Toronto. He deserted the U.S. Army in 1968 and has lived both in Sweden and Canada. He called Ford's proposal "a pretty tough thing to ask people who have already had their lives so disrupted to delay it for a couple more years before starting their life's work."

But Steven Trimm, 26, of Albany, N.Y., now living in Hamilton, Ont., said conditional amnesty "could be used as a building block to general amnesty."

This is the gulf President Ford must bridge if, as he indicated to reporters on the way back to Washington, he wanted to heal all the wounds of the nation and pull the people back together.

When Ford's decision was announced, reaction came from politicians, leaders of veterans' groups, and plain citizens. UPI reporters across the country searched for some of the men who faced the draft and made their decision:

Staff Sgt. Wallace R. Clopton, a bartender at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. "If a guy had a strong enough feeling against that war, I think that should be taken into consideration," he said. "But if he did it because he was yellow, and that's the only reason, then that's different."

Jimmy McDaniel, a fireman in Philadelphia, Miss. "I don't think they should have it (amnesty). If they paid a penalty for it, yeah, but I don't think it should be free."

Frank Clark, 30, a VFW employe in Washington. His organization opposes any form of amnesty, and he said he was afraid to disagree. "My personal position is that I'm against unconditional amensty, but I believe a system should be set up to let them work their way back into the mainstream of society," he said. "I think it should be an individual judgment."

Richard Eckenroth, 24, Adamstown, Pa., served seven months in Vietnam and was wounded. He said some form of amnesty might be better for the country, but he didn't like the idea. "I figure I served my country," he said, "while these other guys run out and two years later come back scot free."

Richard Kuhns, 23, Columbus, Ohio, asked one of the big questions of the debate: "I'm willing to die for my country, why weren't they?"

Bob Taylor, 28, also Columbus, who won a Silver Star in Vietnam, asked another. "Why can't we forgive a little bit?"

Bomb Wasn't Cause Of Los Angeles Blast

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There was no bomb involved in a devastating explosion that ripped through a city block during the weekend, says Fire Chief Raymond Hill.

He called the blast accidental, and said it probably was caused by a volatile chemical compound sitting in the hot sun for a day and a half.

Hill's report discounted an earlier claim by the city's so-called "alphabet bomber" that the explosion Saturday was caused by "delinquent leftovers of our activities one week ago."

The bomber who calls himself Isaac Rasim also said in a call to a newspaper that he would keep the city "clean of fireworks" for the next few days to give authorities a chance to respond to what he says are the demands of his group, "Aliens of America."

One demand is the repeal of all federal immigration laws.

Rasim has threatened to "spell out in blood across America" the lettered sequence of Aliens of America.

He already has claimed responsibility for a deadly explosion at an airport and a bomb planted in a locker at a bus terminal.

Hill said the sun apparently touched off a reaction in a truckload of two types of chemicals —butyl hydroperoxide and methyl ethyl ketone peroxide.

The chemicals had been sent to a plastics manufacturer about seven miles southeast of Los Angeles, but the delivery was refused, and heat started an "accelerating reaction."

The truckload of chemicals exploded at about 8:40 p.m. Almost an entire square-block was leveled, buildings within a radius of five blocks had their windows blown out, roofs and walls caved in and numerous spot fires broke out.

TODAY'S WORLD

"There's one insect that won't participate in taking over the world!"

First Request By Ford Given Quick Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since it was President Ford asking, it took only one week after he made the request for the House and Senate to approve his Cost of Living task force.

Only minor differences divide the two bills, which passed yesterday, and final congressional approval of the new agency is expected before Congress leaves next week for its Labor Day recess. In an Aug. 12 address, Ford asked Congress to pass the measure before the recess.

Although almost no one expressed confidence that the new task force would hold back the current double-digit inflation, many congressmen urged passage simply because the new President wanted it.

The new agency would be powerless except for the power of persuasion. It would have no power to control wages and prices, no power to delay price increases, no power to subpoena records or individuals. It is intended to be mainly a monitoring and "jawboning" agency.

Both bills would give Ford $1 million to operate and staff a task force composed of his top economic aides and several cabinet members. In one of the few negative remarks, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, called it "a nice layer of fat at a cost of a million dollars."

The House passed the measure 379 to 23, and the Senate passed it 88 to 3 a few hours later.

The Senate defeated 50 to 34 a move by liberals, led by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to give the agency subpoena power and the authority to delay price or wage increases for up to 90 days if they were considered inflationary. The existing proposal, Stevenson said, "has no teeth — indeed, it has no jaw. It contains no stick, nor a carrot. It is a cipher."

But most lawmakers seemed willing to give the President what he sought. "This is the first thing he has asked for," said Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., who led the fight against the Stevenson amendment. "No one pretends that this is going to stop inflation, but it is an anti-inflationary tool."

Driverless AC District Has Profit

OAKLAND (UPI) — Despite the fact that a bus drivers strike against the AC Transit District entered its 51st day today, the district was showing a weekly profit of $150,000 on its books.

An AC spokesman said this was because the publicly owned transit district collects $259,000 a week in property and gasoline taxes.

When the buses are running, the district loses about $310,000 a week, the spokesman said.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulos met separately with negotiators for the transit district and striking Division 192 of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

Talks broke off last Friday and Nicolopulos said afterwards that the "positions have not changed." Union members twice rejected a proposed settlement of the walkout.

WAITING, WAITING — Reflecting in their expressions varying degrees of impatience and annoyance, College of Marin students lined up yesterday in the school's bookstore to purchase texts for the fall semester. Bookstore officials reported that lines were about the same as in past years and students will face an even longer wait in line later in the week.

College Of Marin Opens For Fall

By BILL ROBERTS

While their younger brothers and sisters continued to enjoy summer vacation with games in the park or a picnic at the beach, older Marin students returned to the classroom yesterday.

Some 7,041 students are registered at the College of Marin for the fall semester and many were on campus yesterday to purchase books and begin classes.

The Aug. 19 opening was the earliest in the college's 48-year history and a visitor to the campus encountered mixed reactions.

"I hate it," said Mary Jane Armstrong of Mill Valley, a second-year student who attended the Kentfield school last year when it had a mid-September opening. "I hate having to deal with all these people at such an early date."

Her reaction was seconded by an older student who refused to give his name. "I had to give up two weeks of my vacation for this," he said gesturing wildly with his hands.

"I like it," said 18-year-old John Del Negro of Novato, a 1974 graduate of San Marin High School and a freshman at the college. "I'm working and it breaks up the boredom of working. And the extra time at Christmas will give people a month for skiing."

The new schedule was adopted to facilitate the transfer of Marin students to state universities after the fall semester. In the past, the Marin semester ended after Christmas causing students to miss the start of the winter quarter at state universities and making them wait for the spring quarter.

The Christmas vacation will be extended from two weeks to four weeks for students who remain at the college. They will begin the spring semester in mid-January and will end classes in late May.

The change has caused some confusion for students.

"I'm still somewhat confused," said a 19-year-old woman from Point Reyes Station who refused to give her name. "I would much rather have had it stay the same."

But for most students, the return to college life yesterday was mainly a return to old ways.

The scene was dominated by casually dressed young people sitting under a big shade tree with its relief from temperatures in the 80s. For most it was a time to renew old friendships or strike up new ones while lounging on a patch of greenery.

The student center was alive with chatter as students congregated over a snack or soft drink to discuss summer activities or to plan future get-togethers.

The college opening also signaled the renewal of some nuisances.

After learning which books were required for their courses, students trekked to the bookstore where it took only a few minutes to find the right books but half an hour or longer in line to reach a cash register to pay up.

"So far it's been a normal day," said bookstore manager Larry L. Shuster as he assessed the opening of another semester.

He said lines would be even longer at the bookstore today and students will find little relief by waiting until later in the week to make their purchases.

Class registration was also a familiar problem and many students wandered about campus looking for "one more class" to complete their schedule.

For a few students, yesterday's action was something to be viewed from a distance. A few classes will begin Sept. 10 and students who could not or chose not to register for the early opening date may find a few openings then.

But with over 7,000 students already registered, many classes are already filled and late comers will have trouble compiling a full schedule, according to college officials.

Sales And Use Tax Shares Top $845,000

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and Sonoma county governments and city governments in Marin and Southern Sonoma have received more than $845,000 in a distribution of local sales and use taxes it was announced yesterday.

The payment, by the state board of equalization, is part of a statewide distribution of $70 million representing the third advance payment for the second quarter of 1974.

Marin County received $54,000 and Sonoma County received $270,000.

City government shares were: Belvedere, $1,250; Cotati, $8,500; Corte Madera, $45,000; Fairfax, $8,500; Larkspur, $19,000; Mill Valley, $32,000; Novato, $63,000; Petaluma, $77,500; Rohnert Park, $14,000; Ross, $1,000; San Anselmo, $21,000; San Rafael, $260,000; Sausalito, $47,000, and Tiburon, $11,000.

Behr Is Honored By Sierra Club

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has been presented by the Sierra Club with an appreciation award for wildlife conservation.

Praising Behr at its recent annual awards luncheon, the club said the senator was "one of the foremost friends of wildlife in the California Legislature." Club president Kent Gill cited Behr's successful legislation to conserve the Tule elk, stop the overfishing of herring, and limit abuses of the exotic pet trade.

Gill also pointed to Behr's authorship of a law to halt dams on the last of California's wild North Coast rivers.

Youth Pleads Guilty In The Death Of Priest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth pleaded guilty yesterday to the bludgeon murder of a clergyman who had baptized the suspect.

Michael L. Stephens said he was aware that his plea could result in the death penalty.

Stephens also pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing 85-year-old Luther E. Cleaver, pastor of the Greater Little Chapel of the Church of God in Christ for 41 years.

Jury selection was to begin today in the court of Superior Court Judge William E. Mullins.

Bishop Cleaver was killed June 3 after he had withdrawn $1,000 from a bank. His body was discovered two days later in a weed-covered lot near Candlestick Park.

Meeting Reviews Marin's Growth, Transit Problems

Marin County's long-drawn debate over highways, transit and population growth was reviewed last night for a handful of people, in the first of four public presentations by the Citizens' Advisory Committee to the Marin Transit District.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell reminded the 20 persons in the audience that had all the various roads planned in the 1960s actually been built, Marin probably would have faced a population of about 800,000 in a few years and would have needed 18 lanes on the approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Robert L. Harrison, assistant manager of the transit district, reviewed the county's computer study of transport needs and land uses that evolved into the so- called balanced transportation plan for Marin and led to creation of the Marin Transit District.

The district's long-range plans suffered a setback in June when voters refused to approve increasing the district's tax rate maximum from 5 cents per $100 assessed property valuation to 25 cents. The district then asked its advisory committee for more citizen ideas as to what should be tried next, resulting in the series of meetings that began last night.

Next Monday, county officials will discuss the need for local transit as an alternate to the auto. On Sept. 16, the question of transit financing by the district or by the Golden Gate Bridge District will be discussed, and a final summing up session will be held Sept. 23 to lead to a report to the transit district board.

All of the meetings are set for 8 p.m. in the supervisors' chambers at the Marin County Civic Center.

President Ford Asks To Join Press Club

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has applied for associate membership in the National Press Club.

Club sources said yesterday that Ford's application, dated Aug.13, was forwarded for consideration by the next meeting of the membership committee.

Democrats was favorable, too. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted Rockefeller would have no trouble being confirmed. He said the hearings would be held without delay. "We feel the President needs somebody," he said.

Likewise, House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., next in line to the presidency until a vice presidential nominee is confirmed, reacted warmly. "The President has just nominated one of the most experienced and capable men in the country," Albert said. "The President made a choice which few will criticize."

Ford said he had considered a number of candidates — "all men — and women — of great quality."

He called the final decision "a tough call for a tough job."

If confirmed by a majority vote of the House and the Senate, Rockefeller, 66, will become the second vice president chosen under the 25th Amendment which provides for filling vacancies in that office.

Ford, chosen to succeed Spiro T. Agnew when he resigned in October after pleading no contest to tax evasion charges, was the first vice president so chosen.

When former President Nixon announced that Ford was going to be the vice president upon the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew, it took two months for Ford to be confirmed.

During those two months Congress conducted a thorough scrutiny of all Ford's financial records and his political career.

Rockefeller was expected to undergo another thorough investigation, delaying the swearing in for some time. House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said yesterday in Chicago he thinks Democrats might stall confirmation until after the November elections.

Rockefeller, in an allusion to the Watergate scandal which had forced Richard M. Nixon to surrender the presidency and had elevated Ford, praised his new chief's "dedication and openness" which he said had "already reawakened faith and hope" in the nation.

After his brief speech, Rockefeller made the rounds of those present in the Oval Office, shaking hands and speaking personally with each person. The atmosphere was light and laughter filled the room.

Rockefeller stopped to speak with first lady Betty Ford before going to meet the Cabinet.

Two hours after Ford announced his nomination, Rockefeller left the White House. He told reporters he was going to the State Department to see Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger; then up to Capitol Hill to make some "courtesy calls" on committee chairmen.

He said later tonight he would return to Seal Harbor, Maine, where he had been vacationing, to prepare for his new job. He said he probably would return to Washington "later this week."

As he left the White House, he was escorted for the first time by Secret Service agents who have been assigned to protect him from now on.

Rockefeller said he had met with Ford and some assistants after his nomination was announced. Asked if Ford had given him any intitial instructions, Rockefeller said the President told him, "just to go up on the Hill and be available."

Seven More Nabbed In Drug Probe

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Seven more persons were arrested here yesterday as police and sheriff's officers continued a massive narcotics crackdown which has resulted in 57 arrests since last week.

The Sonoma County Grand Jury named 67 persons in 52 indictments last Wednesday after holding secret hearings on dope sales evidence gathered by undercover investigators.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said the remaining suspects will probably be rounded up in the next few days unless they have fled the county.

At least several more, he said, have made arrangements to surrender to authorities.

Sheriff Donald Striepeke said the crackdown resulted from a $335,000 federal anticrime grant from the law enforcement assistance administration.

Of the persons indicted by the grand jury, the spokesman said, most were believed to be dealers in heroin, hashish, amphetamines and cocaine, with relatively few pegged as marijuana sellers.

No Southern Sonoma residents were among the indicted.

and come up with the extra money, and accept a bid but change the design to reduce the cost.

Architect Matthew R. Mills of San Francisco, designer of the building, explained how the project came in so far over estimate.

Chiefly, he blamed inflation, which has been running at about 20 per cent in the building trades in the past year.

"These are crazy times," he said.

Some categories of building materials — steel, electrical supplies, heating goods and concrete — will cost double their projections, Mills said.

Evnen with specification changes — substituting less expensive materials — the full $300,000 shortage cannot be met, Mills predicted.

plus Administration. If no federal governmental agency wants the property, the process of informing various state, county and city governmental units will begin.

It is presumably at this point that the County of Marin and the City of Novato will have a chance to obtain the surplus property.

The land declared excess is located on the outer edges of the Hamilton installation. It includes the 24-acre Lanham housing areas on the western edge, the 15-acre golf driving range fronting Nave Drive, the 15-acre meadow Park School site, a 55-acre plot of vacant land in the southern end of the base and a 164-acre area in the northwest which includes the base's civil engineering complex, the ammunition hill and bunkers and two athletic fields.

The Air Force will retain 1,383 acres of the 2,127-acre installation and transfer 471 acres to the Navy.

Disposal of 477 acres originally was proposed by the Air Force in 1973, but the acreage was cut to 273 in a revised report submitted to the House committee in June.

taxes with the economy the way it is," and asked, "why are we having this last-minute attempt when we've already gone through the budget line by line?"

A citizen, Philip A. Sasso, repeatedly urged the council to cut the budget, saying "there's fat in it" and claiming that in a time of inflation, the council had to show the way by lowering taxes.

Specifically, the cuts were made in the areas of planning, from six cents to four cents; repayment of 1951 bonds, 1.75 cents to 1.25 cents; repayment of 1965 bonds, 3.25 cents to 2.75 cents; and flood control, 13 cents to eight cents.

The budget breaks down as follows: general, $1,046,410; planning, $17,558; special park, $55,852; traffic safety, $20,000; retirement, $118,396; gas tax, $145,010; 1951 bonds, $5,300; 1965 bonds, $10,183; library, $97,638; flood control, $33,481; and revenue sharing, $54,430.

Simultaneously with their budget discussions, councilmen pondered how to spend $140,918 in federal revenue sharing funds.

They decided on: reserve for San Clemente pump station, $33,000; completion of tiny tot area in town park, $10,200; minipark on El Camino Drive, $3,900; improving town park ball diamond, $1,850; replacing a police car, $3,600; purchasing resuscitator, $540; five fire hydrants, $5,270; reserve for bicycle paths, $10,000; dictaphone for Department of Public Works, $600; calculator for Director of Finance, $600; reserve for parkland acquisition, $10,000.

Previously, they had decided on a fire truck at $44,457 and purchase of new fire truck equipment, $18,331.

Birgit said the Turkish reconnaisance planes spotted fresh mounds of earth around the village and troops dug out bodies.

"Foreign correspondents will be able to visit the village and see and hear for themselves what hapened there," Birgit said. "This was the latest in a series of murders committed in the name of that classical Hellenic civilization."

The sources said that at least two gunmen were involved and that they used military weapons.

A United Nations spokesman confirmed that all was quiet on the military front of the wartorn island.

On the diplomatic front, Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger told a news conference yesterday he has given the go-ahead for a new peace initiative to defuse the Cyprus crisis.

Turkey, Greece and the Cypriot government took time out from their dispute over the future of the embattled island to join in expressing shock and regret at the murder of U.S. Ambassador Roger B. Davies in Nicosia.

to solve pollution problems and gave special praise to Marin for budgeting $55,000 to make up the difference between 5 per cent and whatever interest dairymen have to pay to finance pollution controls.

The order by the board declared that immediate action will be taken against any dairy found to be discharging manure into a watercourse or depositing manure in areas subject to flooding.

Marin County Farm Advisor Donald L. Brittsan estimated yesterday the controls will cost approximately $70,000 per dairy.

The regional board's sanitary engineer, Lawrence P. Kolb, told the I-J today, however, that this figure unfairly includes some $50,000 for barns that would have to be built anyway. Dairies without barns cannot survive economically, he said.

According to Brittsan, only one quarter of Marin's dairymen have barns. Cows produce about 20 per cent more milk if housed in barns in wet weather.

The remaining $20,000 in costs for the average dairy are for a holding pond and system to distribute wastewater.

Most Marin dairies are located directly on creeks because of the lack of flat ground elsewhere.

Kolb said the deadlines were "reasonable and obtainable."

An appeal for a uniform 1977 deadline also was made by the Sonoma County Dairy Waste Committee.

Machines, Clubs Stolen From Car

Some $6,143 in office machines and golf equipment was stolen over the weekend from the car trunk of a San Rafael man.

James C. Cutter, 40, of 120 Esmyer Drive told San Rafael police the thief apparently took a key from the glove compartment and opened up the trunk sometime between 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

The car was parked outside Cutter's home except for sometime Sunday, when he visited Walnut Creek.

Police have no suspects.

Girl Fails In Lake Swim Try

TORONTO (UPI) — For most of the 24-hour ordeal, six-foot swells slapped her face and strong winds blew her off course, but Angela Kondrak, 14, came within a mile and a half of becoming the seventh and youngest person to swim across Lake Ontario.

"No, I've had enough," Angela told her coach, Art Dufresne, when he tried to persuade her to finish yesterday. "I don't want the money."

Angela had been promised more than $12,000 in cash and prizes if she completed the 32-mile swim.

Water Agreement To Be Considered

The North Marin County Water District board will consider a water supply agreement with the Sonoma County Water Agency and seven other agencies at 8 o'clock tonight at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

The proposed agreement covers delivery of water through the planned Russian River-Cotati Intertie and cost sharing among agencies involved, including the cities of Petaluma, Rohnert Park, Cotati, Santa Rosa and Sonoma.

OBITUARIES

Thomas K. Mallett Dies At 51

Funeral for Thomas K. Mallett of San Rafael, lumber salesman and sports enthusiast, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Williams and Heffernan Mortuary in San Rafael.

Mallett, 51, died unexpectedly Sunday at his home. He had undergone heart surgery earlier this year.

He was born in Colorado and grew up there, but came to California in 1940.

The family home is at 29 Cottonwood Drive.

Mallett worked as a lumber salesman for the Henry Hess Co. for many years and then for the San Marin Lumber Co.

He had served about 10 years as a Little League coach and manager and also worked with Pop Warner football teams. He was a member of the San Rafael High School Sideliners club.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanne; three daughters, Susan Mallett of Corte Madera, Coreen Mallett of Kailua, Kona, Hawaii, and Deborah Mallett of San Rafael; two sons, Kenneth and Jeffrey Mallett, both of San Rafael; two brothers, George Mallett of Penn Valley, Nevada County, and Robert Mallett of Amarillo, Tex., and a sister, Mildred Winkfield of St. Helens, Ore.

The family prefers memorial contributions for the Marin Open House, the Marin Association for Retarded Children or the Marin Community Workshop.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

RICHARD B. CUNNINGHAM

Funeral for Richard Bruce Cunningham Jr., 17-year-old high school student who died last Tuesday in an auto accident in British Columbia, was held today at the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

Young Cunningham was fatally injured in an accident which occurred near Prince George while he was vacationing in Canada.

The youth was born in San Rafael and lived in Novato and Mill Valley. The past three yers he had made his home with his mother, Nancy A. Morgan, in Missoula, Mont., and had been attending school there.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his father, R. Bruce Cunningham Sr. of Mill Valley, owner of the APC Concrete Pumping Co. in Greenbrae and sister and brother, Allison and Robert J. Cunningham, both of Mill Valley.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

The family prefers memorial contributions in young Cunningham's name to his school, Project 100, Missoula, Mont.

LALAGE DUMAS

Memorial service for Lalage Dumas will be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Christ Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Dumas, 55, died last Tuesday at her Sausalito home.

EDWIN HURT

Capt. Edwin Hurt, retired sea captain and sculptor, died today at his home at 1188 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, after a long illness. He was 71.

Hurt was born in Russian Estonia. He came to this country and went to sea when he was 21. He became a captain of merchant ships in a few years and sailed in the Atlantic and South Pacific during World War II. He was in command of the Air Force tracking ship which stood by as the Atlas missile nose-cone plunged in the sea south of Cape Town in June 1960.

He was also an amateur sculptor. A bronze bust he made of Harry Lundeberg, long-time president of the Sailor's Union of the Pacific, stands in front of the Sailor's Union Building in San Francisco.

He was a member of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union.

Hurt is survived by his wife, Joyce Rockwell Hurt of San Anselmo; two sons, Gregory Jan Hurt of Novato and Christopher Hurt of San Rafael and a brother, Harry Hurt of Novato.

His body was cremated and his ashes scattered at sea.

Memorial contributions to the Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Research at the Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco would be preferred by the family.

EMMA I. TIETZE

Service was today for Emma I. Tietze, a longtime Petaluma resident who died in a local convalescent hospital Sunday after a lengthy illness. She was 85.

She was born and reared in Germany. She came to the United States at the age of 18 and settled in Petaluma shortly therafter. Mrs. Tietze was a homemaker and the wife of the late Oscar Tietze. She lived at 25 Howard Street.

She is survived by a son and daughter, John Tietze of Sunnyvale and Margarethe Paysen of Petaluma; a sister, Berta Bach of Germany, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Liberty Cemetery.

JOHN J. ZUIKER

Funeral was today for John J. Zuiker of Petaluma, who died in a local hospital Saturday after a short illness. He was 71.

He was born in Chicago and came to California in the late 1930s, settling first in Fresno where he drove buses for the Greyhound Co. During World War II, he was an automotive advisor for the U.S. Army and later he operated a trucking firm of his own.

After several years as an insurance broker he retired in 1962, moving then to Santa Cruz and finally to Southern Sonoma seven years ago. He lived at 1821 Lakeville Highway.

Zuiker's wife, Blanche, died in 1967.

He was a member of St. James Catholic Church in Petaluma.

Zuiker is survived by three sons, David Corkill of Petaluma, Gilbert Corkill of San Diego and Albert Corkill of Panama City, Fla.; three brothers, Francis Zuiker of Park Forest, Ill., and Edward and Louis Zuiker, both of Chicago.

Burial was at Oakwood Cemetery in Santa Cruz. The family prefers memorial contributions to the Sonoma County Heart Fund.

LILO MADDEN

Lilo Madden, a designer and the wife of the owner of the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 52.

Mrs. Madden, the former Lilo Stoll, was born in Wiesbaden, Germany. She came to New York in 1957 and to San Francisco in 1958.

A bus trip to Sausalito convinced her it was the place to live. "This is where I'm going to stay for always," she said in an interview in 1958 in the Independent-Journal.

In Germany she had owned and operated a hand crafts studio and in this country she continued making raffia objects, jewelry, hats and clothing.

She met her husband-to-be, Herbert Madden Sr., in 1958 when she rented a small ark from the yacht harbor owner for a shop. They married two years later.

Mrs. Madden operated "Lilo's Millinery and Custom Boutique" in San Francisco until three years ago. After that, she continued to sell her crafts, under the name, "Lilo's Creations," to such stores as I. Magnin and Modern Eve.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a stepson, Herbert Madden Jr. of Sausalito and cousins in Germany.

A private memorial service is planned.

KARL F. MULLER

Funeral was today for Karl F. Muller, 67, of Penngrove, a longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died Saturday in a Novato hospital after a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, he moved to Southern Sonoma in 1930, operating a poultry company until 1959 when he went to work for an aluminum plant in Santa Rosa. His home was at 19785 Minnesota Avenue.

Muller is survived by an uncle, Herman T. Dratz of San Francisco, and an aunt, Amelia Burkhardt of Santa Rosa.

Inurnment was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park. The family prefers contributions to favorite charities.

BERTIL E. EDELHAMMAR

Bertil E. Edelhammar of Petaluma, a retired painter, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. He was 57.

He was born in Billingsholm, Sweden and emigrated to Petaluma 19 years ago. Edelhammar was a member of Linnea, a Swedish lodge in Petaluma, and the Marin County Painters Union, Local 83.

During World War II he served in the Swedish Coast Guard. His home was at 805 Sonoma Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Margit; a daughter, Maj'Lis Ransom of Petaluma; his mother, Ebba Edelhammar of Sweden; a sister, Britta Nystrom of Sweden, and two grandchildren.

Funeral service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home. Inurnment will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

JOHN TELFER

A memorial service for John Harley Telfer of Novato, teacher, minister and worker for social service agencies in Marin, will be at 4 p.m. Sunday at Pilgrim Congregational Church in Oakland.

Telfer, 67, of 5 Nancy Drive, died Sunday at his home after a long illness.

He was one of the founders of the Novato Human Needs Center and served as its director of operations. He also was a member of the boards of Community Action Marin, the county Family and Children's Services Advisory Council and Marin Emergency Housing.

An ordained minister for the United Church of Christ for 32 years, Telfer was pastor for two years at Pilgrim Congregational Church in Oakland, retiring in May 1972.

Previously, he taught black history and African studies for the adult education program of the Berkeley Unified School District and conducted seminars on the subjects for teachers in various Marin communities.

In the 1950s, Telfer directed the antidiscrimination program for the United Packing House Workers Union in the eight southeastern states.

During his career, he was a minister for churches in Wisconsin, Iowa and Kansas.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, he attended Chicago Theological School, Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, the University of Zurich and the University of California at Berkeley.

Telfer was a native of Wisconsin and resident of Marin for three years.

Surviving is his wife, Marjorie, of the family home. Memorial contributions may be made to the Lung Association of the Redwood Empire.

ITALIAN SOUVENIR — San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini holds the poster made for him by relatives in the Ponchiero section of Sondrio, Italy, during his visit earlier this month.

VISITS FAMILY IN ITALY

Sentimental Journey For Mayor

By LEW CODDINGTON

When sociologists talk about the "extended family," they must have C. Paul Bettini in mind. His extends 6,300 miles.

The Mayor of San Rafael recently felt the tug of his family ties and journeyed to Sondrio, Italy, the town of 25,000 persons on the shoulder of the Swiss Alps which his father left seven decades ago to come to the New World.

Bettini returned to San Rafael last week, filled with praise for his Italian hosts and impressions of the country.

"They're wonderful people, and I had a wonderful time," he said. "You just have to learn to go with their pace of life, and join in the things they like the best. You fit right into it after a while."

One of the things Bettini enjoyed was the work schedule, which sidestepped the Monday morning blues by not beginning until 4 p.m. On other days, Italians worked from 9 a.m. to noon and 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. The four hours in between were just about enough time to attack a monstruous, multi-course midday meal.

Bettini found Italy a land of marked contrast between traditional ways of life and modern problems.

Residents of Sondrio still live in multi-story, chalet-style stone homes, with parents on one floor, offspring on another, their children on still another. There were seven Bettinis spanning three generations in the house where the mayor stayed.

While he was there, his cousin was married in the traditional ceremony, which included a sumptuous, five-hour reception and feast punctuated by spontaneous singing.

Sondrio retains its centuries-old flavor. The mountainous terrain chops the town into several sections, each with its own church and its own community identity.

From the Ponchiero section, where his relatives lived, Bettini could see workers, baskets lashed to their backs, working in the steep vertical vineyards. Behind them loomed the Alps (Sondrio is 25 miles from the Swiss border), carpeted with brilliant wildflowers.

Bettini's idyllic reverie was disturbed, however, by thick smog in Milan, fierce traffic jams in Rome, and a $2 price tag on a gallon of gas.

"They have the same problems we have," Bettini said. "They even knew all about Watergate. It was in the papers there every day."

One of the big problems is strikes, especially spontaneous wildcat walkouts. "At the art center in Florence, there was a sign saying, 'On strike until 2 o'clock today.'" He doesn't recommend the tactic to San Rafael city employees.

Bettini attempted to meet the mayor of Sondrio, but found that official made himself available to the public only two hours a week. Bettini was surprised, too, to find a soldier patrolling outside the mayor's office, and a military aide toiling inside.

But the important part of the trip was the family life. "It is so close," Bettini said. "We as Americans have gotten away from that. This is what we used to do when we were younger — having picnics, going to church, eating and playing together.

"Everybody is proud of their family and proud of their home. We would go to visit somebody, and the first thing they would do is give us a tour of the house. Then a tour of the garden. Then a tour of the wine cellar. It was great wine, 10-12-14 years old, but this was 9 o'clock in the morning! You'd spend four hours doing this, and then they'd take you next door and introduce you to their neighbor.

"You could take all day visiting houses. But what's wrong with that, when everybody is so damn nice?"

Petaluma Man Held In Assault

A 32-year-old Petaluma man was arrested early today on suspicion of burglary and assault with intent to rape.

Petaluma police said they arrested Paul Francis McDonald of 1675 Acapulco Court shortly after midnight at the home of a woman on the same street.

She told officers McDonald had entered her home while she was asleep and had ripped her night clothes from her. Police were apparently summoned after neighbors heard the woman's children screaming during the assault. When they arrived, she was seen running from the front door. McDonald was found inside the house, naked.

He was booked into Sonoma County Jail and bond was set at $50,000 pending arraignment in municipal court.

Muir Woods Annex Will Be Considered

Marin Municipal Water District directors will consider whether to annex the Muir Woods National Monument to the district when they meet at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

The annexation has been proposed because Marin Municipal, which now has a moratorium on new water service connections, cannot continue to supply surplus water to the monument. Since the district says it does not have enough water to grant new services, it no longer has "surplus water" available, according to district attorneys.

5:42 p.m. Novato — Grass fire on property of Attilio Quartaroli at Deer Island Lane and Olive Avenue; burned 500 square feet; damaged fence posts; cause undetermined.

11:23 p.m., Novato — Fire in trash box of Tresch Electric Co., 1026 Machin Avenue; burned trash; possibly caused by discarded cigar.

$50,000 Set For Dollar Estate

The San Rafael City Council last night allocated $50,000 in city open space bond funds to aid in purchase of the historic Robert Dollar estate. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

The city council two weeks ago placed a proposal for public acquisition of the 11.1-acre site on the November ballot. Last night's action reduced from five cents to four cents the tax per $100 of assessed valuation residents would have to pay for a three-year period to buy the property. Thereafter, the tax rate would be two cents, the city administration said.

The council last night also called for county and citizen contributions to offset $250,000 for acquisition, saying the issue may be removed from the ballot if enough money is raised elsewhere.

Councilmen also approved a statement saying acquisition, restoration, maintenance and operation of the mansion and grounds is aimed at "public service purposes including but not limited to cultural, library, historical, park, recreation, open space and similar related uses."

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CLAIM — Rejected a $10,893 claim by James Oliver, who claims he flipped over a city culvert while riding a bicycle.

BUSINESS — Put over to Sept. 3 consideration of a $23,235 subsidy request by the city chamber of commerce, and put over to Sept. 3 a proposed 14 per cent boost in city business license fees.

TOW BUSINESS — Approved an urgency ordinance regulating tow car businesses in the city and setting a standard schedule of tow fees.

PARAMEDIC — Postponed action on a proposal by Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci for a paramedic program, pending conclusion of a report by a county committee on local emergency care.

GENERAL PLAN — Put over to 8 p.m. Thursday a decision on how to conduct an economic analysis of the city's general plan.

FIRE PROTECTION — In anticipation of successful passage of a county ballot issue creating a fire protection service area in adjacent communities, approved an agreement with the county providing for mutual fire aid. The agreement, whoch now passes to the county, includes a city proposal that San Rafael be allowed to request aerial drops of fire suppressant chemicals from the state. The county fire chief is currently the only official authorized to make such requests.

BIDS — Awarded the following contracts to low bidders: $16,160 to Pump Repairs Service for pump station repairs; $225,356 to Ghilotti Brothers for street resurfacing work, and $22,505 to Valley Slurry Seal for slurry seal resurfacing.

OPTION — Continued a decision on whether to exercise a $49,000 option on purchase of a parcel adjacent to St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda.

RECREATION CENTER — Reviewed preliminary plans for a city recreation center and referred them to the parks and recreation commission.

REDEVELOPMENT — Appointed Mayor C. Paul Bettini and councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan to a redevelopment development review committee, but set no meeting date for the group. The redevelopment agency also told staff to study the possibility of buying the old Borden's Dairy site on Tamalpais Avenue and razing the eyesore.

EMERGENCY EMPLOYMENT — Said eight persons will be hired with federal funds under the Emergency Employment Act.

SCHOOL — Said a meeting of the city-schools liaison committee is set for Aug. 29.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall.

Bite Victim Wants To Find Dog

Leslie W. Hack of 46 Karl Avenue, San Anselmo, who was bitten by a large grey dog last Wednesday on the Sir Francis Drake High School campus wants to locate the dog to learn if it has had its rabies vaccination.

Hack said the dog bit him while he was riding his bicycle. It was a large, greyish female somewhat like a German shepherd dog with very thick fur, he said.

The owner of the dog called it "Ricky or Rocky," but would not give Hack his name.

Hack requested that the owner give the San Anselmo police proof that the dog had its rabies vaccination so that he would not have to undergo the painful anti-rabies shots.

The dog's owner was described as 45-50 years old, round faced and solid build weighing about 180-190 pounds. He had short cut greying sandy hair.

Company's Reinecke Loan Goes Unpaid

CHULA VISTA (UPI) — A $53,200 loan from Rohr Industries to help finance the gubernatorial campaign of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke apparently will be written off as a bad debt.

A company spokesman said yesterday that the loan was made in early 1972 by Rohr executive Bert Raynes, who then was finance chairman for Reinecke's campaign.

Stolen Tickets Result In Ex-employee's Jailing

A former employee of SFO Helicopter Airlines who now works for a salami company must serve three months in Marin County Jail for concealing airline tickets stolen from the firm's Sausalito heliport.

Paul Calder Strong Jr., 23, drew the jail term and two years' probation yesterday from Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court.

Best also ordered Strong to repay SFO for the value of the tickets he used and sold and fined him $1,000.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest V. Zunino said the tickets Strong had were part of 1,629 worth $80,000 which were stolen from the company last December and March.

Strong later told Marin Sheriff's Deputies he bought about 100 of the stolen tickets from someone else, using a few for himself and giving others to his girlfriend. He turned over 71 tickets to deputies.

FIREMEN TEST EFFICIENCY

San Rafael Fireman Forbes McGrame, on top of truck, guides a steady stream of 600 gallons of water per minute onto a burning building at the end of Jacoby Street in San Rafael. The building's owner, Joseph J. Garbarino of San Rafael, gave firemen permission yesterday morning to set and extinguish a controlled fire at the site. Fifteen firemen took part in the operation designed to test the department's efficiency in extinguishing large structural fires using a large diameter nozzle and smaller hand nozzles.

SLOW BURN — Two firemen stand by idly as billowing columns of thick black smoke envelop the two-story structure. It took firemen 20 minutes to get the blaze fully under way because the building was empty and open.

HALFWAY POINT — The building's charred roof caves in as firemen observe the control burn's progress. Capt. Douglas Jones said that the firemen purposely delayed extinguishing the blaze in order to have more time to experiment.

SMOKING DEBRIS — All that remains of the building is the charred debris in the foreground. In all, firemen were on the scene for 90 minutes. In a few days the rubble will be cleared away but it's not certain as yet what the property will be used for.

Many Aren't Aware Of Benefits Available To Veterans

By MARC LITTMAN

James V. Burdick, Marin County veterans service director, dipped into his files and produced a stack of pamphlets on federal and state benefit programs for veterans.

"Some of these benefits people don't even realize," he said.

For instance, Burdick pointed out, starting Sept. 15, the state will offer educational aid to Vietnam veterans once their federal educational aid has expired.

Under the program, which the Legislature had allowed to lapse for 10 years, veterans who served on active duty after Aug. 5, 1964 and who were legal residents of California while in service, may receive up to $100 per month for one year while taking 12 units in school.

Burdick said that 38,590 war veterans live in Marin; 9,178 veterans of Vietnam; 9,794, the Korean war; 18,584, World War II, and 1,015, World War I. Until last year, there was also a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

The veterans service director explained that his county office acts as liaison between Marin veterans and the federal and state veterans administrations, both of which offer assistance.

His office in the Civic Center also offers an employment referral service for those having difficulty regaining jobs they left on entering the service, or otherwise unemployed.

Federal veterans assistance is broken down into education, loan, disability compensation and pension, medical and dental care, and insurance programs.

However, educational benefits for veterans of all wars except Vietnam have long since expired, Burdick noted.

He also noted that while World War II veterans received both living subsistence and partial tuition, Vietnam veterans receive only living subsistence.

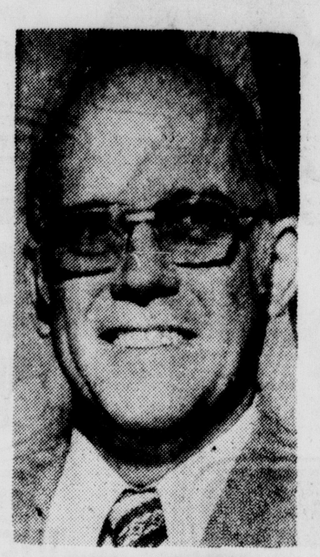
Legislation is pending in Congress to give Vietnam veterans the same benefits received by those in other wars by adding a partial tuition allowance to their education benefits.

Burdick said the legislation is supported by the Senate and opposed by the House of Representatives.

Presently, a Vietnam veteran who has served at least 181 continuous days of active duty and received an honorable discharge is eligible for 1.5 months of educational subsistence aid for every month of active duty he served up to a maximum 36 months.

The subsistence ranges from $110 a month for a single veteran taking six units in school to up to $298 a month for a veteran with two dependents and a full 12-unit load, plus $18 per month for each additional dependent.

Vietnam veterans are eligible for the education subsidy up to 10 years after their discharge.



JAMES V. BURDICK
County veterans director

In order to apply for benefits, veterans must come to the veterans' office at the Marin Civic Center. Burdick said a service officer will make home calls to disabled veterans.

In the office, no appointments are necessary, and Burdick said the waits usually are short.

Veterans should bring with them their discharge papers. If the benefits involve dependents, veterans should bring with them marriage certificates, birth certificates or divorce papers, if these apply. If veterans do not have such papers, the office will help them get them, Burdick said.

In addition to educational benefits, Burdick listed five other benefit programs still available to veterans of all wars. These include:

REAL ESTATE LOANS

The Veterans Administration will back a lending agency's loan for up to $12,500, although the loan can be considerably higher. Additionally, the Federal Housing Administration will insure home loans for up to $33,000 at a maximum interest rate of 9 per cent with a low down payment required. These loans can be issued in addition to the Veterans Administration guaranteed loans which require no down payment.

On the state level, veterans may apply for real estate loans for up to $25,000 at 4.75 per cent interest. The loans can be taken out in addition to any mortgages insured through either the federal GI loan bill or by the Federal Housing Administration.

The loans are available to veterans applying within 25 years following release from active military duty, but there is no time limit for veterans wounded in service or prisoners of war.

However, syndicated columnist Earl G. Waters, whose column appears in the Independent-Journal, reported Tuesday that only 20 per cent or less of the Vietnam veterans will ever get a California veterans home loan, and those that are granted have been subjected to unwarranted delays of five or more months.

Waters said this is among the findings of a report just released by the Assembly Committee on Governmental Administration, which detailed a lengthy list of shortcomings and mismanagement in the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Jack Johnson, manager of the billion-dollar lending program, explained, according to Waters, that lack of funds was caused by an unforseen increase in loan applications caused by the 25-year limit on eligibility for World War II and Korean veterans, the increase in loan amount ot $25,000, tight money, the rise in interest rates of private lenders, and the end of U.S. pariticpation in the Vietnam war.

Burdick said he did not know if Waters conclusion was right, but he noted that there is a backlog of processed applications dating back to Jan. 1, 1974 that lack funds.

George J. Zisler, district manager of the Cal-Vet Loan Program in Concord, said $50,000,000 in state general obligation bonds were sold Tuesday and that funding will be available starting in September for applications processed through March 1974.

Last June a $350,000,000 bond issue was approved to fund the loan program but Zisler didn't know when the next bond sale would be.

DISABILITY COMPENSATION

Veterans injured or who contract diseases while on active duty are eligible for disability compensation. The amount of compensation is determined by a rating of each disability by an adjudication board in the Veterans Administration regional office in San Francisco.

Compensation ranges from $32 a month for a 10 per cent disability to $584 per month for a 100 per cent disability.

Veterans with service-connected injuries and diseases rated at 30 per cent disability or more are also eligible for tuition and up to 48 months of subsistence aid while undergoing vocational rehabilitation training.

DISABILITY PENSION

Veterans with nonservice connected disabilities are eligible for federal pension assistance determined on the basis of income.

A single veteran earning $2,600 a year can receive a $28 a month pension and a maximum of $143 a month if his annual income is $300 or less. A veteran with three or more dependents earning less than $300 annually can receive a $164 monthly pension and $49 a month if his income is no more than $3,800 annually.

Those veterans on pension who are totally disabled can also receive up to $110 more a month to pay for convalescent care.

MEDICAL-DENTAL CARE

All veterans are eligible for comprehensive health and psychiatric care at any of the Veterans Hospitals. There are four in Northern California; San Francisco, Palo Alto, Livermore and Martinez.

Although veterans suffering from war-incurred disabilities are never refused service, the admitting doctors at the individual hospitals can turn away other veterans depending on available bed space and the waiting lists for particular health services.

Additionally, veterans are eligible for dental treatment within one year after their discharge but are only treated once for a single ailment unless it was war-inflicted damage.

INSURANCE

While World War II veterans were insured for up to $10,000 during active duty and afterwards through the federally operated GI Insurance Program, Korean and Vietnam veterans are eligible for up to $15,000 insurance coverage through the commercial Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Program.

Full-time active duty group coverage can be converted to an individual policy at standard premium rates, regardless of health, with any of the participating companies licensed to do business in the vetrran's state within 120 days after a veteran's discharge.

Burdick, 52, county veterans service director for the past 12 years and himself a veteran of World War II, said his office had 26,999 contacts in the last fiscal year.

Asked whether his ofice was able to help all of them, Burdick smiled and retorted, "I don't know, but we sure tried."

Housing Workers Ratify Contract

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Housing Authority yesterday ratified a three-year contract with clerical and maintenance workers.

The commissioners' action ended a six-week strike by Local 29 of the Office and Professional Workers and Local 18 of the Building Service Employes Unions.

The two unions had approved the contracts at membership meetings Friday.

The contract with Local 29 gives office workers a 7.5 per cent pay increase for 1974 and contains a provision for a salary hike in 1975 equivalent to what similar workers will receive at Oakland City Hall. In 1976, talks will be resumed on salaries.

The Local 18 contract provides a 72-cent an hour wage increase for 1974. The 1975 increases will be determined by rate of pay given similar workers in city government.

The third year salary raise will be negotiated.

Hearing Set On Sausalito Ferry Site

A public hearing on the environmental impact report on the controversial permanent ferry terminal proposed for Sausalito will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Golden Gate Bridge District's toll plaza headquarters.

The report concedes the terminal will cause increased vehicular and tourist traffic, noise and air pollution, but says these adverse effects will be more than offset regionally because the expanded ferry system will lower air pollution by encouraging people to use the ferry instead of driving.

Hundreds of Sausalito citizens, however, have objected the new ferries will overwhelm downtown with visitors. The city council has filed suit in Marin Superior Court to halt the bridge district from building the terminal unless it gives the city control over the ferry system.

The $48,000 report by Wilsey and Ham of Foster City estimates the maximum number of ferry passengers that could accumulate in the downtown area at one time would go from the current 582 to 1,500 with the new vessels. The present single ferry carries a maximum of 575 persons, while each of the three new ones being built will carry up to 750.

The new $4 million ferries not only are bigger, but at 25 knots are twice as fast as the present vessel.

Put another way, the new terminal would mean a maximum of 11,250 riders a day could come to Sausalito, up from the present 6,325, according to the report.

The document, as reported last month by the Independent-Journal, also cautions that the increased tourist traffic would create "substantial" pressure for more than 100,000 square feet of new commercial space downtown. The area now has about 150,000 square feet of commercial space.

The report also points to the district's power under state law to build the terminal despite Sausalito's objections.

The $1.3 million terminal, at the same site as the present temporary float, is scheduled to open in the spring of 1976.

City officials last week asked the bridge district to shift the hearing to Central School, but the district's attorney said it was too late to make the change because legal notices of the session already had been published. The city's request came one month after the district announced the hearing would be held at its toll plaza offices.

Bridge directors, meeting as a committee of the whole, also will discuss the terminal at 10 a.m. Friday, again in toll plaza offices. The staff will report on how plans for the terminals at Sausalito, Larkspur and San Francisco could be trimmed to cut costs.

Fairfax Plans A Pet Parade

A "pet parade" for youngsters up to 14 years of age and their pets will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Fairfax Town Hall, according to the Fairfax Merchants and Businesspeople's Association.

Along with awards for best-dressed entrants, prizes will be given to the dog with the biggest paws, the cat with the bushiest tail, and the most colorful fish, according to an association spokesman.

In addition, a prize will be awarded for the cleverest people-powered float.

The event is sponsored by Martin's Pet Supplies, Gerties Aquatics and Fastidious Fido and the merchants association.

Cable TV Use Recommended To Mill Valley

The City of Mill Valley should enter the cable television field with locally produced programs on civic events, local government and the arts.

That is one major conclusion reached by a seven-member task force in a 40-page report presented to the city council last night. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1)

The report, eight months in the making, deals with two topics: whether Tele-Vue Systems, which operates cable TV in Mill Valley, should get a rate boost, and how the city should regulate cable TV in the future.

Councilmen set a special meeting Sept. 30 to discuss the second question.

They put off until Sept. 3 a decision on a permanent rate increase, but they did extend through the end of October a temporary hike which had been due to expire Sept. 30. This maintains the present rate of $5.50 per month.

The major recommendation of the committee is to form a new city-appointed group to oversee city participation in cable programming.

The new committee should produce 10 pilot programs, at a cost of $6,138, including the broadcasting of council meetings, the report said.

Ultimately, the city should consider building a video center, perhaps at the library, and make it available to citizens, the report said.

Besides producing its own shows, the video committee would help residents make and air programs of their own.

Part of the funds for these activities could come from fees paid the city by Tele-Vue under its franchise agreement, the report suggested.

Councilmen, at least one of whom saw the report for the first time yesterday, said they wanted more time to study it.

The discussion was videotaped by a Marin Community Video crew and will be braodcast sometime between 8 and 10 p.m. on Aug. 28 on cable channel 3 for subscribers in Southern Marin.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

RIGHTS — Met in closed session for 35 minutes to consider applicants for the Human Rights Committee but took no action.

NOISE — Told the planning commission to look into a temporary noise ordinance for enactment until a permanent law is drafted as part of the city's new general plan.

BAND — Gave permission to the Old Mill Tavern to conduct a one-hour live band test to check for noise leaks. No date was specified.

LOTS — Approved creation of two lots from one at 122 Circle Avenue, both less than the 20,000 square foot minimum required by the city's slope ordinance. Robert E. Capron dissented in the 3-1 vote.

PLANNING — Announced applications are being taken to fill a vacancy on the planning commission.

PARK — Applied for $73,000 in state funds to stabilize Warner Creek in Boyle Park and pave a parking lot there; the money is to come from the recent state park bond issue.

TAX — Postponed to an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow setting of a 1974-75 tax rate. The council also will discuss whether to continue the sewer service charge instituted last year.

Councilman Ivan S. Poutiatine was absent.

Senate Confirms Economic Adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has confirmed Alan Greenspan as chairman of President Ford's council of economic advisers.

Greenspan, a New York economic consultant, was opposed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who criticized Greenspan's positions against consumer protection bills and antitrust laws.

Police Met With Bottle Barrage

San Rafael police, pelted with beer bottles and furniture as they broke into a Terra Linda residence Saturday to end a rowdy teen-age party, were forced to use Mace and nightsticks to disperse the crowd, police officials reported today.

The brawl at 43 Skyview Terrace at 10:46 p.m. Saturday resulted in the arrest of two San Rafael men and a 16-year-old, police said.

Timothy Neil Williams, 20, of 43 Skyview Terrace, and Richard Dale Nolan, 20, of 5935 Redwood Highway, were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of disturbing the peace and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. They posted $500 bail each to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

The 16-year-old was cited to Marin Juvenile Hall for assaulting a police officer.

San Rafael police, saying a report on the incident was not ready yesterday, released today this account of events:

Officers Brian Bodily and Walter Kosta appeared at the residence at about 10 p.m. after a neighbor reported teen-agers were urinating in the street, drag racing up Skyview Terrace, and disturbing the peace at a noisy party.

They were met at the door with catcalls, obscenities and a barrage of beer bottles. Kosta drew his revolver while trying to arrest a 16-year-old who was attempting to strike him. The youth broke away and fled.

The two officers, battered by punches and flying bottles, returned to a patrol car and called for aid. Seven fellow officers, two sheriff's deputies, and a San Rafael reserve officer appeared to help quell the party.

The police broke open the door with their shoulders, and again were pelted with bottles and flying glass.

According to officer Bodily: "Officer Cunha, Kosta and myself entered the house and were met by physical resistance. Numerous subjects were hit with nightsticks and in order to back the group away from the door officer Cunha and myself used Mace on numerous people.

"The subjects were throwing numerous bottles and furniture at us while we were in the house. We gained the advantage and began pushing the group out the back door."

Several officers and Nolan were treated at local hospitals for minor cuts and abrasions, police said.

Bodily's official report on the matter concludes that teenagers in Terra Linda "are getting more and more aggressive toward police officers while parties are being broken up.

"There are numerous people who should go to jail, but it is obvious we have no means of holding, detaining and transporting prisoners at the scene. It is my opinion that in the future any type of party in Terra Linda involving our 'locals' should be met with a firm, and if necessary forceful approach, as displayed by the officers this evening.

"The officers were assaulted and returned with enough force to restore order."

Judge Lets Road Case Go To Trial

A Marin Superior Court judge today refused to order the County of Marin to honor its agreement with Marin General Hospital over the relocation of Bon Air Road.

Instead, Judge E. Warren McGuire ordered a suit by the Marin Hospital District against the county to go to trial in early December.

The district sued the county in June, claiming county officials reneged on a promise to move Bon Air Road to make room for expansion at the hospital.

County lawyers countered that the county is not obligated to relocate the road until the hospital district floats a bond issue to finance the new wing.

McGuire's order, however, agreed with the hospital district that it has no obligation to put the bonds to voters before the county moves the road.

Nevertheless, McGuire declined to side with the hospital district, saying instead that the suit should be decided in a trial.

A bond issue tentatively is scheduled for November 1975.

Household Foil Phase Out Set

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Aluminum Co. of America has announced plans to phase out production and sale of household aluminum foil.

Alcoa, which has been making the foil since 1931, said it made the decision because of a shortage of metal and capital funds.

It said it would continue to produce the foil for industrial uses.

Sixth Person Files For Cotati Council

Terrence L. Collins, a 32-year-old Army master sergeant, today became the sixth person to apply for appointment to the Cotati City Council.

Collins is a resident of Holiday Park, the city's only tract home development, and was active in the recall effort against three young councilmen last year.

He said today that, unlike many other recall backers, he had some sympathy for the embattled young councilmen, but felt they displayed too much immaturity for the jobs they held.

Collins and five others seek the two seats vacated by Mayor Stephen Laughlin and councilman Annette Lombardi, who resigned Aug. 7 after being arrested on suspicion of removing marijuana plants from a city police locker.

The city council will decide at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today whether to make appointmetns or to hold a special election to fill the vacant seats.

Meanwhile, municipal court officials in Santa Rosa reported that the cases against the two former councilmen and planning commissioner Eve Kitchen are still being held up pending a decision from Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes on whether to prosecute.

The marijuana plants had been confiscated from a house occupied by Miss Kitchen and five other persons. She resigned her city position when the councilmen quit, but later withdrew the resignation.

Hawkes indicated yesterday he is leaning toward prosecution, although he said a final decision must await his complete review of the case.

Range Fire Contained

TRAVIS AFB (UPI) — A range fire which burned 80 acres at the Russ Noonan Ranch near here was contained yesterday by 50 firemen from Six Solano County fire departments.

$157,000 Haul By Bank Bandit

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tall, dapper man walked into a bank last night, told an assistant manager he had four sticks of dynamite in his attache case, then waited patiently for 30 minutes while she fetched $157,000 from a vault, police said.

He fled with the money, but left the "dynamite" — four red cylinders which the police said were railroad flares.

"I'd say that was quite a haul," a detective said. "Your average bank job is usually $4,000-$5,000 — this one was unusual."

Federal Financing Subject Of Report

The Shoreline Unified School District board will hear a report from Supt. Kenneth E. Barnes on federal financing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at West Marin School, Point Reyes Station.

Barnes recently attended a conference in Salt Lake City on Public Law 874, convering financial aid to districts serving pupils from federal installations.

GIVE IT A SHOVE — Enthusiastic girls do their bit to move giant earth ball downfield during game at YMCA barbecue.

YMCA RECOGNITION BARBECUE

It Was Fun Time For Volunteers

Sunday's high winds failed to spoil the fun for members and their families at the first annual Volunteer Recognition Barbecue of the YMCA of Marin, held at Stafford Lake in Novato.

Softball, earth ball, watermelon seed-spitting contest, and other contests set the pace for the afternoon of fellowship. "Many of our volunteers work year round for the Y, and their families never know what they are doing. One of our goals for the barbecue was to acquaint our volunteers, staff and families — and in that sense, it was very successful," said Sheryl Montez, YMCA program director.

Awards for distinguished service to the organization went to 19 persons, with the top awards given to William Maier of San Anselmo, adult, and David Anderson of San Anselmo, youth volunteer.

Maier has served with the Y since it opened in Marin 28 years ago in the old railroad depot in Fairfax, and has been a board member, coordinator of exchange programs with Osaka and Europe, leader of high school youth groups, leader of caravans and river raft trips and "always the chef" at any 'Y' parties," according to director Montez.

Anderson, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School this September, has served as chairman of the Youth Committee, an organizer this year of the new CORE group for junior high youth, and delegate for two years to the statewide Y-run Youth in Government program in Sacramento.

Maier and Anderson received engraved paperweights and their names on a perpetual plaque for the YMCA office.

Other volunteers honored were:

Roc Morgan of Novato, board and program committee member, and active organizer locally of the National Youth Project Using Minibikes (NYPUM) which is aimed at troubled junior high aged youth;

Esther Taylor of Greenbrae, wife of YMCA board chairman Fayette Taylor, who has given valued help to the office staff;

Ken Navas of San Rafael, Gene Youth of Novato and Wes Olsen of San Rafael, who have given outstanding assistance in the Y Indian Guide father-son program;

Chris Schau of Terra Linda and Bill Cooper of San Rafael, outstanding contributors to the Youth Committee;

Elizabeth Blickman of San Anselmo, sophomore at California State University, San Francisco, who has helped drum up funding and volunteers for New Horizons, an activity program for elementary age youngsters;

Matt Hanzlik and David Dunbar of Novato and Candy Reed of Houston, Tex., a Dominican College student, who have assisted the Y camp staff and served as caravan leaders, as well as contributing to the NYPUM program;

Kathy Burkhardt and Marc Spinner of San Rafael and Matt McKenzie of Mill Valley, active in the CIT (Counselors In Training) program which helps the paid staff at day and resident Y camps;

Carol Harris and Diane Nichols of San Rafael and Mark Bijok of Mill Valley, leaders for the CORE program for junior high youth.

Certificates of appreciation were given to the honorees.

Barbecue arrangements were made by Ellawynn Taylor of San Rafael, program committee chairman, Roc Morgan and Richard Lockman of San Rafael.

WINDY, BUT FUN — Friends and staff members of the YMCA of Marin had a happy afternoon beside Stafford Lake, Novato, at the Y's first annual Volunteer Recognition Barbecue Sunday.

Marin Women

Improved Communities Her Goal

By PAT BALMES

With hundreds of millions of dollars to work with, Liz Tapscott of Tiburon plans ways to improve and develop urban communities in four Western States.

She has been appointed assistant regional administrator for Community Planning and Development for the San Francisco Region of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It's a lot more work," said Mrs. Bill Tapscott, who previously headed half the function. (She has held high-level administrative positions in government since 1965). "Until we move the offices together, I'm getting my exercise running between the north and south sides of the federal building, because the planning and management office just merged with the development office."

INTEGRATING two staffs and learning new programs, she saves time by riding the bus to work so she can read her in-box material.

However Mrs. Tapscott does not believe in taking work home. She, her husband and her mother Nibs McGuire live on a lagoon at Paradise Cay. The Tapscotts' weekends are oriented to Elica, an Islander 30 racing yacht moored outside their glass-walled living room.

The Tapscotts participate in Friday night races of the Paradise Harbor Yacht Club and compete in YRA regattas.

Liz Tapscott comes to her new position at an interesting time. Legislation, about to become law, will change the way HUD deals with its clients, the local communities, she said.

"The new federalism is to put decision-making back to the local level. An excellent idea; it will give local communities more flexibility and responsibility. The new law requires citizens to participate in planning," she said.

THERE WILL BE more equitable distribution on the basis of local need and more local discretion on how to use the $8.6 billion HUD will distribute nationally over the next three years, according to Mrs. Tapscott.

"The whole concept is mind-boggling. Instead of in-depth HUD review of local applications for HUD categorical money, cities will now submit minimal applications and proclaimers assuring that statutory requirements have been met, such as citizen participation and relocation," she said.

"Let's take Marin County. It has been averaging $369,000 each year for urban renewal in Marin City, water and sewers in San Rafael and Open Space throughout the county," she said.

UNDER THE NEW law, Marin County will be eligible for a block grant to elected officials who will identify needs and set priorities, instead of HUD, she said.

A big advantage to the local community is it can concentrate resources. Funds can be distributed more equitably than depending on availability of categorical funding, she said.

It may be possible also to qualify Marin for discretionary funds in the future, she indicated.

IN THE LATE 1940s, Liz and Bill Tapscott were the first married students at University of Arizona. A native of Flagstaff, Mrs. Tapscott earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts and education and then taught school.

Innovative in teaching children of different learning abilities in her classroom, she was frustrated when her supervisor was disinterested in her findings.

"What do you do to make them listen? You go back to school and get the degrees," she said. She spent the next four years at night school at Arizona State University earn-

Can A Girl Honor Her Parents If They Never Did Honor Her?

DEAR RAP:

I love my parents, but I could never please them. When I got B's in school, they bawled me out for not earning A's. I was elected senior senator and they were upset because I didn't run for student body president, but then they added, "Oh well, you wouldn't have won, anyway."

No matter how hard I worked, I was never as good as the neighbor' kids. And when I fell in love with Tony, who is a great guy with a lot of ambition and a good job already, they hit the roof because he wasn't of our religion.

We got married in Tony's church and my folks wouldn't attend. We're going to have a baby and they say if he or she isn't brought up in their religion (which isn't mine anymore — it's too rigid and condemning), they won't be grandparents.

The Bible says, "Honor they father and thy mother. . .," but when they never honored me, is it wrong to feel a little relieved that our child won't have to take their put-downs as I did? — PREFER MY IN-LAWS, BUT FEELING GUILTY

DEAR PMILBFG:

Why feel guilty over a human reaction? "Honor thy father and mother" doesn't mean "succumb to dictatorship." — HELEN

DEAR P. ECT.:

Why not turn the tables? Tell your folks you'll accept them as grandparents "only if". . .and don't mince the "ifs!" — SUE

RAP:

A group of us girls, ages 21 to 24, got together to discuss your recent Survey of Unmarried Teenagers. You reported some 60 per cent of kids, aged 13 to 19, were still virgin. We question that.

Our own private survey indicated not one of us had been virgin since age 17. Of the 21 we questioned, none has had children, 15 are on the pill and the other six use some other method of birth control. We are all respected people from good homes and have good jobs. We don't "sleep around" and several are engaged, but we all think sex is natural, if you care about each other.

Are you sure you didn't concentrate on the under-16 group in your questionnaire? — JOAN from Trenton, N.J.

DEAR JOAN:

Our survey of unmarried teen-agers included some 22 per cent in the 18-19 group, 24 per cent under age-15, and the rest (54 per cent) in the middle-teen years. We'll admit we too were somewhat surprised at the high rate of virginity (though it dropped to under 49 per cent in the over-17 section), but we feel these anonymous young people were perhaps more honest than they might be in a gathering of their peers. — HELEN

Safety Urged During Month

Take a vacation from danger this summer.

As you join the increasing number of people who take time off to play in August, beware of accidents that can maim and claim lives.

That is the warning of the Department of Safety and Research of the Combined Insurance Company of America. A study of accident statistics has led the safety experts to urge every man, woman and child to take special precautions during August becuase it is one of the peak months for deaths in auto accidents, from drowning or in falls.

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

Plastic Furniture, Like It Or Not, Here To Stay

By EMILY MALINO
(Distributed by United Features Syndicate)

One of the big reasons why some folks resist plastic furniture is because they can't handle a whole roomful at a time. And why should they? After all, pure anything can be a bore, and pure plastic is no exception to the rule.

Plastic furniture, in spite of the current shortages in raw materials, is here to stay. After all, it does make sense to make furniture in the same way that we make almost everything else these days, from cars to boats to showers to tubs to bowls and glasses and, certainly, toys.

Molded or extruded plastics, the process whereby a liquid or semiliquid material is converted with the help of heat and pressure through a preformed mold or extrusion, into a chair or a table, is certainly more sensible than having to put legs and frames together to make furniture the way our Founding Fathers did 200 years ago and more.

But simple and unadorned plastic furniture continues to look oversimple and far too plain for many of us to accept as a total style for a room. I've discovered, however, that mixing plastics with other styles can be the answer to using these marvelous pieces successfully.

Take a tiny dining room, for example. The one I designed is in a typical, anonymous new home, with square walls and a picture window. I found a fantastic cast-iron fireplace and painted it white, to give pizazz and nostalgia to the space; it works well, thanks to the fine and inexpensive new flue built through the roof.

I painted the chimney wall dark, to give focus and drama to the room, as well as to silhouette the lines of the antique fireplace.

In front of this large and imposing edifice, I used a very simple white plastic dining table, which doubles for games or work when dinner is over. With the table I used two white plastic chairs and, as a total contrast, two early American ladder-back chairs.

The rest of the room is treated simply. White vertical blinds in the window add height to the low ceiling and match the walls, extending and stretching the space. A simple hooked rug gives texture and color to the floor, defining the dining area.

Lots of plants fill in the gaps. Some of them are in pots on movable pedestals; others are in mobile planters of the same white plastic as the table and chairs, so that the entire garden can be moved about as needed to take advantage of sun and light and the need for change that plants and people share.

The tall fireplace is offset by the plants and by the table group, where the highback chairs contrast with the low modern forms to give variety and balance to the space. The ornate ladder-back shape of the chairs contrast pleasantly with the unadorned white plastic.

The same kind of balance, between old and new, high and low, can be designed with other shapes and styles. I've blended plastic with French chairs, or with Chippendale or Queen Anne. A plastic coffee table looks super with Victorian wicker, for instance, or with Mission oak.

In other words, experiment and enjoy! Just keep basic guidelines of balance and scale at the back of your mind and let the rest of your imagination take over.

Announcing Birth To Unwed Mother

Is it proper for the parents of an unwed mother to announce the birth of their grandchild, if they'd like to? Etiquette authority Amy Vanderbilt gives the socially acceptable procedure.

"If you will just tell your friends and neighbors that your grandchild has arrived and that, of course, you are happy about it, most will understand and admire your daughter's courage in keeping her child (as many young women are doing today in these circumstances)," Miss Vancerbilt told a reader in her colum in the September issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

She Handles Millions To Help Communities

ing a doctorate in education in educational administration.

Mrs. Tapscott became the State of Arizona director of elementary education and later assistant state superintendent in charge of federal programs.

IN 1965, when Masonite Corporation transferred her husband to Hawaii, Mrs. Tapscott became director of compensatory education for the Hawaii Department of Education.

"Then the government announced a new Fulbright Scholarship to send school administrators to India to study and bring back a better understanding of India to teach in our school systems," she said. Mrs. Tapscott had to give up her job to study four months in India.

Bill Tapscott was transferred to Chicago next. His wife applied to the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare there. Her new job was administering federal programs dealing with state employees in jobs similar to the ones she had held for Arizona and Hawaii.

"HUD model cities program asked me for technical assistance. One hundred and fifty cities were selected and received almost a block grant.

"A CITY WOULD come in with a plan to eliminate slums and blight and improve living conditions for target areas. Cities were using a great deal of this money for education. I was giving more time to HUD than to HEW, so I transferred," she explained.

As HUD Human Resources State Participation Coordinator, she was a "money-getter."

"We wanted to get enough resources into the target area to improve its educational level, employee opportunities and housing, all that would save an urban community," she said.

She tapped HEW, U.S. Department of Agriculture, U.S. Department of Labor and law enforcement.

THEN HER HUSBAND was transferred to San Francisco in 1971 and Mrs. Tapscott received a lateral transfer.

"Our job at the regional level is to distribute funds to its communities and states for all community planning and development programs, interpret policy and give specialized assistance, through the two area offices," she said.

When her boss was appointed director of the Peace Corps Botswanna, Africa project in 1973, Mrs. Tapscott became assistant regional administrator for community development.

In her new position under Robert Baida, Western region administrator of HUD, her responsibilities include model cities urban renewal, rehabilitation loans, resource development, relocation and property acquisition.

SHE WILL ALSO administer planning and management assistance to state and local government and review environmental impact statements.

"When the new legislation comes into effect, our heaviest emphasis in the next six months will be in training staff. So you see where teaching background helps," said the HUD administrator.

Two Trade Vows In Corte Madera

Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera was the setting of the Aug. 10 wedding of Janice Lynne Opheim to Jeffrey George Nedd, both of Corte Madera.

Janice, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Opheim of Corte Madera, chose Mrs. Darellyn Kott of Sylmar as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Mitchell of Corte Madera and Leslie Haynes of San Rafael.

Jeffrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Geogre Nedd of Corte Madera. He chose Alan Eichstaedt of Santa Rosa as his best man. The bride's brother, James Opheim of Corte Madera, and Michael Dunsing of San Rafael were ushers.

The bride was graduated from Redwood High School and attended the College of Marin. She is employed at the Bank of California in San Francisco.

Janice is also the sister of David Opheim of Corte Madera and she is the granddaughter of Clara P. Opheim of San Rafael.

Jeffrey was also graduated from Redwood High School and the College of Marin. He is now employed with Harper Robinson and Company in San Francisco.

He is the brother of Barbara Nedd of Corte Madera and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fletcher of Sonoma.

The newlyweds left for Lake Tahoe after a wedding reception at the Art and Garden Center in Ross. They will live in San Rafael.

'The People's Choice' Fleece The People

We complain about high taxes. We grumble about inflation. But we send to Sacramento and Washington men and women who vote for lavish spending that hikes our taxes and adds to inflation.

At no time is this more evident than right now, as the California Legislature goes into high gear to pass bills before the Aug. 31 deadline.

In the last-minute rush, many bad bills go through. It was so when the Legislature met for only six months. It is even more so with the Legislature met for only six months. It is even more so with the Legislature meeting for a year and eight months — because there has been more time to introduce bills, hence there are a lot more measures lying around awaiting last-minute action.

LET'S LOOK at just a few of the measures the two houses in Sacramento have shoved through since they went back to work after the July recess.

Some of them are outright appropriation bills.

For instance, AB 4439 (Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento) appropriates $131,000 for two centers to treat critically ill newborn babies. This passed the Assembly without a dissenting vote. AB 4507 (Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco) appropriates $45,000 to complete the Earl Warren Oral History Project at University of California's Bancroft Library, a previous appropriation for the purpose having all been spent. There was a single vote against this one.

AB 4182 (Paul Bannai, R-Gardena) appropriates $5 million to create a state mortgage insurance program. This also passed the Assembly unanimously. AB 4134 (another by McCarthy) appropriates $200,000 to set up four or five new migrant child care centers. Six assemblymen voted against it.

Sailing through the Assembly with only eight opposing votes was AB 3369 (John F. Foran, D-San Francisco), appropriating millions for new housing programs for the elderly and handicapped.

The Senate overwhelmingly passed AB 2599 (Frank Lanterman, R-Pasadena) appropriating $2.5 million to expand the SHARE program for tutoring "under-achieving" school children. And there were only two votes in the Senate against SB 2175 (George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco), appropriating $45,470,000 for bilingual education.

SOME CREATE programs with unspecifid future costs, either to the state or to local jurisdictions.

Among these is AB 3732 (Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa) requiring appointment of an attorney for a juvenile at every stage of juvenile court proceedings, which passed the lower house 68-1. Also AB 4389 (March K. Fong, D-Oakland) creating the California Commission on Nutrition to "develop a long-range nutrition plan," which passed the Assembly 56-18. Also AB 2998 (Howard Berman, D-Sherman Oaks), requiring that community colleges pay all part-time and temporary employees at the same rate as fulltime employees, which the Assembly approved 51-19.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST "ripoff" by the current Legislature was the $1 million pension bonus plan the legislators voted for themselves. This was to enable those who are rejected by the voters after short service to cahs in on pension benefits intended originally for those who had served in the Legislature for long periods.

Assemblyman Robert McLennan, R-Paramount, had qualms of conscience about that. He introduced a bill (AB 4506) to repeal it. So what happened? By vote of 29 to 24, the Assembly refused to even allow his repealer a committee hearing.

Were we complaining about taxes? Grumbling about inflation? Well, what can we expect when we elect to office characters who are so loose with our money?

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Our Legislators' Nest Eggs Unmatched Anywhere Else

By K.W. LEE
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — The retirement system the California Legislature created in 1947 for its members, constitutional officers and certain legislative employes may be incomparable.

In many other states, there's no pension plan for legislators.

THE AVERAGE California taxpayer would have to contribute $9,390 a year to a private pension plan to reap benefits this state's legislators receive for only $768 a year, a Sacramento office of a national insurance company handling pension plans estimates.

Under the California legislative plan a 36-year-old man can receive a pension bonus of $146,995 — or $6,125 annually for the next 24 years until he reaches age 60, or $8,292 a year, plus annual cost-of-living increases for life.

Not surprisingly, the cost of administering the plan has been soaring.

Since 1949, two years after the system was established, the state taxpayers have pumped $6.8 million into the fund to keep it solvent for 192 current members and 122 retired members and their widows.

But the nearly $7 million in taxes poured into the fund apparently isn't enough.

TO PREVENT the system from going bankrupt, the taxpayers — if a pending bill is approved — must pay an additional $15 million in the coming five years.

This bill, already passed by the Senate, assumes that legislators will be giving themselves 10 per cent pay raises every two years, the constitutional limit granted by the voters in the mid-1960s.

The current salary, on which the legislative pension is based, is $19,200. It will go to $21,120 in December this year. Another bill, now pending, would increase that to $23,040 on the first day of 1975.

This last fiscal year, legislators contributed about $125,000, while retired members and widows were drawing $869,803. That year, taxpayers paid into the system $640,000 — more than five times the current members' share of the cost.

THE LEGISLATURE has decided the widening gap between contributions and payments must be bridged.

So this fiscal year, taxpayers' share of the skyrocketing cost will jump to $1,143,000 while the current members' share will remain about $125,000.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Thinks Nixon Also Has Other Complexes

I agree with you wholeheartedly in regard to your editorial (Aug. 10) about Richard Nixon's "martyr complex."

I believe that our former president is suffering from a few more psychological problems. For instance, taping all of his conversations with everyone who he spoke to, as if he were anxious to rap his visitors or to eventually have a hold over them in some way. This alone is a classic case of paranoia.

Mr. Nixon's secretiveness about the war, his lack of association with his own staff, his aloofness with members of Congress and the Senate, prove that he felt above everyone.

As you recall, Adolph Hitler had the same complexes.

The thousands of dollars spent on his vacation homes, without any regard to the expense in taxes to the American people.

I was completely overwhelmed yesterday when I heard that Mr. Nixon had called President Ford and complimented him on his speech before the joint session of Congress. A normal man couldn't have watched or listened to the man who replaced him.

Relocation Of Pool Ignores Citizens' Study

It was with great surprise and loss of faith in our board of supervisors that I read in today's paper that the 50 meter pool meant for McInnis Park will be constructed at Indian Valley Colleges.

It makes one wonder the merits of even bothering with citizen committees. Hundreds of Marin County citizens spend countless hours researching and presenting their arguments to the board of supervisors during the past few years concerning the merits of the pool in the location at McInnis Park. While the particular pool site wandered a little from Civic Center to McInnis Park, the concept was to keep it in total family recreation complex, convenient to the heart of Marin with its use destined to serve the greatest number of residents for the greatest number of hours per year.

I could see from your article there is already a battle on the number of hours available for public use. I venture to say it won't be the last time we hear that problem discussed!

. . . It seems a wonder that anything can get done when the same issues keep coming up for new and different votes once the citizens have quieted down and are resting on the premise that all is well. Thanks, Bob Roumiguiere, for your continued support and not changing your vote.

Bouquet For Column On 'People's Schools'

When you give out your bouquets for jobs well done, be sure to give one to Bryce Anderson for all his efforts to improve our schools through his columns, "The People's Schools."

We regret he will not write any more of the school articles. He has done much "leg work" for us the general public. He has told us of pending bills pertaining to education; the status of teacher tenure; what the CTA, NEA and AFT were planning.

Mr. Anderson has tried to wake us up that the public schools do belong to the people through their elected school board members and that teachers' unions should not have veto power over them.

He has made us concerned with declining school enrollments combined with ironclad tenure laws which have virtually closed the door to teaching career for recent college graduates.

Please thank him for us all. Perhaps too, someone will pick up where he has left off.

Director Should Be Proud Of His Players

I found Gerald Genese's review of the Sunset Players' production of "Mame" very upsetting. I saw the play with five friends and everybody in the audience, including us, gave them a standing ovation. The play was excellently done.

. . .All I'm saying is that I and a lot of other people think that Gerald Genese's review is too harsh and is making the Sunset Players' play, "Mame," seem as if it were put on by a bunch of kindergarteners who didn't know what they were doing. We think that Ed Decker did an excellent job and that he should be proud of himself and of his Sunset Players. Because we are!

Reporting Of Personnel Hearing Disputed

On Aug. 13, the Marin County Personnel Commission met to hear an appeal filed by Mrs. Marie Kniveton seeking reemployment rights with the County of Marin.

I represented Mrs. Aaron, department head of the Marin County Criminal Justice Planning Agency. She was not able to attend the hearing due to prior commitments of which she had informed both the chairman of the commission and the director of the County Personnel Department . . .

The facts are simply that Mrs. Kniveton worked as a secretary-stenographer in this office from June of 1971 through Mary of 1974, at which time she gave her resignation, giving two days' notice. The letter of resignation, dated May 29th, was to be in effect on May 31. On May 30, Mrs. Kniveton, through the county personnel office, requested that Mrs. Aaron sign a statement granting her re-employment rights. Mrs. Aaron refused on the grounds that two days' notice does not constitute sufficient notice, particularly at a peak period, and therefore she was not in good standing.

The commission hearing was covered by a reporter from the Independent Journal, Erik Ingram. His story appeared on the front page of today's (Aug. 14) Independent Journal under the caption, 'Criminal Justice Agency Head Scored By Former Secretary."

The heading of the article mis-states what, in fact, transpired at the hearing. Further, the balance of the article is filled with mis-quotes, statements and words taken out of context, and statements that were not made at that hearing at all.

The next to the last paragraph quotes me as saying "the atmosphere" created by Mrs. Aaron was, in part, due to the pressures of her job. I made no such statement. I did say that since Mrs. Kniveton's original employment in 1971 through her resignation in 1974, she had seemingly lost a great deal of tolerance in being able to deal with the pressures of the office . . .

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

Our country is a little short on former presidents now, but we have enough ex-vice presidents to start an alumni association.

It will take awhile for the new president to lay the foundation for his regime. Who'll be first to call it the Ford Foundation?

Political campaigns are heating up, but a lot of voters are still undecided. They can't decide where to go fishing on election day.

Many politicians won't accept money from milk producers now if it's handed on a silver platter. But they'll take the platter.

Human Presidency Restored As Gerald Ford's First Act

There were so many good things in and about Gerald Ford's opening public speech as president Aug. 12 that it's difficult to know just where to start in appraising it.

First, probably, is that he got his priorities right.

Beyond any doubt, the first problem facing the new administration is the inflation. Every effort must be bent toward bringing it under control. He recognizes this is a priority task. He is free of any hostages to fortune or campaign commitments which might get in the way of his approach to it. And (perhaps this is his greatest asset) he doesn't pretend to know the answers. This is a great, big, bruising problem which no modern western democracy has yet mastered. The only prudent thing for him to do is precisely what he has done — agree to take counsel of the top people of the country in labor, business, and economics and meanwhile call off deficit spending.

This is a common-sense approach. It is characteristic of everyting else in the speech. It was put together by a man who can and does get along with people. He knows them. He can grasp their ordinary problems. And he knows that he himself is human and hence not omniscient. It was the speech of a human being who can see himself in human scale.

THIS CAPACITY of Gerald Ford to see himself in human scale can turn into an important milestone in American history. Some historians date the imperial presidency from Franklin Delano Roosevelt. I would argue that it began with John F. Kennedy. Certainly both Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower saw themselves in hman scale. Ike and Mamie could greet distinguished guests on the front porch of the White House — without benefit of trumpets, uniforms, honor guards, and leteral red carpet. The White House was still a fairly homey place down through the Eisenhower presidency.

There were some early glimmerings of the omniscient and hence indispensable presidency in the Kennedy reign. It got more so under Lyndon Johnson, who tried to be both omniscient and omnipotent, but was saved by knowing that he wasn't. It was a bold front, but in the pinches he would listen to disagreeable and unwelcome opinion. He would have so loved to be an emperor, but wasn't.

The climax certainly came with Richard Nixon, who was surrounded for the first time in American history by courtiers dedicated to the proposition that he must always seem to be all-wise and all-powerful.

SUDDENLY, ALL THAT is gone —or most of it. Let's hope Mr. Ford also sheds the trumpets and soldiery on the back lawn of the White House. The presidency needs to be recivilianized. Mr. Ford has already proved that no man is indispensable in the White House. The United States has been through a political crisis which tested concept of the imperial presidency, and rejected it. This is like the restoration of King Charles II after the Cromwellian dictatorship. That Charles knew his history. The divine right of kings disappeared with Charles I. Charles II was most careful to avoid any attempted revival. It would not work, and he knew it.

Gerald Ford knows, and it came through loud and clear in every line of his speech, that the American system demands not an all-wise and indispensable sovereign, but a plain human person of goodwill who will take counsel of others and preside over the deliberations of state. He intends to "preside" in person over the summit conference on the economy. That in itself is an excellent omen for his presidency. His country wants someone who will preside, not rule. He looks like the right man for the job.

Cyprus Crisis Shows Value Of U.S.-Russian Detente

WASHINGTON — The proposed debate on detente, postponed by the spectacular events here at home, finds the advocates with a current proof of its benefits. The outcome of the Greek-Turkish-Cyprus crisis is dark and unpreditable. Without searching for silver linings, one aspect is evidence of the cooling influence of the Nixon-Kissinger policy of relaxation of tensions with Moscow.

Before the series of agreements with the Soviet Union and the prospect of further relaxation, it takes little imagination to see what would be part of the present Greek-Turkish showdown.

Day after day the headlines would have reported mobilization of Russian troops on the Turkish border. Or, perhaps, the movement of naval vessels on the Bulgarian border off Cyprus. In short: confrontation, which was a way of life in the era of the cold war.

The bloody mess on Cyprus in the past would have been the perfect opportunity for Moscow to square off against the United States and NATO.

IF AND WHEN the detente debate occurs, confrontation will not be the avowed goal of those in opposition. They talk about the superiority in weapons of the Soviet Union and how American negotiators allowed this to occur.

One of the shabbiest deceits was the planted story of the "secret" agreement to permit the Russians an additional 70 missiles. Quickly proved false, this nevertheless was used by the opposition with Sen. Henry M. Jackson in the lead.

If we are to revert to confrontation with a crisis every other week, an important difference should be noted. In the good old days, as seen by the big weapons lobby, it was possible to boost defense budgets without too much difficulty.

Today, with President Ford's plea for economy, Congress is cutting defense costs. Sen. John L. McClellan, chairman of the appropriations committee, has just put through a $5 billion cut in the defense budget.

This should be a lesson to the apostles of confrontation who go all-out to prove that each request for new and more powerful weapons — such as the Trident submarine with a longer-range missile — is essential if we are to stand up to the other superpower.

THE WEAPONS LOBBY has an important new recruit. Adm. Elmo Zumwalt could hardly wait to get out of his suit as chief of naval operations before he, like Oliver Twist, started to cry more, more, more.

Exceptionally intelligent, outside the cookie-cutter pattern of the joint chiefs, he will beat a powerful drum in the weapons band.

If all of the United States' land-based missiles were destroyed in a Soviet first strike — one of the dire prophecies of the weapons lobby — submarine-based missiles and the bomber force could still wipe out half the Russian population and virtually all their cities.

In light of the recent Moscow summit's failure to reach any agreement on offensive weapons, this has a catch. The Russians are now in an intensive drive to put multiple independently targeted warheads — MIRVs — on their giant missiles and thereby come even with the United States. We, at the same time, are MIRVing as fast as possible. Here is a scenario to chill the easy acceptance of a return to confrontation.

A DECADE AGO, when Gen. Curtis LeMay was Air Force chief of staff and an implacable cold-war warrior, the United States had an estimated 1,500 missiles. Brandishing the nuclear weapon, LeMay would nevertheless have hesitated to restore us to a limited use of nukes since, whatever else the consequences, it would have spoiled the overall game plan for a complete nuclear response.

Let's say that in the near future the United States has 15,000 missiles, a conservative guess. A small portion could be employed without upsetting the larger plan. That is the temptation and it is enhanced by Secy. of Defense James R. Schlesinger's proposed retargeting for a limited nuclear war.

The Greek-Turkish blowup and threat of the collapse of NATO's eastern flank is the new president's first test on the international front. But if it can mean cooperation with Moscow, rather than confrontation over a grave danger to world peace, it should prove to him the value of detente.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Aug. 20, 1964

Marin County supervisors adopted a budget of $21,261,037 for fiscal 1965, calling for a county tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

A roaring brush fire blazed for 23 hours in San Rafael's Black Canyon before being halted by 300 fire fighters. About 300 acres were blackened, but no homes were lost.

20 YEARS AGO

Aug. 20, 1954

The Defense Department lifted a military freeze on Marin City and Hilarita housing projects, clearing the way for the Marin County Housing Authority to negotiate for their purchase.

A two-state alarm was issued for Mr. and Mrs. William C. Allen of Las Vegas, Nev., accused of stealing the two children of Mrs. Allen by a former marriage from the home of their grandmother in San Rafael.

ART BUCHWALD

The Perils of Kid-Swapping (And Late Television Watching)

Nobody likes to talk about it, but there is a lot of kid-swapping going on in the United States. It isn't going on just in the suburbs or the small towns but in the larger cities as well.

I hadn't realized how prevalent kid-swapping was until I moved to Washington. One night I came home from the office and, instead of finding my dark-haired little beauties, I discovered a 7-year-old blonde stranger doing the twist.

"WHO'S SHE?" I asked my wife.

"That's Ann Lindsay. She's staying here for the night with Connie."

"Where's Jennifer?" I asked.

"She's sleeping at Priscilla's house because Ann Lindsay's sleeping here."

"Who's Priscilla?"

"Jennifer didn't know her last name, but she says she's her best friend."

"THAT'S NICE. Where is Joel?"

"He's sleeping at his friend's — B.J. He said if Jennifer can sleep somewhere else so can he."

"Where does that leave us?" I asked my wife.

"Well, we had three to start with, we got rid of two for the night, and we gained one, so we're only short one."

"It saves on food," I agreed.

"Not really," my wife said. "We had fish tonight, but Ann Lindsay doesn't like fish, so I had to go out and get her a steak. Then when Connie saw Ann was getting a steak, she wanted one, too."

"I wouldn't mind having a steak myself," I said.

"You can't. Somebody's got to eat the fish."

THE NEXT WEEK END when I came home Connie was missing, but Jennifer had two friends and Joel had B.J.

At 8 o'clock I ordered them all to bed.

"B.J.'s father lets him watch television until midnight every night," Joel, who is 9 years old, said.

"Is that true, B.J.?" I asked.

"Sometimes later," B.J. said without batting an eye.

"When I stayed at B.J.'s last week," Joel said, "we didn't go to bed until 2 in the morning."

"My parents don't like me to go to bed early," B.J. said, "because then I wake up early."

"WELL, WHY DON'T we just call up your parents and ask them what time you go to bed?"

"Oh, you don't have to do that," B.J. said hurriedly. "They've probably gone out to a movie."

Just then the phone rang. It was Mrs. Lindsay, who said, "What time do you usually put Connie to bed?"

"Eight o'clock," I said.

"She said you let her stay up till midnight to watch television. I was a little worried." Mrs. Linday seemed relieved.

LATER THAT EVENING I said to my wife, "We've got to put a halt to this kid-swapping. Everyone on Cleveland Avenue is starting to talk."

"Oh, it's harmless," my wife said, "and they get so much fun out of it."

But I knew what I was talking about. A few weeks later I came home and found three kids at the dinner table — none of them mine.

"What happened?" I asked.

MY WIFE WAS rather embarrassed. "There's been a dreadful mix-up. Joel invited Francis over to sleep with him, but he forgot he'd accepted an invitation to sleep at Butch's. Jennifer and Connie were invited over to Karen's, but after they left Veronica and Mary Elisabeth showed up and said they had been invited over here. I didn't have the heart to send them home."

"So now we've got three kids that don't even belong to us," I said.

"Yes," my wife said, "and guess what? They said their mothers let them stay up until midnight every night to watch television."

Groucho Marx Set For Release

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Groucho Marx, who has been undergoing tests since Aug. 13 at Mount Sinai Hospital, is scheduled to be released within a day or two.

Dale Olson, spokesman for the 83-year-old comedian, said yesterday Marx entered the hospital for a routine physical examination involving time-consuming tests and not because of any ailment.

Olson said Marx plans to perform in an Oct. 6 benefit for the Committee to Research Hereditary Diseases.

Sewer Tax Is Jumped By 44 Cents

The Corte Madera town councilmen, sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary Commission, last night avoided levying a sewer service charge by more than doubling its tax rate.

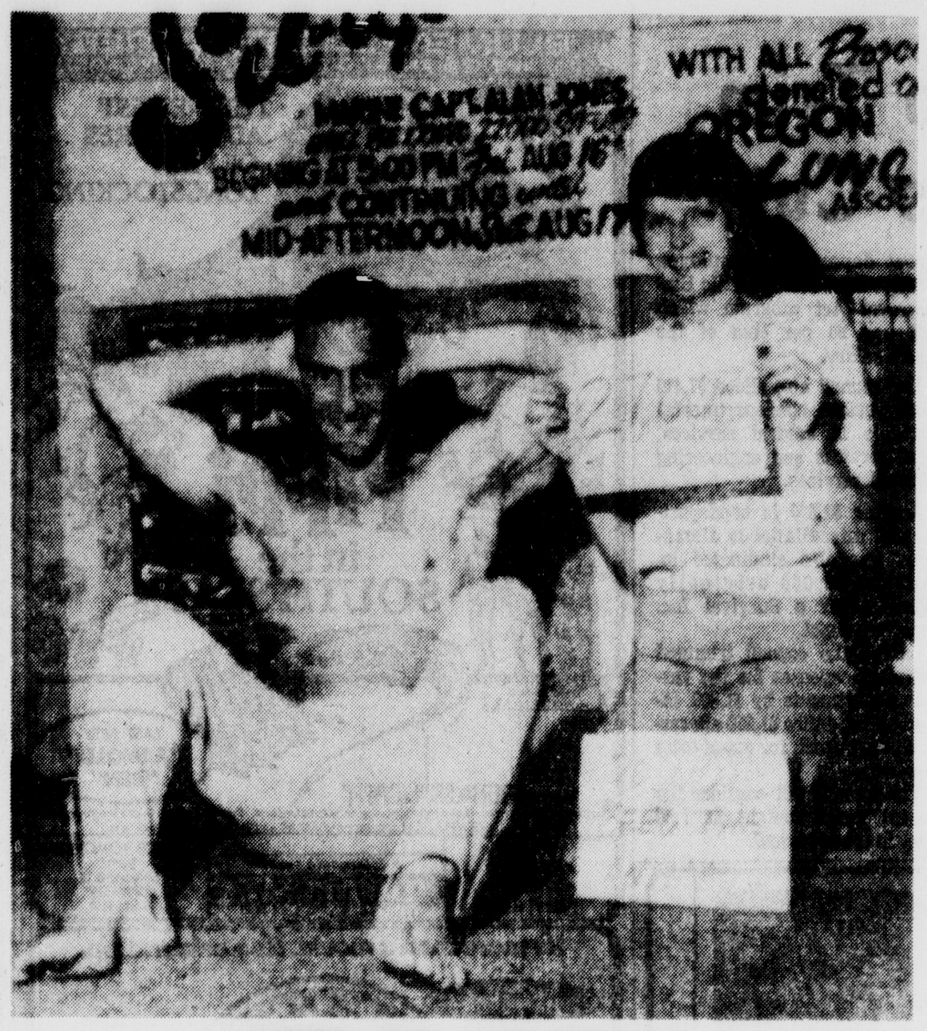
The board voted 4-to-1 (Larry P. Weingarth dissenting) to adopt a $361,766 budget for fiscal 1974-75 calling for a tax rate of 77 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Last year's rate was 33 cents. The rate which prevailed from 1968 through 1972, however, was 60 cents.

The new rate will enable the sanitary district to wipe out a $28,000 deficit incurred last fiscal year, and end the new year with a balance of $12,000.

Some $108,000 is earmarked for sewer replacements.

The district originally considered levying a sewer service charge of $30 per homeowner per year, but changed its mind when it discovered it was not bound by S.B. 190, the California law which prevents certain agencies from raising the tax rate above the previous year's.



LIFE'S UPS AND DOWNS

Linda Jones of Portland, Ore., held up a sign giving the new world record for situps yesterday as her husband, Marine Capt. Alan Jones, hit the 27,003 mark in his marathon attack on the old record of 25,220 situps. The old record, held by Rich Knecht of Idaho, was broken by Jones after 28 hours and 30 minutes. Two Youths Get $500 Scholarships

Two Marin youths have each received a labor-sponsored $500 scholarship.

The winners, chosen on the basis of essays they wrote on the American labor movement, are Joan Larkins, 17, and Kevin L. Bastian, 18. They received the awards at ceremonies held recently at the Marin County Labor Council headquarters in San Rafael.

Miss Larkins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Larkins of Kentfield, received the 1974 California Labor Federation scholarship. She is a graduate of San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow and will attend Stanford University in the fall.

Bastian, the son of Philip L. Bastian of Mill Valley, received the 1974 Marin County Labor Council scholarship. He is a graduate of San Rafael High School and will attend the University of California at Santa Cruz in the fall.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Jay M. Ver Lee, retired Oakland city parks and recreation director, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the board of directors of the California Spring Garden and Home Show.

Revocation Of Permit Is Put Off

The Corte Madera Town Council, unwilling to jeopardize a developer's pending court case, last night decided to wait six months before considering revoking his permit. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1)

The action was requested by the developer, Cal-West Properties of Palo Alto, to give it time to clear up the legal tangle surrounding its proposed Madera del Presidio project.

Cal-West feared that the council would rescind the permit for a 528-unit development — which it did once, on July 15, only to find its action invalid becuase the developer was not properly notified.

Recission, Cal West holds, could hurt the firm's appeal of a court decision blocking the development, and its appeal of a Marin Municipal Water District denial of a main line extension.

Cal-West no longer plans to build 528 units, having submitted a compromise plan for 326 units, but fears a rescission of the original permit would, for all practical purposes, kill the project and thus kill suits by rendering them pointless.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

YOUNG — Continued until its next meeting, Sept. 3, its hearing of an appeal by 16 residents of a planning commission decision permitting Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Young to build a swimming pool in their front yard at 26 Fairview Road.

LICENSING — Expressed displeasure at the proposed state licensing measure for parks and recreation workers.

PARKING — Voted 4-to-1 (Major Robert J. Flahive opposed) to require certain businesses to provide one off-street parking space for each 220 square feet of gross floor area.

FIRE — Removed from the calendar and thus killed a proposal to make citizens financially liable for firefighting expenses if the fire was caused by the citizen's neglect.

PLANNING — Renewed its membership in the City-County Planning Council of Marin, which had lapsed.

PARK — Designated the Paradise Drive bay frontage property, the Priest, Weigel and Smith property on Lucky Drive, the town park, Menke park and the Tarrant-Harris property as projects on which to spend $23,970 available from the county for park acquisition and development.

Diabetic Talks

A meeting for parents of diabetic children will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Marin General Hospital's Blue Room. Dr. George J. Monteverdi, pediatrician, and Dr. Conrad Ellner, psychiatrist, will lead the session, which is sponsored by the Marin County Diabetes Association.

Planners Pass First Revised Tree Permit

Marin County Planning Commissioners yesterday granted the county's first firewood cutting permit under Marin's revised zoning ordinance.

The permit to cut oak trees on the A. Crawford Cooley Ranch on the Marin-Sonoma county line west of Highway 101 went to Daniel A. Bostrom, operator of the D and W Firewood Co. in Petaluma. About 200 acres of moderately sloping hillsides will be logged over several years. Only oak trees will be cut and the logger must carefully control erosion by planting grass seed and piling brush to encourage new trees to grow, the commission ordered.

The commission agreed with staff that no formal environmental impact report was needed for the permit.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

HAMILTON — Set a hearing for Sept. 16 on updating the clear zone safety standards for land near the runway at Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base. Land use in the Ignacio Industrial Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard may be affected. The proposed changes reflect new Air Force safety standards and data.

WATER — Directed the planning department staff to work with the county's two water districts on drafting requirements for applicants who want to establish independent water systems within the districts.

CONDOMINIUM — With almost no discussion, concurred with changes requested by the board of supervisors in the county's proposed condominium ordinance.

HEARINGS — Asked the supervisors to ratify a guide for citizens to use in speaking at public hearings of the commission, board of zoning adjustments and the like. The guide, planned to be distributed to would-be speakers at each hearing, was proposed by the League of Women Voters, according to Planning Director Werner Von Gundell.

APPEAL — Granted Roy Gibbs's appeal against requirements that a water storage tank and fire hydrants be installed as conditions for a permit to divide an 11.68-acre parcel in Inverness Park into four parcels.

MASTER PLAN — Recommended that the county master plan consistency requirements be made to apply to all land divisions the same as they now regulate all subdivisions within unincorporated areas. Staff explained that some land division applications have conflicted with the county general plan.

Fairfax Fighting To Trim Budget; $35,325 Is Cut

The Fairfax Town Council, again grappling with a budget for 1974-75, last night trimmed $35,325 from the spending program.

The proposed budget now stands at $729,832, up from this year's $719,774 program.

Mayor Frank J. Egger estimated that the present budget level would require a tax rate of $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, up five cents over this year. He added that the tax rate could drop by several cents depending on the final budget that is adopted.

By state law, the council is required to fix a tax rate by Sept. 1 and Mayor Egger said that the council will also have adopted a budget by then.

The councilmen were determined last night to offset a $62,750 spending deficit which still lingers at $27,425.

Councilman Randall L. Garrison characterized the mood of the meeting when he said, "the whole town is going to have to start cutting back."

Councilman Priscilla R. Gray explained his statement, saying simply, "we're broke."

Cut last night was a $1,800 police department allocation for a motorcycle to patrol parking violations in the downtown area. The task will now be handled by a patrolman on foot.

Also cut from the police department budget requests $5,580 in overtime pay for full-time employees and $2,000 in overtime pay for part-time and temporary employees. The council also agreed to finance $3,200 in state-required police safety equipment from federal revenue sharing funds.

Another $3,000 was trimmed in overtime pay allocated for the street department. The council decided to save an additional $6,529 by hiring a needed street department employee through the Federal Public Employment Act program which will pay 90 per cent of the man's salary.

The council also sliced $7,416 from various nondepartmental accounts in central services, legal services and engineering contract services.

Another $1,300 in nondepartmental miscellaneous allocations was also eliminated including $1,000 originally allocated for a Survival Inc. recycling depot.

Lastly, the council trimmed traveling expenses for the various departments by $1,800, including the entire $1,250 allocated to the council for out-of-town meetings.

The council will consider the budget again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Youngster Is Given Heart Transplant

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A teenage boy yesterday became Stanford University's youngest heart transplant recipient.

The unidentified youth was given the heart of Albert Lorincz, 26, San Jose, who suffered massive head injuries in a hang-glider accident at nearby Pacifica on Sunday.

Two Escape Jail Time In Pot Case

Two San Rafael men will not serve time in jail for possessing marijuana and concealing stolen property, a Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled.

Judge Peter Allen Smith sentenced David Phillips Root, 18, to 10 days of work with the county parks and recreation department.

Root had pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen motorcycle frame.

Smith also ordered Albert John Rasmussen, 19, to spend one year on probation for possessing marijuana. If he stays out of trouble, the charge will be dismissed, Smith ruled.

San Rafael police arrested the pair in May after they went to their apartment to investigate a theft. Inside they found the motorcycle frame, marijuana, pills and drug paraphernalia.

Penicillin Seen Losing Potency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Penicillin may be nearly useless in treating common staph infections, since many staph strains have developed an immunity to the drug, according to a research report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

For years, it has been well known that staph strains circulating in hospitals have become resistant to the commonly used penicillin G. But, the report said, tests now show that street variety strains of the infection also show high degrees of resistance to the drug — possibly because of indiscriminate use of penicillin during the past 20 years.

In studies conducted on 133 children in Washington D.C., the report said, resistance of staph strains common to the community was 84 per cent while resistance of hospital strains was 95 per cent.

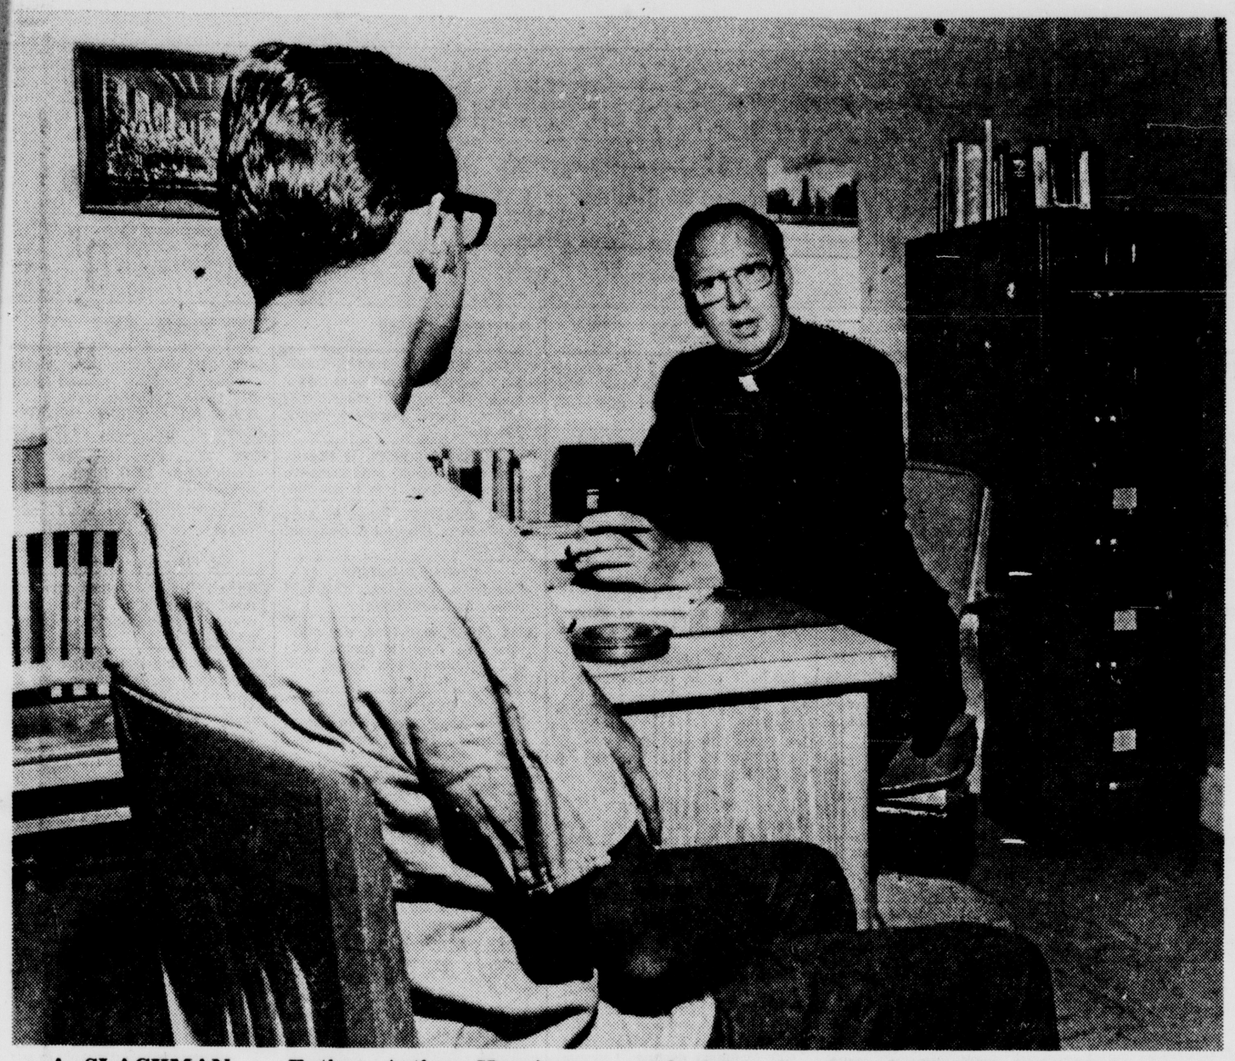
THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1974 19



A SLACKMAN — Father Arthur Harrison counsels an inmate at his chapel office in San Quentin State Prison. The 43-year-old priest describes himself in prison slang as a "slackman," a friend who's there to help an inmate regain his sense of decency and awareness that he's a human being.

Best Friend Gets Woman's Whole Estate

In a handwritten will penned the day before she shot herself, Marion S. Young of Greenbrae has left her estate to a man she called "my only friend for nine years."

Mrs. Young's will, filed with the County Clerk's office, leaves nothing to her 91-year-old husband, Harry J.

Instead, she named Raymund A. Frazier, 43, a music teacher, the only beneficiary and executor of her will, disposing of bank savings, stocks and some eight pieces of property.

It was Frazier who was invited to Mrs. Young's home on Los Cerros Drive for dinner the evening of July 30, but when he got there he found not a meal on the dining room table but a note.

"Look in the shower," it said. He did, and found Mrs. Young's body with bullet wounds in the neck and temple. A pistol lay nearby.

The coroner's office called it a suicide.

Mrs. Young, 68, had penned two copies of her will, mailing one to Frazier, who lives in an apartment on nearby Via Hidalgo, and leaving the other in her home.

She wrote, "I hereby give, devise and bequeath unto my best friend, Raymund A. Frazier, all of my estate.

"Raymund has been my only friend for nine years. None of my relatives have ever shown any kindness or love for me," it read.

If anyone, related or not, contests the will, that person will get only $1, she wrote.

Besides her husband, survivors include two brothers and a sister.

Open Creek Zone Appears Doomed

A controversial proposal to create an open space flood plain strip on either side of the Sleepy Hollow and San Anselmo creeks appeared doomed last night, at least in its original form.

A crowd of about 150 San Anselmo residents, most of whom own property along the creeks, turned out for a public hearing held by the city planning commission at Isabel Cook School, mainly to express opposition to the plan.

The views expressed were similar to those aired at a similar public hearing last month. Property owners were disturbed by a proposed ordinance which would require a variance permit to reconstruct buildings within 20 feet of the creek bank if the structures were to burn or be demolished in a flood.

"My property would be worthless; I have two houses which would be illegal," one man said. He and others expressed fear that the city would in effect be taking the property without paying for it.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said that this would not be the case and that the man probably would be eligible for a variance to rebuild.

Other San Anselmans expressed fear that the public would be allowed to go through their property to use the creek for recreation.

Former Mayor Warren R. Perry, who has led the fight against the proposed ordinance, said he hoped the commission realized "the vast percentage of creek property is privately owned" and that "introduction of the public into it would create vast problems most of us are not ready for."

Despite mutterings from members of the large audience that "they'll do whatever they want regardless of what we say," planning commissioners agreed to drop the proposed ordinance as presently designed.

They instructed City Atty. Hadden W. Roth to advise them on the posibility of requiring use permits rather than variances for new structures along the creek banks. They also asked advice on the possibility of declaring the intent to keep the banks free in a resolution by the city council rather than an ordinance.

Planning Commissioner Duane C. Ragan said he thought it is "important to preserve the creek bank," but "the proposed ordinance is not workable."

"You cannot force a green belt on the owners," he concluded.

The planning commission set another hearing on the matter for 8 p.m. Sept. 16 in the city hall.

49th Stab Victim At San Quentin

Another stabbing, the 49th this year at San Quentin, resulted in return of a total lockup of the West Honor block, a lockup that had been gradually easing.

Richard M. Ray, 32, serving a five-year-to-life sentence for robbery in Los Angeles County, was reported in fair condition today at the prison hospital with three stab wounds, according to Alex Silva, information officer. One lung collapsed in the stabbing.

Silva said that there was no suspect and no weapon was found. The lockup of the block will remain until prison investigation is completed, Silva said.

A lockup was imposed last Friday after Walter Hiryk, 38, serving a five year to life sentence for robbery from Los Angeles County, was stabbed 28 times.

That lockup was eased yesterday until the stabbing in the honor block, Silva said. Inmates in the other blocks in the prison were out today at their regular work assignments, Silva said.

Marinwood CSD Hikes Center Rent

The Marinwood Community Services District last night boosted fees for rental of the community center.

District Mgr. Genevieve T. Bolding said rental of the facility on Saturdays will be increased from $70 to $80 for district residents, and from $105 to $125 for nonresidents.

The hike is necessary to cover increased cost of utilities and maintenance, she said.

The board last night also boosted fees charged for district tiny tot program by $1, she said.

In other action, the board said it opposes a proposal for a swim and tennis club complex on 15 acres at 1601 Lucas Valley Road. The board of supervisors will consider the Lucas Valley Racquet Club proposal on Aug. 22, she said.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jury last night found Chinatown civic leader Albert Yin Wong guilty of lying to a federal grand jury investigating gambling in Chinatown.

U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel released Wong, a former president of the Chinese Six Companies, on his own recognizance until sentencing Oct. 16.

The jury deliberated seven and a half hours before deciding Wong, 73, committed perjury when he told the federal panel he never paid bribes to police or discussed Chinese gambling games with officers.

First Test Is Passed By Sign Law

Novato's proposed new sign ordinance weathered its first public hearing last night with its basic structure intact, according to planner Michael Harlock.

At a meeting of Novato planning commissioners and businessmen, there were proposals for rewording, no significant changes, Harlock said.

Under the proposed ordinance, sign review would be by the planning director rather than city plan review committee, a step designed to speed up the process.

The new ordinance also would permit product advertising, which has been banned, and would reduce abatment of nonconforming signs.

Abatement would be enforced where signs have been constructed without a permit, do not conform to approved plans or remain in disrepair.

Nonconforming signs generally are replaced in a few years, the planning staff reported.

Harlock said a new draft of the ordinance will be ready in three to four weeks and another public hearing in about six weeks.

By MARC LITTMAN

Father Arthur Harrison gazed silently out his office window in San Quentin State Prison and pursed his lips.

Two guards were hustling a lanky, black inmate, his legs bound tightly with iron chains, into the isolated adjustment center, heavily guarded and ringed with coils of rusting barbed wire, where psychopathic killers and other dangerous criminals are housed.

The scene, though witnessed often by Father Harrison in the seven years he's been the prison's Catholic chaplain, drew an expression of pain upon his face.

The 43-year-old priest turned slowly in his chair, sighed, and said of San Quentin: "It's a warehouse of bodies."

He lapsed into silence again, slowly collecting his thoughts as he surveyed the small office, whose walls were adorned with handcrafted mementos from inmates past and present.

At last, the priest focused on a pendant which said, "Jesus Christ is Your Perfect Slackman."

"That's me," Father Harrison said, his eyes brightening. "A slackman, I'm that flexible go-between, the friend to ease the pressure."

Father Harrison explained that when he first arrived, at the prison, "a fish" as the inmates refer to someone new, it took him awhile before he became "conwise," able to understand what an inmate was really saying.

"You can't imagine the pressure on these guys to conform, where everyone, even the strangest perverts, are equal. The pressure to fall into racial, homosexual and narcotics circles is immense," Father Harrison said.

"Sometimes a guy will come to me with lightweight talk that's worthless when all he really wants is just to talk with someone on the sidelines who's free. To say, 'hey, I'm here. I'm a human being, notice me.' "

Father Harrison defined his role as more than just a priest, although he does conduct weekly mass and services in the Catholic chapel for some 150 regular attenders. (There is also a Protestant chaplain and chapel and a parttime rabbi with a makeshift synagogue.)

He is also liason between the prisoners and their families in emergencies, a counselor he says in a loose sense, but above all, a friend.

"I draw no religious lines," Father Harrison remarked. "I'm here five days a week and my door's always open. If the guys won't come to me, I go to them and that includes those in maximum security."

The amiable priest, who lives in San Rafael in the rectory at St. Raphael's Church, noted that he doesn't strive to make great inroads towards reforming inmates, many of whom he says are resigned to just struggling to survive.

"The external rewards are microscopic," Father Harrison said. "I see some changes and share in a guy's happiness who makes it on the streets, but I'm here to help a man regain his sense of personal dignity and sense of awareness of being a real human being. If that could be brought about on a large scale, this prison would be a different place."

Communication inequities of the American legal system in which the rich receive less punishment than the poor, Father Harrison said, "If you have a million-dollar attorney, you get million-dollar results. If you're some poor Mexican from San Leandro with a public defender, well . . ."

The American Council of Bishops issued a statement six months ago pleading for equality in the courts, Father Harrison noted.

He also said that the correctional system in California, itself, could be improved but that "people just aren't laying out the dough."

"The average man on the streets doesn't care about the guys here. They're pleased that they can't be let out of this warehouse," Father Harrison noted wryly.

At that point, he rose and together with his clerk, an inmate who wished to remain unidentified, took a short stroll on the prison grounds.

The expansive "big yard" where the inmates position themselves in long trim rows for meal countdowns was conspicuously empty that day, save for a few inmates, clustered into singular ethnic eddies.

Warden Kenneth R. Britt had ordered a partial "lockdown" that week in the wake of a rash of stabbings.

Only those inmates in minimum security West Block were permitted to leave their cells for anything but meals.

Father Harrison explained that the character of the prison had changed drastically since August 1971 when George Jackson of the Soledad Brothers was slain in an escape attempt.

"It's a tight prison now. Used to be a guy could just walk over and see me. He still can, but it's not as easy. It's tense," Father Harrison said.

As he strode briskly through the yard, occasionally he'd single an inmate out, "haven't seen you around for a while Joe," or nod kindly to another, "how ya doing, fellow."

"I think my work here will make me more sensitive to people when I return to a regular parish someday," Father Harrison reflected.

When he will return to a regular parish, he doesn't know, but Father Harrison, who was born in San Francisco, has been a priest for 18 years and has had parishes in Palo Alto and in San Jose and was the priest from 1960 to 1964 at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

The clerk led the way through the West Block, stopping to peer inside one of the dingy, narrow cells which he called a "house."

It was painfully void of all but the barest living comforts.

A wistful look crossed the clerk's face. "My greatest joy upon getting out of here will be to say, I survived both physically and mentally," he said slowly.

Father Harrison smiled and added, "And my little joy will be to say, I helped him survive."

Burns Recuperating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian George Burns, who is recuperating from open heart surgery conducted Aug. 9, is reported doing fine at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. The 78-year-old entertainer is expected to be released in about a week.

Belvedere Pay Dispute With Policemen Settled

The Belvedere City Council and city policemen settled their dispute over salaries last night with approval of an 11.88 per cent pay hike.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported that the wage package, which covers all city employees with the exception of management personnel, ends negotiations under way since April.

Policemen had rejected an 8.63 per cent raise previously offered by the city.

The increase, retroactive to July 1, is equal to the rise in the cost of living over the past 15 months, Cavalli said. The package is expected to cost the city about $15,000, according to the city manager.

In addition, police officers won a boost in their annual allowance for uniforms from $170 to $225 and all employees will be allowed to accumulate 120 sick days, double the previous amount.

Councilmen also agreed to contract for retirement benefits for city workers with the state public employees retirement system.

Denial Of Permits Announced

Permits for a Mill Valley tennis court and a Black Point area firewood sales lot were denied today by Warren Baker Jr., deputy county zoning administrator.

In both cases, neighbors objected to the proposed uses in residential areas.

Donald Hall had sought to turn an existing house into a tennis club and to build three courts on a 34,000-square-foot lot at 39 Plaza Drive. Opponents claimed overcrowding of the lot, and a public works spokesman said proposed parking areas were clouded by easements over part of the property. The land originally was planned for two more homes, but constructon was balked by the sewer hookup moratorium, neighbors said.

Black Point Improvement Club spokesmen argued that the wood lot wanted by William Isom for 275 Olive would be undesirable. The site is on filled property at the southwest corner of the Oliver-Atherton Avenue intersectin within the Novato Flood Plain. It now is used for grazing.

Orange Crate Derby Applications Ready

Applications and instructions for the Fourth annual orange crate derby, sponsored by the Mill Valley Jaycees, are available Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue.

The race, which will be run at 10 a.m. Sept. 22 at the Mill Valley Library, is open to Mill Valley youths aged 10 to 15 as of Oct. 5.

Coarse Foods May Be Healthy

CHICAGO (UPI) — A number of modern man's ills may be attributed to food that's just too easy to digest, according to a team of British and South African researchers.

The researchers reported in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association that coarse, indigestable fibers found in crudely milled flour and unprocessed bran bay be dietary essentials for avoidance of a variety of diseases, including heart disease, blood clots and obesity.

Such diseases are relatively unknown in native African populations, where the basic diet still consists of coarsely processed cereals, according to Dr. D. P. Burkitt and N. S. Painter of London and A. R. P. Walker of South Africa.

Development Board Will Discuss Hiring

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the agency's San Rafael office, will discuss procedures for hiring Marin City residents for jobs in the community's planned redevelopment project, according to Board Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Plans by Highland Associates call for construction this year of 442 apartments and townhouses on 36 acres in Marin City.

Planners Pass First Revised Tree Permit

Marin County Planning Commissioners yesterday granted the county's first firewood cutting permit under Marin's revised zoning ordinance.

The permit to cut oak trees on the A. Crawford Cooley Ranch on the Marin-Sonoma county line west of Highway 101 went to Daniel A. Bostrom, operator of the D and W Firewood Co. in Petaluma. About 200 acres of moderately sloping hillsides will be logged over several years. Only oak trees will be cut and the logger must carefully control erosion by planting grass seed and piling brush to encourage new trees to grow, the commission ordered.

The commission agreed with staff that no formal environmental impact report was needed for the permit.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

HAMILTON — Set a hearing for Sept. 16 on updating the clear zone safety standards for land near the runway at Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base. Land use in the Ignacio Industrial Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard may be affected. The proposed changes reflect new Air Force safety standards and data.

WATER — Directed the planning department staff to work with the county's two water districts on drafting requirements for applicants who want to establish independent water systems within the districts.

CONDOMINIUM — With almost no discussion, concurred with changes requested by the board of supervisors in the county's proposed condominium ordinance.

HEARINGS — Asked the supervisors to ratify a guide for citizens to use in speaking at public hearings of the commission, board of zoning adjustments and the like. The guide, planned to be distributed to would-be speakers at each hearing, was proposed by the League of Women Voters, according to Planning Director Werner Von Gundell.

APPEAL — Granted Roy Gibbs's appeal against requirements that a water storage tank and fire hydrants be installed as conditions for a permit to divide an 11.68-acre parcel in Inverness Park into four parcels.

MASTER PLAN — Recommended that the ocunty master plan consistency requirements be made to apply to all land divisions the same as they now regulate all subdivisions within unincorporated areas. Staff explained that some land division applications have conflicted with the county general plan.

Fairfax Fighting To Trim Budget; $35,325 Is Cut

The Fairfax Town Council, again grappling with a budget for 1974-75, last night trimmed $35,325 from the spending program.

The proposed budget now stands at $729,832, up from this year's $719,774 program.

Mayor Frank J. Egger estimated that the present budget level would require a tax rate of $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, up five cents over this year. He added that the tax rate could drop by several cents depending on the final budget that is adopted.

By state law, the council is required to fix a tax rate by Sept. 1 and Mayor Egger said that the council will also have adopted a budget by then.

The councilmen were determined last night to offset a $62,750 spending deficit which still lingers at $27,425.

Councilman Randall L. Garrison characterized the mood of the meeting when he said, "the whole town is going to have to start cutting back."

Cut last night was a $1,800 police department allocation for a motorcycle to patrol parking violations in the downtown area. The task will now be handled by a patrolman on foot.

Also cut from the police department budget requests $5,580 in overtime pay for full-time employees and $2,000 in overtime pay for part-time and temporary employees. The council also agreed to finance $3,200 in state-required police safety equipment from federal revenue sharing funds.

Another $3,000 was trimmed in overtime pay allocated for the street department. The council decided to save an additional $6,529 by hiring a needed street department employee through the Federal Public Employment Act program which will pay 90 per cent of the man's salary.

The council also sliced $7,416 from various nondepartmental accounts in central services, legal services and engineering contract services.

Another $1,300 in nondepartmental miscellaneous allocations was also eliminated including $1,000 originally allocated for a Survival Inc. recycling depot.

Lastly, the council trimmed traveling expenses for the various departments by $1,800, including the entire $1,250 allocated to the council for out-of-town meetings.

The council will consider the budget again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Youngster Is Given Heart Transplant

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A teenage boy yesterday became Stanford University's youngest heart transplant recipient.

The unidentified youth was given the heart of Albert Lorincz, 26, San Jose, who suffered massive head injuries in a hang-glider accident at nearby Pacifica on Sunday.

Two Escape Jail Time In Pot Case

Two San Rafael men will not serve time in jail for possessing marijuana and concealing stolen property, a Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled.

Judge Peter Allen Smith sentenced David Phillips Root, 18, to 10 days of work with the county parks and recreation department.

Root had pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen motorcycle frame.

Smith also ordered Albert John Rasmussen, 19, to spend one year on probation for possessing marijuana. If he stays out of trouble, the charge will be dismissed, Smith ruled.

San Rafael police arrested the pair in May after they went to their apartment to investigate a theft. Inside they found the motorcycle frame, marijuana, pills and drug paraphernalia.

Penicillin Seen Losing Potency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Penicillin may be nearly useless in treating common staph infections, since many staph strains have developed an immunity to the drug, according to a research report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

For years, it has been well known that staph strains circulating in hospitals have become resistant to the commonly used penicillin G. But, the report said, tests now show that street variety strains of the infection also show high degrees of resistance to the drug — possibly because of indiscriminate use of penicillin during the past 20 years.

In studies conducted on 133 children in Washington D.C., the report said, resistance of staph strains common to the community was 84 per cent while resistance of hospital strains was 95 per cent.

A SLACKMAN — Father Arthur Harrison counsels an inmate at his chapel office in San Quentin State Prison. The 43-year-old priest describes himself in prison slang as a "slackman," a friend who's there to help an inmate regain his sense of decency and awareness that he's a human being.

Best Friend Gets Woman's Whole Estate

In a handwritten will penned the day before she shot herself, Marion S. Young of Greenbrae has left her estate to a man she called "my only friend for nine years."

Mrs. Young's will, filed with the County Clerk's office, leaves nothing to her 91-year-old husband, Harry J.

Instead, she named Raymund A. Frazier, 43, a music teacher, the only beneficiary and executor of her will, disposing of bank savings, stocks and some eight pieces of property.

It was Frazier who was invited to Mrs. Young's home on Los Cerros Drive for dinner the evening of July 30, but when he got there he found not a meal on the dining room table but a note.

"Look in the shower," it said.

He did, and found Mrs. Young's body with bullet wounds in the neck and temple. A pistol lay nearby.

The coroner's office called it a suicide.

Mrs. Young, 68, had penned two copies of her will, mailing one to Frazier, who lives in an apartment on nearby Via Hidalgo, and leaving the other in her home.

She wrote, "I hereby give, devise and bequeath unto my best friend, Raymund A. Frazier, all of my estate.

"Raymund has been my only friend for nine years. None of my relatives have ever shown any kindness or love for me," it read.

If anyone, related or not, contests the will, that person will get only $1, she wrote.

Besides her husband, survivors include two brothers and a sister.

Burns Recuperating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian George Burns, who is recuperating from open heart surgery conducted Aug. 9, is reported doing fine at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. The 78-year-old entertainer is expected to be released in about a week.

Open Creek Zone Appears Doomed

A controversial proposal to create an open space flood plain strip on either side of the Sleepy Hollow and San Anselmo creeks appeared doomed last night, at least in its original form.

A crowd of about 150 San Anselmo residents, most of whom own property along the creeks, turned out for a public hearing held by the city planning commission at Isabel Cook School, mainly to express opposition to the plan.

The views expressed were similar to those aired at a similar public hearing last month. Property owners were disturbed by a proposed ordinance which would require a variance permit to reconstruct buildings within 20 feet of the creek bank if the structures were to burn or be demolished in a flood.

"My property would be worthless; I have two houses which would be illegal," one man said. He and others expressed fear that the city would in effect be taking the property without paying for it.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said that this would not be the case and that the man probably would be eligible for a variance to rebuild.

Other San Anselmans expressed fear that the public would be allowed to go through their property to use the creek for recreation.

Former Mayor Warren R. Perry, who has led the fight against the proposed ordinance, said he hoped the commission realized "the vast percentage of creek property is privately owned" and that "introduction of the public into it would create vast problems most of us are not ready for."

Despite mutterings from members of the large audience that "they'll do whatever they want regardless of what we say," planning commissioners agreed to drop the proposed ordinance as presently designed.

They instructed City Atty. Hadden W. Roth to advise them on the posibility of requiring use permits rather than variances for new structures along the creek banks. They also asked advice on the possibility of declaring the intent to keep the banks free in a resolution by the city council rather than an ordinance.

Planning Commissioner Duane C. Ragan said he thought it is "important to preserve the creek bank," but "the proposed ordinance is not workable."

"You cannot force a green belt on the owners," he concluded.

The planning commission set another hearing on the matter for 8 p.m. Sept. 16 in the city hall.

49th Stab Victim At San Quentin

Another stabbing, the 49th this year at San Quentin, resulted in return of a total lockup of the West Honor block, a lockup that had been gradually easing.

Richard M. Ray, 32, serving a five-year-to-life sentence for robbery in Los Angeles County, was reported in fair condition today at the prison hospital with three stab wounds, according to Alex Silva, information officer. One lung collapsed in the stabbing.

Silva said that there was no suspect and no weapon was found. The lockup of the block will remain until prison investigation is completed, Silva said.

A lockup was imposed last Friday after Walter Hiryk, 38, serving a five year to life sentence for robbery from Los Angeles County, was stabbed 28 times.

That lockup was eased yesterday until the stabbing in the honor block, Silva said. Inmates in the other blocks in the prison were out today at their regular work assignments, Silva said.

Marinwood CSD Hikes Center Rent

The Marinwood Community Services District last night boosted fees for rental of the community center.

District Mgr. Genevieve T. Bolding said rental of the facility on Saturdays will be increased from $70 to $80 for district residents, and from $105 to $125 for nonresidents.

The hike is necessary to cover increased cost of utilities and maintenance, she said.

The board last night also boosted fees charged for district tiny tot program by $1, she said.

In other action, the board said it opposes a proposal for a swim and tennis club complex on 15 acres at 1601 Lucas Valley Road. The board of supervisors will consider the Lucas Valley Racquet Club proposal on Aug. 22, she said.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jury last night found Chinatown civic leader Albert Yin Wong guilty of lying to a federal grand jury investigating gambling in Chinatown.

U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel released Wong, a former president of the Chinese Six Companies, on his own recognizance until sentencing Oct. 16.

The jury deliberated seven and a half hours before deciding Wong, 73, committed perjury when he told the federal panel he never paid bribes to police or discussed Chinese gambling games with officers.

First Test Is Passed By Sign Law

Novato's proposed new sign ordinance weathered its first public hearing last night with its basic structure intact, according to planner Michael Harlock.

At a meeting of Novato planning commissioners and businessmen, there were proposals for rewording, no significant changes, Harlock said.

Under the proposed ordinance, sign review would be by the planning director rather than city plan review committee, a step designed to speed up the process.

The new ordinance also would permit product advertising, which has been banned, and would reduce abatment of nonconforming signs.

Abatement would be enforced where signs have been constructed without a permit, do not conform to approved plans or remain in disrepair.

Nonconforming signs generally are replaced in a few years, the planning staff reported.

Harlock said a new draft of the ordinance will be ready in three to four weeks and another public hearing in about six weeks.

Denial Of Permits Announced

Permits for a Mill Valley tennis court and a Black Point area firewood sales lot were denied today by Warren Baker Jr., deputy county zoning administrator.

In both cases, neighbors objected to the proposed uses in residential areas.

Donald Hall had sought to turn an existing house into a tennis club and to build three courts on a 34,000-square-foot lot at 39 Plaza Drive. Opponents claimed overcrowding of the lot, and a public works spokesman said proposed parking areas were clouded by easements over part of the property. The land originally was planned for two more homes, but constructon was balked by the sewer hookup moratorium, neighbors said.

Black Point Improvement Club spokesmen argued that the wood lot wanted by William Isom for 275 Olive would be undesirable. The site is on filled property at the southwest corner of the Oliver-Atherton Avenue intersectin within the Novato Flood Plain. It now is used for grazing.

Orange Crate Derby Applications Ready

Applications and instructions for the Fourth annual orange crate derby, sponsored by the Mill Valley Jaycees, are available Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue.

The race, which will be run at 10 a.m. Sept. 22 at the Mill Valley Library, is open to Mill Valley youths aged 10 to 15 as of Oct. 5.

To Chaplain, San Quentin Is 'Warehouse Of Bodies'

By MARC LITTMAN

Father Arthur Harrison gazed silently out his office window in San Quentin State Prison and pursed his lips.

Two guards were hustling a lanky, black inmate, his legs bound tightly with iron chains, into the isolated adjustment center, heavily guarded and ringed with coils of rusting barbed wire, where psychopathic killers and other dangerous criminals are housed.

The scene, though witnessed often by Father Harrison in the seven years he's been the prison's Catholic chaplain, drew an expression of pain upon his face.

The 43-year-old priest turned slowly in his chair, sighed, and said of San Quentin: "It's a warehouse of bodies."

He lapsed into silence again, slowly collecting his thoughts as he surveyed the small office, whose walls were adorned with handcrafted mementos from inmates past and present.

At last, the priest focused on a pendant which said, "Jesus Christ is Your Perfect Slackman."

"That's me," Father Harrison said, his eyes brightening. "A slackman, I'm that flexible go-between, the friend to ease the pressure."

Father Harrison explained that when he first arrived, at the prison, "a fish" as the inmates refer to someone new, it took him awhile before he became "conwise," able to understand what an inmate was really saying.

"You can't imagine the pressure on these guys to conform, where everyone, even the strangest perverts, are equal. The pressure to fall into racial, homosexual and narcotics circles is immense," Father Harrison said.

"Sometimes a guy will come to me with lightweight talk that's worthless when all he really wants is just to talk with someone on the sidelines who's free. To say, 'hey, I'm here. I'm a human being, notice me.'"

Father Harrison defined his role as more than just a priest, although he does conduct weekly mass and services in the Catholic chapel for some 150 regular attenders. (There is also a Protestant chaplain and chapel and a parttime rabbi with a makeshift synagogue.)

He is also liason between the prisoners and their families in emergencies, a counselor he says in a loose sense, but above all, a friend.

"I draw no religious lines," Father Harrison remarked. "I'm here five days a week and my door's always open. If the guys won't come to me, I go to them and that includes those in maximum security."

The amiable priest, who lives in San Rafael in the rectory at St. Raphael's Church, noted that he doesn't strive to make great inroads towards reforming inmates, many of whom he says are resigned to just struggling to survive.

"The external rewards are microscopic," Father Harrison said. "I see some changes and share in a guy's happiness who makes it on the streets, but I'm here to help a man regain his sense of personal dignity and sense of awareness of being a real human being. If that could be brought about on a large scale, this prison would be a different place."

Communication inequities of the American legal system in which the rich receive less punishment than the poor, Father Harrison said, "If you have a million-dollar attorney, you get million-dollar results. If you're some poor Mexican from San Leandro with a public defender, well . . ."

The American Council of Bishops issued a statement six months ago pleading for equality in the courts, Father Harrison noted.

He also said that the correctional system in California, itself, could be improved but that "people just aren't laying out the dough."

"The average man on the streets doesn't care about the guys here. They're pleased that they can't be let out of this warehouse," Father Harrison noted wryly.

At that point, he rose and together with his clerk, an inmate who wished to remain unidentified, took a short stroll on the prison grounds.

The expansive "big yard" where the inmates position themselves in long trim rows for meal countdowns was conspicuously empty that day, save for a few inmates, clustered into singular ethnic eddies.

Warden Kenneth R. Britt had ordered a partial "lockdown" that week in the wake of a rash of stabbings.

Only those inmates in minimum security West Block were permitted to leave their cells for anything but meals.

Father Harrison explained that the character of the prison had changed drastically since August 1971 when George Jackson of the Soledad Brothers was slain in an escape attempt.

"It's a tight prison now. Used to be a guy could just walk over and see me. He still can, but it's not as easy. It's tense," Father Harrison said.

As he strode briskly through the yard, occasionally he'd single an inmate out, "haven't seen you around for a while Joe," or nod kindly to another, "how ya doing, fellow."

"I think my work here will make me more sensitive to people when I return to a regular parish someday," Father Harrison reflected.

When he will return to a regular parish, he doesn't know, but Father Harrison, who was born in San Francisco, has been a priest for 18 years and has had parishes in Palo Alto and in San Jose and was the priest from 1960 to 1964 at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

The clerk led the way through the West Block, stopping to peer inside one of the dingy, narrow cells which he called a "house."

It was painfully void of all but the barest living comforts.

A wistful look crossed the clerk's face. "My greatest joy upon getting out of here will be to say, I survived both physically and mentally," he said slowly.

Father Harrison smiled and added, "And my little joy will be to say, I helped him survive."

Belvedere Pay Dispute With Policemen Settled

The Belvedere City Council and city policemen settled their dispute over salaries last night with approval of an 11.88 per cent pay hike.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported that the wage package, which covers all city employees with the exception of management personnel, ends negotiations under way since April.

Policemen had rejected an 8.63 per cent raise previously offered by the city.

The increase, retroactive to July 1, is equal to the rise in the cost of living over the past 15 months, Cavalli said. The package is expected to cost the city about $15,000, according to the city manager.

In addition, police officers won a boost in their annual allowance for uniforms from $170 to $225 and all employees will be allowed to accumulate 120 sick days, double the previous amount.

Councilmen also agreed to contract for retirement benefits for city workers with the state public employees retirement system.

Coarse Foods May Be Healthy

CHICAGO (UPI) — A number of modern man's ills may be attributed to food that's just too easy to digest, according to a team of British and South African researchers.

The researchers reported in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association that coarse, indigestable fibers found in crudely milled flour and unprocessed bran bay be dietary essentials for avoidance of a variety of diseases, including heart disease, blood clots and obesity.

Such diseases are relatively unknown in native African populations, where the basic diet still consists of coarsely processed cereals, according to Dr. D. P. Burkitt and N. S. Painter of London and A. R. P. Walker of South Africa.

Development Board Will Discuss Hiring

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the agency's San Rafael office, will discuss procedures for hiring Marin City residents for jobs in the community's planned redevelopment project, according to Board Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Plans by Highland Associates call for construction this year of 442 apartments and townhouses on 36 acres in Marin City.

FAMILY HIDEAWAY
$68,000

This is a unique property. Very hard to describe but great to be a part of. In the heart of a five acre redwood grove in the Nicasio Valley. Minutes from the village square & 8 minutes from Hiway 101. There are two buildings. The main one with large family kitchen, liv. rm., dining area, elevated bdrms., huge rock fireplace & decks. The upper cottage had been a dormitory for all the children and has a separate bath & fireplace. There is a patio BBQ area, horseshoe pit, carport, & much more. Not a shack, but ideal for summer home or year round country living. We have a list of further amenities in the office. Realtors.

WHY PAY EXTRA FOR A CAR WHEN YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN MARIN?

If you're tempted to buy a car in the City or East Bay, put on the brakes and consider: Marin dealers, with much lower overhead, pass you the saving. They're local, you're local. They want your business and will prove it to you both in price and service. Lower sales tax, too! More convenience, a better deal. Makes sense?

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider amendments to Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code, which amendments would reclassify, separably and independently, the following properties in the Wolfback Ridge area; including properties all or partially designated as Ridge and Upland Greenbelt Open Space in the Marin Countywide Plan. Also included are public lands purchased as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, which should be rezoned 0-A (Open Area District).

As described in the County's adopted policies for rezoning open space areas designated in the Marin Countywide Plan, the purpose of the proposed rezoning is to apply very low densities, to protect the open space character of the areas, and to achieve consistency with the plan's policies. In most cases, a very low density, RMP (Residential, Multiple Planned District), will be recommended because it allows maximum flexibility in building placement and allows either detached or attached units. The Commission will consider rezoning to either a higher or lower density, according to the specific characteristics of the site, at the time development plans are presented. The possibility of provision of low, moderate, or middle-income housing will be one of the considerations to be applied to the decision concerning density at the time of the review of the development.

#48-141-04,06,07,08,09

Public Notice

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE MARIN COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT
RESOLUTION NO. 74-248
RESOLUTION ORDERING NOTICE OF THE PUBLIC SALE OF AND ORDERING PUBLIC SALE OF REAL PROPERTY

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 25363 authorizes the sale of real property owned by the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and not required for public use, at a public auction; and

WHEREAS, the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District is owner in fee simple of a parcel of real property located on the south bank of Novato Creek just easterly of U.S. Highway No. 101. Said property is more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto. Said property is also known as Assessor's Parcel No. 153-170-42 and contains 13,256 square feet; and

WHEREAS, by Resolution No. 73-374 on November 20, 1973 this Board did declare said parcel to be surplus and stated that it may be sold pursuant to law.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that it is the intention of this Board to sell the above described parcel at a regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Flood Control District, at the Chambers of the Board of Supervisors, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, at 1:45 o'clock p.m., on the 10th day of September, 1974. Said property will be conveyed by Grant Deed, Without Warranty. Copies of the Grant Deed and a description of the property will be available at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors and in the Department of Public Works, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the terms and conditions of sale shall be as follows:

a) The minimum acceptable price is THIRTEEN THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS ($13,250.00).

b) Sealed written bids shall be submitted to the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, accompanied by cash or certified check payable to Treasurer, County of Marin, in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the bid price. All written bids must be submitted prior to the time of the hearing.

(c) This Board shall, before accepting any written bids, call for oral bids. Any responsible person may offer orally to increase the amount of the highest written bid by a sum of not less than five percent (5%) and to continue thereafter to bid in any amount until the highest oral bid, if any, is received.

(d) In the event no written bids are received, the Board shall call for oral bids. Such oral bidding must begin at a figure no lower than the minimum acceptable bid price of $13,250. Any responsible person may enter the oral bidding or may offer to increase the amount of the opening oral bid by a sum of not less than five percent (5%) and to continue thereafter to bid in any amount until the highest oral bid, if any, is received.

(e) The balance of the successful bid shall be paid within thirty (30) days of the acceptance of the bid, and in the event it is not so paid, the ten percent (10%) cash or certified check of the successful bidder shall be declared forfeit.

(f) This Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and/or waive any irregularities in a bid.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Clerk of this Board is hereby ordered to post copies of this Resolution, signed by the Chairman of this Board, in three (3) public places in the County not less than fifteen (15) days before the date of the opening of bids, and to publish a Notice of Intention to Sell once a week for three successive weeks prior to the hearing, in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation in the County.

PASSED AND ADOPTED at a regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District held on the 13th day of August, 1974, by the following vote:

AYES: SUPERVISORS PETER R. ARRIGONI, GARY GIACOMINI, BOB ROUMIGUIERE, ARNOLD M. BAPTISTE, MICHAEL WORNUM

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold public hearings to consider amendments to Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code, which amendments would reclassify, separably and independently, the following properties in the San Pedro Peninsula area, including properties all or partially designated as Ridge and Upland Greenbelt Open Space in the Marin Countywide Plan.

As described in the County's adopted policies for rezoning open space areas designated in the Marin Countywide Plan, the purpose of the proposed rezoning is to apply very low densities, to protect the open space character of the areas, and to achieve consistency with the plan's policies. In most cases, a very low density, RMP (Residential, Multiple Planned District), will be recommended because it allows maximum flexibility in building placement and allows either detached or attached units. The Board will consider rezoning to either a higher or lower density, according to the specific characteristics of the site, at the time development plans are presented. The possibility of provision of low, moderate, or middle-income housing will be one of the considerations to be applied to the decision concerning density at the time of the review of the development.

A) From A-2:B-2 (Limited Agricultural District, 10,000 square foot building site):
#179-321-01,14,18
180-281-20
180-341-12,34
186-010-03,12,13,17,26,27

B) From R-E:B-3 (Residential Estate District, 20,000 square foot lot area):
#180-321-01
180-341-05,07,16,33

#179-371-11

To RMP- (Residential, Multiple Planned District, Density to be determined by the Board of Supervisors) or O-A (Open Area District).

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that said public hearings will be held in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, at which place on 9/3/74 at 11:00 a.m. the ordinance will be read. (The only action taken by the Board of Supervisors at this time will be to read the ordinance-no public testimony will be necessary at this time). The second reading of the ordinance (merit hearing) will be on September 10, 1974 at the hour of 2:30 p.m. (At this time the Board of Supervisors will open the hearing, and any and all persons interested therein may appear and be heard thereon).

$9 Million Awarded To Lawyers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday awarded fees of $9.2 million to approximately 100 lawyers for their seven years work on 140 successful anti-trust suits against the gypsum industry.

U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli wrote that the $67.6 million recovered in the lawsuits was the largest anti-trust settlement ever obtained "without benefit of an assist from the government."

The six defendants in the cases produce more than 90 per cent of the nation's production of fibreboard, an important material in the construction industry.

Zirpoli said in his order that after the defendants "abandoned their conspiracy in 1968" the price of fibreboard dropped nearly 21 per cent in three years.

One of the lawyers involved, John Boone, said the case was the first in which a "pilot trial" was held to establish whether the defendants were guilty of price-fixing.

That trial, held from Oct. 20, 1969, to March 19, 1970, resulted in a guilty verdict against three of the defendants and the awarding by Zirpoli of $3.1 million damages to six San Francisco fibreboard dealers.

The actual settlements were approved last summer, Boone said, and the $67 million will go to approximately 60,000 governmental agencies, companies and individuals.

The six defendants in the cases were: U.S. Gypsum Co., Chicago; National Gypsum Co., Buffalo, N.Y.; Kaiser Gypsum Co., Oakland, Calif.; Georgia-Pacific Co., Portland, Ore.; Flintkote Co., White Plains, N.Y., and Celotex Corp., Chicago.

ON A CLEAR DAY

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

FORECASTS

Sierra Nevada: Fair through tomorrow; warming trend.

Napa and Sonoma valleys: Fair through tomorrow; low tonight and high tomorrow at Santa Rosa 54 and 92; northwest winds 10 to 20 m.p.h.

Reopening Of Lake Pollution Hearing Asked

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that U. S. District Court Judge Miles Lord should reopen hearings into alleged pollution of Lake Superior by the Reserve Mining Co. of Silver Bay, Minn.

In one of the longest environmental trials in U.S. history, Lord had ordered Reserve to shut down its operations because of the pollution.

The company, however, won a reprieve at a hearing in May before the appellate court, and both sides were ordered to discuss possible on-land disposal of the waste materials now being dumped into the lake.

In its order yesterday, the appellate court did not change its original ruling allowing Reserve's 3,100 employes to continue working at the plant in Silver Bay.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Histoplasmosis: You Can Get It From The Birds

"Several years when I worked on a farm, I developed fever, cough and extreme fatigue. The doctor had me admitted to a Veterans Administration hospital, where I was told I had histoplasmosis. I am now cured, but what are my chances of getting the infection again?"

Almost nil, if you give up farming and exploring caves or other places where birds roost. If you must go into a rural area, stay away from chicken coops and pigeon roosts since these are favorite breeding places for the causative fungus.

Histoplasmosis is a noncontagious lung infection that afflicts millions of Americans, mostly frequently in infancy and in old age. It is caused by Histoplasma capsulatum, a mold or fungus, that thrives in damp, shady areas and lives in soil contaminated by bird droppings (of bats, starlings and pigeons). The benign form of the disease is symptomless, but most of the victims develop fever, fatigue, chest pain and a slight cough, all symptoms that are indistinguishable from those caused by flu. Some sufferers cough up bloody sputum and develop aching and shortness of breath. Others have more serious manifestations like those seen in severe flu, pneumonia, or tuberculosis.

DIAGNOSIS IS MADE by cultures of secretions from bone marrow, blood, sputum, exudate from an ulcer, or by administering the histoplasmin skin test. A positive reaction may denote a past or mild, chronic infection. Expensive tests are often needed to rule out pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid and even leukemia. This is especially true when the yeast-like fungi have spread throughout the body. Few organs are exempt from infection.

Ingested for a relatively short period of time, Amphotericin-B, an antibiotic, has been effective. This drug hastens recovery and may prevent a protracted illness. The sulfonamides yield the best results in children.

ANGINA, HEAT

E. J. writes: Does the excessive heat and humidity of summer aggravate angina pectoris?

REPLY

Yes. The heart has to work harder to adjust to extremes of heat.

TENSION AND GLAUCOMA

S. O. writes: Do nerves play an important part in glaucoma?

REPLY

Yes, emotional upsets may increase pressure within the eyeball.

LEG MOTTLING

M. M. writes: Can you tell me something about livido reticularis? I've got it, and my doctor knows neither its cause nor treatment.

REPLY

Your physician is right. We do not know the cause of livido reticularis. This disorder is similar to chilblains and is best described as a mottling of the skin over the upper or lower extremities. You should keep your legs warm and if the skin is unsightly, cover it with a suitable masking cream.

WHITE KNUCKLE FLIGHT

Mrs. J. writes: We are flying to Europe this summer, and I have a fear of heights. Is there a medicine I can take to relieve this anxiety?

REPLY

Your physician can prescribe one of the many sedatives that are available.

PAINLESS ARTHRITIS

L. G. A. writes: Is there such a thing as painless arthritis?

REPLY

Yes. An X-ray may show extensive evidence of arthritis, but the victim will have none of the symptoms, such as pain, swelling or limitation of movement of the joint.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

FORGETFUL

M. L. writes: Could forgetfulness be the first sign of insanity?

REPLY

Perhaps. But so many of us are forgetful, the condition cannot be regarded as an early sign of disease. There are many types of insanity, and the first symptoms are so vague, it is difficult to single out the culprit. Besides, there is no sharp line of demarcation between normal and abnormal. I assume you are not referring to the amnesia some psychotic persons develop during the height of their illness.

VERTIGO

H. H. writes: Could four days in a mountainous region cause an attack of dizziness three days later?

REPLY

I doubt it because of the timing and also because so many people develop dizziness even though most of them have never been to the mountains. Did you catch cold while away?

Ford Invites Rabin To Mideast Session

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has invited Israeli prime minister Yitzhak Rabin to visit Washington in early September for the final round of Arab-Israeli consultations on a Middle East peace settlement.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced the invitation in a news conference yesterday in which he said he would be conferring later this week with the Syrian foreign minister.

GAZER'S GUIDE

Equinox To Be Sky Feature

By DR. THOMAS D. NICHOLSON
Director, the American Museum of Natural History, New York

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Sept. 1 — Mercury is in conjunction with Mars. Both are in the evening sky tonight but are too low, too dim, and set too soon after sunset to be visible.

Sept. 1 — Jupiter rises below and shortly after the waning gibbous moon a little after sundown tonight. During the night, the moon moves slowly to the east (left) above Jupiter, passing nearest to the planet about 5 a.m., local daylight time.

Sept. 5: Jupiter is directly opposite the sun in our sky. This means that Jupiter rises tonight at sunset and sets tomorrow morning at sunrise. During the months hereafter, it will become more obviously an evening star.

Sept. 7 — The bright morning star near Venus (but not nearly as bright as Venus) is Regulus, in Leo.

Sept. 11 — The bright object nearest the moon this morning is Saturn. Tomorrow morning, the moon will be to the east (left) of Saturn and more distant from it.

Sept. 14 — The moon is at perigee, nearest Earth.

Sept. 17 — Mercury is near the early crescent moon this evening, but it will be difficult to see either one.

Sept. 23 — The sun has been moving southward in the sky above the Earth and today it crosses above the equator, at the point in the sky known as the autumnal equinox, at 5:59 a.m., LDT. At that time, summer ends and autumn begins in the Northern Hemisphere.

Sept. 26 — The moon is at apogee, farthest from Earth.

Sept. 28 — For the second time this month, Jupiter rises near the moon, this time shortly after sunset, since opposition occurred earlier in the month. Again, you can see the moon moving closer to Jupiter during the night as it passes above the planet, nearest to it at 5 a.m., LDT.

All month: Mercury, Mars, and Jupiter are technically evening stars this month ?Jupiter after the fifth), but none of them look like it. Mercury and Mars are simply too low in the western sky at sundown. Both planets set so soon after the sun that they cannot be seen.

As for Jupiter, it is bright enough, but its position is such that it is just rising in the east at sundown, amid the dim stars of Aquarius. During the night, it moves westward and higher till midnight, when it is in the south, then lower until it reaches the western horizon about dawn.

In the dawn sky, Jupiter will still be prominent, low in the west. In the east, Saturn will have risen about midnight and by twilight it will be well up in the southeast. Venus also rises before the sun, but just barely in time to be seen before the sky brightens in early September and too late to be visible in late September.

Al Hirt Getting New Restaurant

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Trumpeter Al Hirt signed a lease for a new cafe in a renovated section of the French Market yesterday.

While Hirt said his French Quarter nightclub will remain open, he planned to spend as much time as possible in the new restaurant.

It will be named the Cafe St. Cecile after the patron saint of music, he said.

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

Unusual on television tonight:

KCRA (3), KRON (4), 8:30 p.m. — The Snoop Sisters, played by Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick, track down a group of Satanists in "The Devil Made Me Do It," an episode of "The Snoop Sisters," featuring guest stars Alice Cooper, Greg Morris, George Maharis, Joan Blondell and Cyril Ritchards.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 8:30 p.m. — A sculptor absorbed in depicting evil hires a pretty student as the housekeeper at the mansion he and his mother supposedly share with his hopelessly insane sister in "Scream, Pretty Peggy," a suspense drama starring Ted Bessell, Bette Davis and Sian Barbara Allen.

KPIX (5), 9:30 p.m. — A professional gunman, disguised as a respectable businessman, is hired to kill a grand jury witness and sets out on his mission with meticulous planning on "The Murder Machine," a segment of the private detective dramatic series "Shaft."

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — An innocent family is victimized in a false narcotics charge by an unscrupulous police deputy commissioner and his assistant in "Nightmare at 45 Hillcrest," a suspense drama starring James Hutton, Peter Mark Richman, Dan Dubbins and Walter Brooke.

Cash Performs At Penitentiary

MCALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — "The only reason we're here today is because we care about the people," Johnny Cash said after a performance for 850 cheering inmates at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary.

State Corrections Department Director Russell Lash said it was "a great morale booster for the men — they'll be talking about it for months."

Cash was joined yesterday by the Tennessee Three and Glen Shirley, a former prison inmate whom Cash helped get into show business after meeting him at a concert at Folsom prison in California.

She Sets Mark; Loses No Weight

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Housewife Jennie Cox broke a world's record for crow's nest sitting yesterday, but she failed in her attempt to lose 30 pounds.

During her 61 days in a four-foot-diameter crow's nest, Mrs. Cox actually gained two pounds.

A fire truck was called yesterday to pluck Mrs. Cox from her 40-foot-high perch because she didn't think her legs were strong enough for climbing down the metal mast.

She said the first thing she wanted to do was take a long, hot bath.

TELEVISION REVIEW

The Hudson Brother's Story: Ride A Slump To TV Show

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hudson Brothers are riding high now with their summer music-comedy show on CBS. But to hear Bill Hudson tell it, their climb from obscurity was more like riding the crest of a slump.

Record deals collapsed, creditors' notes materialized, empty stomachs rumbled and worst of all, Allan Blye, who now co-produces their show, didn't laugh when they auditioned for him.

But the three brothers — Bill, 24, Mark, 22, and Brett, 21 — never were fazed. Bill says that's because they've always found something to laugh about, usually themselves.

The brothers started their career in their early teens and also started slipping fast comedy bits into their soft-rock music act.

Alas, when they landed their first record contract in 1968 and went on tour, the comedy caused problems, Bill says. The company thought they should stick to music, but the brothers couldn't help gagging it up.

"We've always cracked each other up, but there were many times we didn't crack anyone else up," said Bill. "We'd say something and thought it was hilarious.

"We'd kill ourselves laughing on stage and we'd stop laughing — and silence . . ."

The Hudson comedy style on their Wednesday night show is a wild blend of sight gags, quick skits and fresh puns.

Bill said it evolved in late 1968, when the brothers repaired to the basement of the Hudson home in Portland, Ore., and started writing and performing skits.

They went back on the road, but fiscal disaster followed. One record company flew them from Los Angeles to New York to play at a bash, but the bash was canceled for reasons unknown, he said.

"The company wouldn't fly us back " Bill said, "And we only had $50 between us."

They grabbed whatever club dates they could find. One club hired them for two weeks, but wouldn't pay in advance. It did agree to advance them one meal a night.

They finally arrived home in Portland with total cash assets of 75 cents.

Their big break came — and went — in early 1973 when they met pop music star Elton John, whom Hudson said liked their style and wanted to produce an album recorded by them in England, a deal that fizzled.

But prior to leaving for England, he said, they'd met Chris Bearde, producer of the old "Sonny and Cher" show, and auditioned for him.

Bill Hudson recalled that an audition before Blye left them feeling fame and fortune were not imminent.

"We did 45 minutes for him, used everything in the bag," he said. "But he didn't crack a smile and our hearts just fell."

Chewing Gum Industry Hit By Inflation

CHICAGO (UPI) — Inflation appears ready to claim another victim — the 10-cent package of chewing gum.

The dominant firm in the industry, William Wrigley Jr. Co., has announced a 30 per cent wholesale price increase in three of its brands. The hikes follow 15 per cent increases June 29.

Wrigley claims to manufacture nearly half of the chewing gum market in the United States. Its president, William Wrigley, said since early 1974 materials in gum have been hit with "staggering cost increases."

Wrigley said they have risen 50 per cent this year.

A Wrigley spokesman said the wholesale cost of a single package of seven sticks is 7.5 cents.

The over-the-counter price may rise to 15 cents in some parts of the country.

House Creats National Monument

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted yesterday to create a new national monument and five national historic sites at a cost of $18.5 million.

It also approved a $42,4 million package of additions and improvements to existing National Park System units in 11 states, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

The additions to the park system would be made under two bills sent to the Senate by voice vote.

One bill would establish the John Day Fossil Beds National Monument on Oregon at a cost of $4.4 million.

The five new historic sties and their estimated cost include:

Clara Barton home at Glen Echo, Md., $812,000; Knife River Indian Villages, N.D., $1.1 million; Springfield Armory, Mass., $5.3 million; Tuskegee Institute, Ala., $2.7 million, and the Martin Van Buren home in Columbia County, N.Y., $2.7 million.

Major additions proposed in a second bill sent to the Senate include 1,873 acres to the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore, 8,738 acres to the Biscayne National Monument in Florida and 1,556 acres to the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado.

The bill would permit additional spending of $7.6 million to buy land for the Indiana park, $2 million for the Florida unit and $2.4 million for the Colorado park.

The legislation, if agreed to by the Senate, will increase the ceiling for land acquisition at 10 park units. Spending for development could be increased at five parks.

The total new spending authority of $42.4 million would include $37.2 million for land acquisition, $5 million for development and $140,000 for study.

The legislation would merely authorize the spending, with needed funds coming through separate appropriations legislation. Acquisition funds are drawn from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

UFW Strike Proposal Wins Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly today defeated an attempt to eliminate "recognitional strikes" from a controversial farm worker secret ballot election bill supported by the United Farm Workers Union (UFW).

On a 39-25 vote, an amendment to strip the "recognitional strike" provision from the measure (AB3370) was tabled by the Democratic-dominated Assembly.

Several sets of amendments to the bill by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, were prepared for introduction as debate on the legislation moved into the afternoon.

The bill would create a mechnaism for farm laborers to choose a union to represent them by a secret ballot election. It is supported by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers and opposed by growers and the Teamsters Union.

A recognitional strike, in effect, would allow a majority of workers to choose a union by calling a strike, charged Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield, who moved that the "recognitional strike" be struck from the bill.

Victory For Chavez On Bargaining

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time since Cesar Chavez began organizing field hands in Delano vineyards nine years ago, the Assembly has passed a major bill providing secret union elections for farm workers.

But the historic measure, backed by Chavez' United Farm Workers Union (UFW) and opposed by the Teamsters and the growers, faces an uphill battle in the Senate and grave warnings of a veto by Gov. Ronald Reagan if it is not changed drastically.

The bill (AB3370) by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, cleared the 80-member Assembly yesterday on a minimum 41-31 cross-party vote after debate spanning the entire day. William T. Bagley of San Rafael was the lone Assembly Republican casting a vote for the bill.

Alatorre, a Chicano and a UFW supporter, said the bill would "end the chaos in the fields of California" and provide for "representation for the majority of farm workers."

But Republican Assemblyman Bob Wood, a Greenfield farmer, opposed the measure, saying: "There is a great probability the governor would not sign this bill in its present form because it was written for one particular group (the UFW)."

Supported by the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, the bill would grant for the first time a secret ballot mechanism for farm workers to choose a union to represent them — if any. But it was silent on the controversial subject of secondary boycotts, which are permitted under current law.

The bill also would permit farm workers to call a "recognitional" strike against their employers as a way of getting them to acknowledge a union as their bargaining agent. A new state commission would be created to oversee farm labor relations.

Tam High District Board Wants To Reopen Teacher Pay Parley

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night told Supt. Robert D. Torrey to meet with teacher representatives to discuss reopening negotiations on teachers' salaries.

According to Edward J. Neumeier, district administrative assistant, Torrey, who represents trustees in negotiations, will meet with representatives of the Tamalpais Federation of Teachers and the Tamalpais District Teachers Association to schedule negotiation dates.

Negotiations collapsed last spring and teachers, who wanted a 15 per cent wage hike, staged a one-day strike over the 4 per cent granted by trustees.

A special committee appointed by trustees met throughout the summer studying district finances and the budget, and recommended that salary negotiations be reopened.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

SEX — Discussed at length proposed materials to be used in human sexuality classes in the district's three high schools. Trustees deleted from the list of series of records and film strips dealing with "heterosexual and homosexual intercourse" but approved all other proposed materials.

COURSE — Approved a new course for Tamalpais High School, biological macro photography.

TRANSPORTATION — Noted that trustees Bette Wallace and Lotte Schiller and district business director Frank Cassou will meet with Bolinas area parents Thursday at 8 p.m. in Bolinas School to discuss transportation for students from the area.

REDEVELOPMENT — Approved an agreement with Corte Madera extending until Jan. 20, 1975, the time in which the district can file legal suits concerning town redevelopment.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to discuss termination of the contract of resigned Tamalpais High School principal Lawrence E. Sheppard and his new salary as a teacher, but took no action.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

Grid Giants' Surgeon In Gambling Scandal

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The team surgeon for the New York Giants provided known gamblers with confidential information about player injuries last season, it was disclosed today when two members of an organized crime family were arrested on pro football bookmaking charges.

Dr. Anthony "Tony" Pisani, chief orthopedic surgeon for 10 years with the Giants before resigning that position a month ago, has been mentioned in a 40-count indictment but was not charged.

Thomas Musto, 65, of New York and Michael Astarita, 47, of Hillsdale, N.J., both known gamblers and partners in an operation said to have handled more than $100,000 in wagers on a typical football weekend, were formally charged in Manhattan Supreme Court with conspiracy in the third degree and bookmaking in the first degree, a felony carrying a possible penalty of three to five years in prison.

Musto is a "soldier" in the organized crime family formerly headed by the late Vito Genovese while Astarita is a one-time associate of the late Thomas "Tommy Ryan" Eboli, gunned down and killed in Brooklyn more than a year ago.

Pisani's involvement with the two gamblers came to light during an an intensive investigation begun last September by the Public Morals Division of the New York Police Department's Organized Crime Control Bureau. The unit worked in conjunction with the Rackets Bureau of the Manhattan District Attorney's office.

During the course of the investigation, Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and Wellington Mara, the Giants' President, both were informed a probe was being conducted which involved Pisani. He resigned as team surgeon shortly thereafter.

The conspiracy count against Musto and Astarita in the indictment was based on the charge "they conferred with Dr. Anthony Pisani, New York Giants' orthopedic surgeon, to increase their winnings above the customary bookmakers' profits by acquiring certain medical information as to the physical condition of several New York Giants' football players."

Court papers filed by District Attorney Richard Kuh's office charged that Musto and Astarita "agreed to confer on a regular basis with Dr. Pisani throughout the (1973) football season regarding the extent and exact nature of injuries sustained by Ron Johnson, Carl Lockhart, John Mendenhall and other offensive and defensive players with the Giants."

On one occasion last season, according to the indictment, Musto "refused to discuss the football (betting) line with a certain individual, stating 'I want to speak with the doctor first to find out what he knows about injuries.'" Pisani, a native New Yorker and a popular figure in the National Football League, is considered one of the most skilled orthopedic men in the profession. He is the chief orthoepedic surgeon at St. Vincent's Hospital here and clinical professor of orthopedic surgery at Bellvue Medical College.

His surgical techniques for repairing torn knee ligaments were widely copied by doctors with other pro football teams, and athletes with knee troubles in all sports frequently were sent to him from every section of the country. He is credited with prolonging the careers of many Giants' players, including Tucker Fredrickson and Greg Larson.

The investigation which led to the arrest of Musto and Astarita was supervised by First Deputy Police Commissioner James Taylor and James Hannon, Chief of the Organized Crime Control Bureau, and was under the immediate direction of Sgt. Lawrence McGee.

NFL Factions No Longer Far Apart

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the National Football League owners rejected the players' "final proposal" Saturday night, NFL management council executive director John Thompson says the two sides are no longer that far apart — once the length of the contract is decided upon.

"I'm not optimistic on an early settlement, but neither am I pessimistic," said Thompson yesterday. "The players started with 90 demands in March, which then fell to 63. Now they've come out with a 15-item list. Two or three weeks ago, the federal mediators asked us to make a list of our areas of difference. Our list had 28, theirs 27. With the overlap, there were 33 areas to discuss.

"Nearly half of these have been settled."

However, said Thompson, the owners could not accept a pact for only a one season period, claiming that to sign such an agreement would be destructive to pro football.

"The terms of the agreement proposed by the players for a five-month contract to expire Jan. 31 is unacceptable to us," said Thompson. "One playing season is not enough for a reasonable contract. The game itself can't stand another year like this one that we've gone through. The strike has had a tremendous economic effect — everyone's been a loser.

"We hope that when we reach an agreement we will have a four-year contract or longer. Trying to restore normalcy is our No. 1 goal."

Although the players' proposal was rejected, Thompson said the owners would return to the bargaining table with a counter-package, their first since

DOWN HE GOES — Amos Martin of the Minnesota Vikings (55) got set to lower the boom on falling Dolphin runner Jim Kiick last night in the first quarter at Miami. The Dolphins won the National Football League exhibition game, 21-9. (UPI Telephoto)

Grind-It-Out Dolphins Display Winning Style

MIAMI (UPI) — It wasn't the same as Super Bowl VIII but for the Monday night television football watcher, it was close — in the first half, anyway.

Just as they did in their 24-7 Super Bowl win over Minnesota in January, the Miami Dolphins played grind-it-out football Monday night to down the Vikings 21-9.

The Dolphins used most of their regulars in the first half, with quarterback Bob Griese calling his usual artful game and Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick pushing for steady hunks of yardage. By intermission, it was 14-0 and the Dolphins needed only to hang on to win.

"I thought the veterans, offensively and defensively, played exceptionally well in the first half," Miami Coach Don Shula said. "Bob Griese called an exceptional ball game and he, Csonka and Kiick played well for the short time they've been in camp."

Csonka, who with Kiick and wide receiver Paul Warfield are bound for the World Football League Memphis Southmen in 1975, scored touchdowns from one and three yards out. Csonka gained 61 yards on 16 carries in the first half.

Warfield did not play but the crowd showed what Shula called "mixed emotions" for Kiick and Csonka when they were introduced.

But the pair seemed to dispell any belief that they will be below par this year — their last in the NFL.

"I have a great amount of respect for each of them, as individuals and as football players," Shula said. "My only disappointment is that they didn't give us an opportunity to talk about it before they signed. Our big thing now is to get this team ready for the regular season."

Many observers had given the Dolphins the edge because most of their veterans had been in camp longer than the Vikings. When the NFL Players Association called a cooling off period last Wednesday, there were 34 Dolphins already working out while only six Vikings were in camp.

In addition to Csonka's two first half touchdowns, Miami scored in the fourth quarter on an eight-yard run by rookie Nat Moore.

Minnesota's Dave Osborne scored from one-yard out on the end of an 80-yard drive in the fourth quarter. Fred Cox had kicked a 27-yard field goal for the Vikings in the third period.

'Bryant Of Old' Beats Bucs

First Win Since May For Lefty

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ron Bryant, bidding to regain the form that made him a 24-game winner last season, earned his first pitching triumph in more than two months last night as he helped the San Francisco Giants to a 5-3 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Off-form since suffering a severe gash in his right side in a freak swimming pool accident during spring training, Bryant boosted his record to 3-12 with his first start since July 7 and his first win in nine decisions.

"That was the Ron Bryant of old you saw out there tonight," Giants manager Wes Westrum said after Bryant allowed seven hits and three runs over eight innings.

"I came out to the ballpark about noon and just sat here thinking about how well everything went last year and now this year," said Bryant, savoring his first victory since May 31.

"And I kept telling myself I had to get back in a good frame of mind and start pitching like I've shown I can pitch," said the curly-haired lefty.

Bryant and losing pitcher Jim Rooker were tied 3-3 into the Giants' ninth when San Francisco scored two runs with the help of a single by Bryant.

After Rooker walked Gary Matthews on four pitches to open the inning, Chris Speier moved him to second with a sacrifice bunt. Dave Kingman followed with a double that was ruled fair after hitting just inches behind third base.

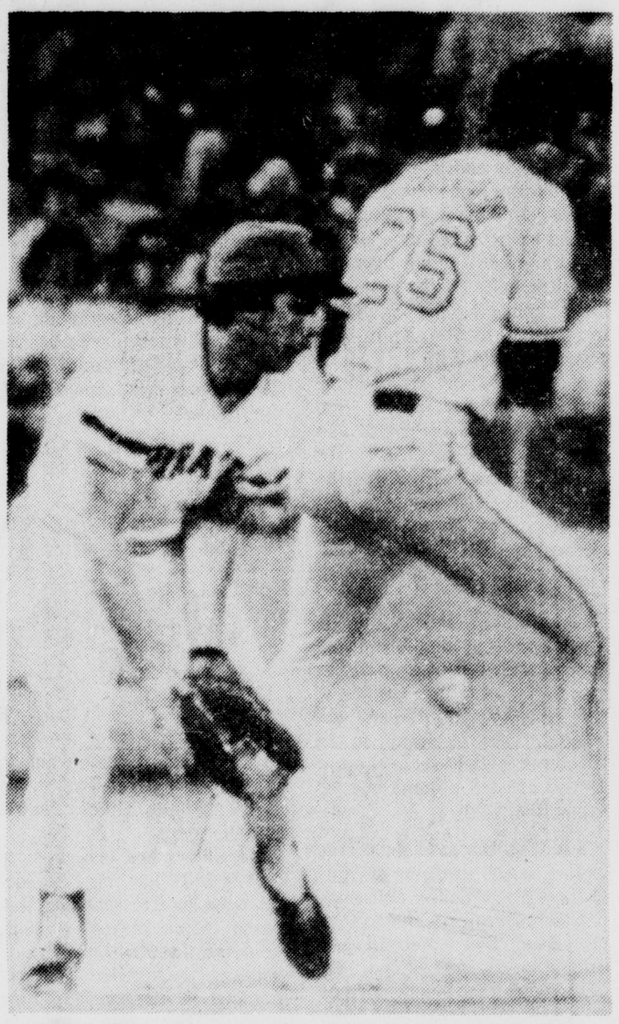
That provided the margin of victory, and the Giants added an insurance run after Bruce Miller was walked intentionally and Bryant scored Kingman with a two-out single to center that chased Rocker.

Rooker, 8-10 with the loss, was visibly angered after the game.

"We didn't get where we're at playing like we did tonight," Rooker said. The Pirates had squandered a chance to move to within 1½ games of the National League East lead.

"There was some lousy baseball being played out there tonight," Rooker snapped.

A reporter asked Rooker if he was suggesting that third baseman Richie Habner should have caught Kingman's run-scoring hit over third base in the ninth. As he has been known to do on sharply hit balls, Hebner didn't move a muscle as Kingman's hit shot past him and rolled down the left field line.



TOO LATE — Dave Kingman of the Giants arrived safely at third base as Pirates' Richie Hebner took the late throw in the third inning last night in Pittsburgh. Kingman didn't score, but in the ninth he drove in the winning run. (UPI Telephoto)

Rooker's two-run triple staked Pittsburgh to a 2-0 lead in the second, and he also scored a run to tie the score at 3-3 in the fifth.

The Giants had taken a 3-2 lead with three runs in the fifth off Rooker, who had a one-hitter going into the fifth.

After Kingman walked with one out in the fifth, he took third on a bloop single to center by Miller.

Kingman then scored on a wild pitch, Ken Rudolph followed with an infield single to move Miller to third before Bryant sacrificed Rudolph to second and Garry Maddox belted a two-run single.

SECOND ACE, SAME HOLE

John Tarrantino of Greenbrae pulled a "Believe It or Not" feat Sunday when he scored an ace on the 11th hole at the Richmond Golf course for the second time in two months.

Tarrantino, who got the first hole-in-one of his life July 6 on the 145-yard par three hole, did it again Sunday with Thomas Morse of Corte Madera and Jim Dellos of San Mateo watching. He used a five iron both times.

MILWAUKEE WINS, 1-0

A's Blue Loses 'A Game Of Great Pitching'

OAKLAND (AP) — "It was a game of great pitching," manager Alvin Dark summed up last night after his Oakland A's had lost 1-0 to the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Our pitcher was very good and theirs were even better," he added.

Billy Champion and Tom Murphy combined to pitch a six-hit shutout, with the victory going to Champion.

Losing pitcher Vida Blue gave up only four hits in going all the way, but one of them was a second-inning homer by George Scott.

The loss cut Oakland's lead to five games over the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

"I can't explain my wildness," said Blue, who walked eight batters and struck out four. "I couldn't get the ball over."

Scott felt fortunate to hit a homer off Blue. "He's one of the best pitchers in the league. For every hit I've had against him, I've gone 0-for-four," Scott said.

The A's had only one serious threat in the game. A walk to Sal Bando and a single by Reggie Jackson put two runners in scoring position in the sixth inning. But Champion got Joe Rudi on a long fly to right field, and Jesus Alou grounded out to end the inning.

Murphy picked up his 15th save of the year by blanking the A's on one hit over the last two innings.

Jackson was the center of an unfortunate incident in the ninth inning when he accidentally threw his bat into the stands after popping up. The bat struck two youngsters, but they were unhurt.

Owner Charles O. Finley of the A's invited the two youngsters into the clubhouse where Jackson apologized for the incident. The boys were each given a bat, an autographed ball and an Oakland A's hat.

Meanwhile, the A's yesterday traded Pat Bourque to Minnesota for Jim Holt in a swap of reserve first basemen.

The A's meet the Brewers again tonight with Catfish Hunter, 17-10 pitching against Eduardo Rodriguez, 6-2, of Milwaukee.

See A's box score on inside page.

Snyder, Anderson Break 16 Records

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — Sixteen national and world records were set yesterday by drivers Bill Snyder and Vern Anderson.

Snyder, a 54-year-old air conditioner company executive, set eight records in a Ford Ranchero powered by a 144 cubic inch diesel fueled air conditioner motor.

Anderson, 35, blasted his "Pollution Packer" rocket car to eight records in the standing quarter-mile and standing half-kilometer.

Snyder breezed down the flying quarter-mile at 110.385 miles per hour and set the flying one-mile record at 110.336 MPH.

Anderson's hydrogen peroxide powered rocket car blew through the standing quarter in 4.93 seconds at 181.341 miles per hour to break the records set by the late Dave Anderson last September.

Dipsea Race: A Celebration Set Aug. 25

By DAVID EINSTEIN

It is an athletic event, a tradition and one of Marin County's claims to fame. But more than these, the Dipsea Race is a celebration.

A more festive mood would be hard to imagine than that which will pervade Mill Valley's Lytton Square the morning of Aug. 25. Some 1,500 runners, including grandfathers, children and entire families, will be there at 10 o'clock for the start of the 6.8 mile cross-country run to Stinson Beach — the 64th annual Dipsea.

It may be foggy, it will probably be cold, but nothing will daunt the joyful mood of the runners as they prepare to challenge the course.

Actually, the course will challenge the runners. It opens with 671 steps rising from Old Mill Park to the Panaramic Highway.

The open and rugged terrain that follows, down through Muir Woods, up Cardiac Hill to Lone Pine Spring, down again to Steep Ravine, up again on Insult Hill and finally down to Stinson, is so difficult that the fastest runners will need three-quarters of an hour to cover it. By contrast, a world-class distance runner can run twice as far in the same time on a flat course.

The course has been much the same since 1905, when the first race was organized by an affiliate of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, a group called the "Dipsea Indians." A half dozen sponsors have handled the race since, including the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce from 1963 to the present. Yet except for the years of World War II, the Dipsea has been held every year. It has also grown steadily larger, from 110 entries in that first race to more than 1,200 last year.

To insure that every runner has a chance to win, the race is handicapped up to 15 minutes. Thus last year a 10-year-old girl, Mary Etta Boitano of San Francisco, was the overall winner. It came as no surprise because her brother Mike won the two previous years.

The handicap system also gives old timers a chance; in 1970 the overall winner was sexagenarian Norman Bright of the Olympic Club.

Applications for the race can be obtained at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce. Runners filing before Aug. 17 will pay $3, afterward $4. For families, one member must pay the full fee but additional members can run for $1 each.

Registration will be open up until a half hour before the start of the race at Litton Square. Every runner must have an Amateur Athletic Union membership card, which will be available at the race.

Which brings us once more to Litton Square, and the mood of celebration as 1,500 runners and a massive crowd of spectators swarm around the picturesque, half-timbered buildings of downtown Mill Valley.

Harry Cordellos, a perenially runner in the Dipsea, wrote an epithet that conjures up images of bygone days when men had handlebar moustaches and women wore bonnets. Yet it fits the Dipsea perfectly:

"... Through the poison oak
we'll stumble,
Down in Steep Ravine
we'll tumble,
If you will meet me at
the Dipsea-Dipsea,
Meet me at the race.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

On The Road With Officials

Last week Fish and Game Department biologists Gil Thompson and I were assigned to take Tim Doheny, the vice president of the Fish and Game Commission on a tour of Tubb's Island in Sonoma County and the Tomales Bay area in Marin County.

The Fish and Game commissioners are appointed by Governor Reagan to set up the laws and policies of the Fish and Game Department.

To me, it was like taking the governor around. I had never seen a commissioner before in my 26 years as a warden. Everything had to be right. I had the car checked, dusted, shined and polished.

I PICKED UP Gil at Marinwood about an hour early, then called the number in Oakland given to me by the office to recheck the time and place. Someone at the other end of the phone answered, "horse stables!" I asked for Mr. Doheny. "Never heard of him," was the reply. Further questioning brought out that there was a restaurant at the site. Gil and I decided to go there.

While having breakfast, a big black limousine drove up with the commissioner and two friends, Bob Keefer and Bob McFall. After introductions, we proceeded to Tubb's Island, situated adjacent to San Pablo Bay along the Sonoma County shoreline.

Everything was going fine. Then we met Diane! We were at the Nature Conservancy buildings, when she suddenly appeared, coming out of the bushes which cover most of the island. She said she was the island's keeper.

We explained our presence. Diane volunteered to take us around the perimeter of the island, which was what we came to see. Our interest was to view the island and to study its part as the closed refuge area of the new San Pablo Bay Wildlife Refuge.

She pointed the way, so I drove the car that way. About that time, we noticed a sleeping bag out in the brush. Diane said she liked to sleep out watching the stars!

THE ROAD got rougher. I started to sweat. For two miles, I sweat that jungle road out. At one point, we came upon a tent set up in the middle of the road. Diane commented, "That's Tupper's tent. He's a bird watcher.."

There was no backing up, so I got out and took the tent down. We finally made it through. The car was covered with twigs, leaves and dust. We noted a dripping leak from the gas tank.

The leak was slight. I figured I could make it home and exchange cars for my Suburban.

Everything went fine. Lots of laughs until I remembered that Andy my son, had taken the Suburban the day before with Bruno the dog for a buck hunt. The car was full of dust, some blood, (Andy had killed a buck). The interior smelled as if a skunk had worked it over. Bruno had been doused by a skunk, and Andy had thrown him into the little lake at the ranch to clean him off. The car seats were pretty muddy. From such a good start to this!

About then my wife Mary came home for lunch. She showed the trio the house and questioned the commissioner about the duck seasons and the sage grouse seasons to be set the next day. I got the car cleaned up.

Things looked better. We stopped for lunch at Jerry's Farm House in Olema. Jerry's wife gave us a laugh. She asked the commissioner if he was associated with me, the game warden. The commissioner answered, "Yes, in a way, so the lady immediately said, "I knew it, you can tell a game warden everytime!"

WE HAD a good lunch, then looked at the problems relating to herring, Wildlife Conservation Board projects, the ecological area, the steelhead and salmon areas, the National Seashore and the newly formed Golden Gate Recreational Area. We looked at Bolinas Lagoon and the salmon fishing gounds off Stinson Beach. Actually it turned out to be a good informative day.

We had driven 256 miles when we arried at Sausalito. I still had Oakland and the return trip to make, when suddenly the commissioner said to pull over. The three fellows got out, shook hands all around, then they took a taxi cab. They said they were all coming back for another tour.

Gaters Need Win Tonight—Badly

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden Gaters need to win tonight's playoff match against the Denver Racquets if they want to advance to the semifinal round of the World Team Tennis championships.

The Gaters lost last night to Denver 29-17 for only the second time in five matches this season. Since playoff winners are determined by total games won over two matches, the Gaters need to win by 13 games tonight if they are to move into the WTT semifinals.

The Racquets won the first four matches and led 24-10 before Frew McMillan and Ilana Kloss gave the Gaters their only victory of the night, 7-5, in mixed doubles.

Denver's Francoise Durr led Barbara Downs 5-1 in women's singles before Lesley Hunt substituted for Downs and lost the final game. Hunt, who usually plays in the women's singles, was sidelined last Thursday after she was struck in the eye by a tennis ball.

"She's still not 100 per cent yet and has some slight vision defects," said player-coach McMillan. He won't decide whether to let her play the singles match tonight until after another eye examination today.

In men's singles, Denver's Dick Pattison beat Dick Bornstedt 6-3.

"Dick wasn't able to get in his first serve as much as usual, and he only got one or two points off my serve," said Pattison.

Then Durr and Kris Kemmer teamed up to beat the Gaters pair of Hunt and Kloss, 6-4, and Pattison and Tony Roche defeated McMillan and Bornstedt, 6-2.

'A Good Loser' Is Seeking Golf Win

(Fifth in a series)

Mill Valley Municipal Golf Course champion Terry Nichols is an artist with a paint brush and "a good loser" with a putter. Obviously, Mrs. Nichols has a sense of humor as she prepares for the seventh annual women's Tournament of Champions at Indian Valley Friday, 9 a.m.

"I'm rooting for Nancy (Gapinski, San Geronimo champion), because I belong to San Geronimo, too," Mrs. Nichols said.

Others in the field are defending champion Tillie Gondak of Marin Country Club, Laura Cann of Meadow Club, Liz Cole of Peacock Gap and Peg Williams of Indian Valley.

When not brushing up on her golf, Mrs. Nichols can be found at her San Rafael home working on oil paintings. The Massachusetts native studied under artist Leo Brodeur before moving to Marin in 1966.

However, the artist and housewife has been busily preparing for her second tourney appearance. "I've been playing two to four times a week. Last year, I just played for the experience." She tied Mrs. Harold Baer of Peacock Gap for last place at 93 in 1973.

This year, she hopes to do better but. . . "I don't play well at Indian Valley. I have trouble putting there."

When asked to pick the strongest part of her game, she replied: "I'm a good loser." The 13-handicapper then added that she is "normally a good putter, and I'm best with my short irons."

Mrs. Nichols' husband Arthur works for Fireman's Fund Insurance in San Francisco. The couple has three children: Leslie, 25; Glenn, 23; and Lynn, 20.

Handicap Won't Stop Gutty Baseball Star

By DAVID EINSTEIN

A major league baseball scout, prowling for talent during the Joe DiMaggio regional tournament at Novato High School Friday, was interested for a while in Dennis Marshall of Arcata. He appreciated the fluidity of Marshall's swing, and noted the tall first baseman's quickness in the field.

The scout thought, however, that Marshall wasn't a fast enough runner to merit further consideration. Most baseball experts agree, and the 16-year-old Arcata High School senior's career will probably end when he finishes college.

Not bad for a guy who has always played with an artificial leg.

Unlike many handicapped players, whose greatest accomplishment is just being able to play, Marshall is a star. He hit .365 for Arcata Outdoor Store in the McKinleyville DiMaggio League, and he bats cleanup for McKinleyville, which picked him up expressly for this tournament. Earlier in the season, he was chosen most valuable player in a Colt League tourney.

Besides the big league scout, neither tournament director Art Thompson nor this writer could tell from watching him play which is Marshall's bad leg. It follows that nobody in the stands could even guess he was fiberglas and wood from the knee down on his right side.

Marshall lost his leg in a car accident when he was five. At eight, he began to play ball. His parents neither encouraged nor discouraged him, "but once I had started, they were behind me. It's not much of a handicap, except on running," he says. "I have to play a little closer to the bag, but I've always worked on my quickness."

In addition to baseball, Marshall swims and water skis ("I can touch my shoulder to the water"). Because he's in the water a lot, he wears a modified leg without a customary leather sheath in the socket at his knee. "So I get blisters when I run a lot, and then I can't play 100 per cent.

"But that's the only handicap," he adds. Judging from the way he plays, Marshall should give other players handicaps.

Taiwan Favored In Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Kao Hsuing, Taiwan, looms as a heavy favorite to extend a three-year Nationalist Chinese winning streak in the 28th Little League World Series which opens today.

Eight teams with a combined record of 71-2 will be vying for the Little League crown, last won by a U.S. team in 1970.

Kao Hsuing meets New Haven, Conn., and Athens, Greece, a team comprised of the sons of American military and embassy personnel, takes on Tallmadge, Ohio, in today's opening round.

Tomorrow, the first round will conclude with Esquimalt, Canada, meeting Red Bluff, Calif., and Jackson, Tenn., facing Maracaibo, Venezuela.

Teams from Nationalist China have captured the title the past three seasons and four out of the last five. The Far East representative has won the World Series six out of the last seven years, with only Wayne, N.J. breaking the string in 1970.

Powell Is New Bike Champion

Frank Powell of San Rafael is the new senior champion of the Marin Cyclists following his victory Saturday in a 65-mile race from Lucas Valley to Marshall and back.

The race was the sixth and last in the Marin club's summer series. Marshall's win was his second in the series.

Al Kerr of Terra Linda came in second, with Kent Carlomagno of San Rafael third.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

A Rocky Debut For Rookie

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Welcome to the major leagues, Tom Underwood.

The Philadelphia Phils' highly touted pitcher made his major league debut against the Cincinnati Reds last night and nobody could blame the 20-year-old lefty if he wishes to forget the experience.

"Not too many pitchers make their major league debut on national television like that," said the native of Kokomo, Ind., who came on in relief and lasted one-third of an inning, facing seven batters and allowing six runs, including a grand slam homer by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's homer was his second of the game and 17th of the year and highlighted a nine-run third inning for the Reds, who won 15-2. The triumph enabled Cincinnati to remain 2 ½ games behind first place Los Angeles in the National League West.

Losing pitcher Wayne Twitchell was the victim of Morgan's first homer, which came in the second inning with two runners on as the Reds' second baseman finished with seven RBIs and made it easy for Don Gullett, who went seven innings, to gain his 14th victory against eight losses.

In other National League games, Los Angeles edged Chicago 8-7 in 12 innings, San Francisco beat Pittsburgh 5-3, Atlanta walloped St. Louis 11-6, Houston shaded New York 2-1 in 11 innings and Montreal beat San Diego 7-4.

Dodgers 8, Cubs 7

Relief specialist Mike Marshall, who hurled six scoreless innings, raced home from second on an infield out to give Los Angeles its win over Chicago and snap the Dodgers' six-game losing streak. Marshall, winning his 12th game against eight losses, was on second with one out in the 12th when Rick Auerbach topped a slow roller down the first base line. Catcher Steve Swisher picked up the ball and threw out Auerbach but when Marshall discovered that neither Cub pitcher Oscar Zamora nor third baseman Bill Madlock was covering home, he scored unmolested.

Braves 11, Cardinals 6

Henry Aaron, finding his favorite victim in the return of Claude Osteen, smacked a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Marty Perez drove in four runs with two doubles to lead Atlanta over St. Louis.

Astros 2, Mets 1

Milt May, who tied the game with a sacrifice fly in the ninth, singled home the winning run with two out in the 11th to give Houston its win over New York.

Expos 7, Padres 4

Barry Foote doubled home a run in the second inning and snapped a 3-3 tie with a seventh inning home run to lead Montreal past San Diego.

STRIKE

July 19, "as soon as we can cost out a proposal and the mediators call us back together."

Thompson said the topics both sides are still at odds over include the Rozelle rule — whereby commissioner Pete Rozelle determines the compensation to a club which loses a player to another club — which he said was "an integral part of our system. We feel there must be a reasonable restraint. A club losing a player needs some fair compensation."

Other controversial areas include raising the salary for players playing out their option, when to eliminate the option clause for veterans, the standard player contract, no-cut contracts, the agency shop and suspension of two playing rules just instituted: the sudden death overtime and the restrictive punt return rule.

In addition, Thompson said the players presented two new demands for the first time Saturday night, asking for the right of a player to sit out, rather than play out, his option year and for a minimum squad size of 47 men.

Areas in which the two sides have progressed, said Thompson, include the option clause, starting salaries, pre-season pay, post-season money, insurance, medical coverage, pensions and working conditions.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Was It Bill Lee Hurling?

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Bill Lee was credited with his 14th win last night but he swears he didn't pitch in Boston's 6-1 win over the Chicago White Sox.

"That wasn't me out there — that was Buddy Leroux (the team trainer)," said Lee (14-11) after yielding five hits in 7⅓ innings. "Buddy put some capsolin on my arm before the game. That's hot stuff — it makes your arm boil. I'm telling you that wasn't my arm either."

Whoever was throwing for Boston, he showed the effect of the "boiling" arm. The guy in the Bill Lee suit struck out six batters but the "hot stuff" wore off with one out in the eighth when Lee issued his only walk followed by singles to Pete Varney and Jorge Orta.

Diego Segui came on and got American League home run-leader Dick Allen to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Six different Red Sox drove in runs to give Lee of Terra Linda the victory and Segui his eighth save.

In the only other American League games, Milwaukee edged Oakland 1-0, Minnesota beat New York 6-2, and California blanked Detroit 1-0.

Angels 1, Tigers 0

Twins 6, Yankees2

Bobby Darwin drilled a three-run first inning homer and Joe Decker (13-10) tossed a six-hitter to spark the Twins' over the Yankees. The Twins collected five hits and five runs off starter Sam McDowell in only 1⅓ innings while sending the left-hander to his sixth loss in seven decisions. Craig Nettles homered for the Yankees. Decker of Petaluma went the route for the Twins.

Softball Score

Independent Electric edged Cap Purcell, 7-5 last night in a San Anselmo softball league game at Memorial Park.

Illegal Boycott Of Kapp?

Combined AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — An attorney for former quarterback Joe Kapp says the National Football League engaged in an illegal boycott of the ex-University of California star.

Attorney Moses Laskey told a federal judge yesterday Kapp was fired in 1971 because he refused to sign a standard football contract the lawyer claimed violated antitrust laws.

Kapp has asked the court to find that the Boston Patriots, now the New England Patriots, breached a contract with him and that the league's bylaws, constitution, regulations and practices are contrary to law.

VIENNA — Kornelia Ender and Karla Link yesterday set East Germany's second and third world standards in the European championships, Ender with a time of 56.96 seconds in the final of the women's 100-meter breast stroke and Link winning the women's 200-meter breast stroke in two minutes, 37.44 seconds.

Committee Knows Yachts' Status

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Only the America's Cup race committee knows how much longer Mariner and Valiant will remain in the race to select a defender for yachting's most prized trophy.

If performances by twice defender Intrepid and aluminum-hulled co-favorite Courageous in yesterday's round-robin action are any indication, it won't be much beyond this week.

Intrepid won the abbreviated 19.8 mile race against Mariner by 2:39 after giving away 55 seconds at the start. Courageous, never threatened in its contest with aging Valiant, won the second division by 6:48.

Light air delayed the start by three hours and light southwest winds never got higher than six knots.

"It was my mistake. They are very good and they don't make many mistakes," said Mariner skipper Dennis Conner.

His "mistake" was changing from a four-ounce jib to a six-ounce jib on the second reaching leg, which slowed the tin-hulled yacht in the very light air.

It enabled Intrepid, with Gerry Driscoll at the helm, to come within nine seconds at the third mark, rounding wide to cut under Mariner and forced her into the starboard tack.

A Lot of Money

Through June, jockey Laffit Pincay's mounts earned a quarter of a million dollars.

"We really opened up right away, cut the tacks and just seemed to be going a lot faster," Driscoll said. The 1967 and 1970 cup defender lost 55 seconds at the start by bad timing, reaching the line two seconds early and was forced to circle around and cross late.

The same thing happened to Valiant, mending a 40 second delay to Courageous, but her splits kept worsening until the fourth mark, where she was down by 7:01.

In today's action, Intrepid was to pair up with Valiant while the two aluminum contenders, Courageous and Mariner, make up the second division.

Intrepid holds a 7-5 edge over Courageous in races this summer. Overall she is 18-6, Courageous is 14-8, Mariner 5-5 after missing the entire July trial series because of rebuilding, and Valiant 1-19.

In the crucial final trials, Intrepid leads 4-1, Courageous and Mariner are even at 3-2 and Valiant is 0-5.

Coggan Is Third In Soling Series

Dr. Coggan, skipper of the yacht Sonnambula, had 89.1 points following the fifth and sixth races in the series yesterday.

John Kolius of La Port, Tex., increased his lead in the series to 18.6 points over second place Jonathan Ford of Riverside, Conn., yesterday. Kolius' point total stands at 41.4.

Nolan To Start Vets Saturday

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan says he expects to start as many veterans as possible Saturday night when his squad visits the Kansas City Chiefs.

"We'll open with Steve Spurrier at quarterback and we want to give Joe Reed some work, too," Nolan said.

"I'm ready to go," said Spurrier, who suffered through much of last season with a torn cartilage and underwent an operation. "I don't even feel like I've had an operation."

Huffaker Car In Second Win

A new Jaguar V-12 owned by Huffaker Engineering of San Rafael set a track record enroute to its second straight victory Sunday in a Sports Car Club of America sanctioned race at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Lee Mueller of Lynwood, Ca., drove the B production class Jaguar to a lap victory over the field, which included many A production cars. His best lap of two minutes, 5.7 seconds broke the old record by almost six seconds.

The Huffaker car also won in Kent, Wash., a week ago with Mueller in the driver's seat.

India Names Fakhruddin President

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, former food minister and a trusted lieutenant of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, swept to an easy victory today to become India's fifth president.

The 69-year-old Fakhruddin will be the second Moslem to serve as president of predominantly Hindu India since independence.

Fakhruddin, nominee of the ruling Indian Congress Party, easily defeated veteran Socialist legislator Tridib Chaudhuri for a five-year term in the largely ceremonial job.

Fakhruddin will be sworn in on Saturday to replace retiring President V.V. Giri.

India's members of the national parliament and state legislators cast their votes last Saturday. The ballot boxes were flown to Delhi and the official vote count began Tuesday morning.

Fakhruddin — whose election was a foregone conclusion since the Congress party controls nearly 70 per cent of the votes — seized an early lead and maintained it throughout the day.

The veteran parliamentarian and attorney resigned his seat as food minister in Mrs. Gandhi's cabinet when he was nominated by party leaders to run for president. He had served as food minister during a particularly difficult period including two years of droughtdamaged harvests.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, August 20th, the 232nd day of 1974 with 133 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

Benjamin Harrison, 23rd president of the United States, was born August 20th, 1833. American actress Shirley Booth was born on this date in 1907.

Also on this day in history:

In 1741, Danish navigator Vitus Jonas Bering discovered what is now Alaska.

In 1914, Germany occupied the Belgian capital of Brussels in World War I.

In 1955, flying a Supersabre jet, Colonel Horace Hanes reached an altitude of 40 thousand feet and a speed of 822 miles per hour.

In 1966, three thousand persons were counted dead in the aftermath of a Turkish earthquake.

A thought for the day: American writer Edgar Watson said: "What people say behind your back is your standing in the community."

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You Must Use Own Judgment When Hand Is Quite Unusual

Many bridge players have the mistaken idea that partner's penalty double is something like a Supreme Court decision. This might be true if your partner could see your cards as well as his own. Since he cannot, you must use your own judgment when your hand is quite unusual.

Opening lead — ♣ K

Nobody can blame West for doubling two hearts. From his point of view, the enemy had been delivered was going to smite them hip and thigh.

West opened the king of clubs, continued with the ace and then led a third club to make South ruff.

READS HAND

South could now read the entire hand. Obviously, West was void of diamonds. He surely had five cards in each of the major suits, accounting for his opening bid in spades and his penalty double of two hearts.

The spade suit was surely headed by K-Q, since otherwise West would not have a reasonable opening bid.

South led a trump to dummy's queen, drawing East's only trump. Back came the jack of spades, to give West a spade trick.

LOW SPADE

For lack of anything better, West led a low spade and South finessed with dummy's ten. Declarer then cashed the ace of spades, discarding a diamond and ruffed a spade.

Now South led a diamond. West could discard his last spade, but he had to trump the next trick and lead a trump to South's A-K-10. This gave South his doubled contract, for game and rubber.

East should have bid three clubs instead of passing his partner's penalty double. Even if he didn't get to game in clubs, he would surely make a respectable plus score at that suit.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - K Q 9 8 3
♥ - J 9 8 7 4
♦ - None
♣ - K Q 7.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade — if your partner is a reasonable soul.

It pays to open borderline hands of this kind when you have length in both majors. Beware of such bids with jumpy partners, however.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

An Advantage In Fund Share Swap

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I have 320 shares of Mass. Investors Trust. If I transfer some of these to Mass. Income Development will I improve my income and if so, by how much? How many shares must I transfer to realize the $1,000 minimum investment that is required? How much loss would I have on the transfer? Is this allowed as a loss on my income tax? V.S.

A. Since you have not included cost information in your question, I have no way of answering whether you would incur a capital loss upon exchange of your MIT shares for those of MID. However, this type of exchange within a mutual fund group is certainly a taxable transaction. Thus, whether you have a capital loss or a capital gain, it must be reported for income tax purposes.

Your 320 shares of MIT have a current value of about $2,800 on which you earn $118.40 annually from income dividends (a 4 per cent yield). By exchanging this entire amount for MID you would earn $224.50 from income dividends (an 8 per cent yield). Capital gains distributions, which vary from year to year, are not included in comparing yields. If you wish to transfer only the $1,000 minimum amount, about 115-120 shares of Mass.

Q. I hold 100 shares of International Telephone & Telegraph (NYSE) at an average cost of 46 1/2. When it reached 60 we decided not to sell. Now it is about 20 what should we do, average our cost with another 50 shares or sell? A.R.

A. This giant corporation faces major uncertainties in the disposition of Avis and Levitt, stockholders' suits, grand jury investigations and the outlook concerning Hartford Fire Insurance. Earnings have also been disappointing recently. While the company has some very healthy businesses, it also has serious "image" problems which may continue to depress share price. I would suggest accepting your loss in IT&T.

NEW RESTAURANT — Giant lanterns mark the entryway to Marin Toyo, which just opened at the Alpha Beta Shopping Center in Larkspur. It is open for dinner, 5 p.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. Owner Kazuo Hisamatsu has furnished the interior with bamboo screens and natural wood beams and lathwork, in addition to hanging plants and lanterns.

Market's Morning Spurt Fades Away

NEW YORK (UPI) — An early market rebound lost steam toward the noon hour today as prices moved slightly higher in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The gap between advances and declines narrowed, with issues riding in price still holding a lead over losers, 620 to 453, among the 1,512 issues traded. The blue chips posted fractional gains while the glamors softened after attracting buyers in early trading.

Sales through noon came to more than 6,650,000 shares, against 5,270,000 shares changing hands at the same time yesterday.

Wall streeters said the market was ready for an upward bounce after a sharp decline which cut the Dow industrial average by 75.72 points in the last eight sessions.

President Ford's choice of Nelson A. Rockefeller as his vice presidential nominee might have given the market a slight lift, but the overriding concern of investors — as it has for sometime — centered on inflation and the future course of the economy.

Among the marginally higher blue chips, U.S. Steel added ¼, Chrysler ⅛, Dupont ¾, Union Carbide ⅜, and Exxon ⅜.

Clorox led the actives, off ⅛ to 8 ¼ on 245,100 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in quiet trading. Syntex, the volume leader, rose ¼ to 38 on 14,700 shares.

Marin Toyo Japanese Eatery Opens In Alpha Beta Center

Marin Toyo restaurant, featuring Japanese dinners and takeout food, opened for business this week at the Alpha Beta Shopping Center in Larkspur, Magnolia Avenue at Doherty Drive.

The new restaurant, owned by Kazuo and Yoko Hisamatsu of San Francisco, is open Tuesday through Saturday (closed Sunday and Monday) from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. with such dishes as sukiyaki, teriyaki, tempura, tonkatsu (pork cutlets) and combinations. It also serves sake, beer, and house wine. Eventually, the owners plan to open for lunches.

The Hisamatsus also own the Toyo restaurant at 3226 Geary Boulevard in San Francisco, which they have operated for four years.

BERYL NORTH of Tiburon has been named president of Humidor Hostess, a unique new service being offered by Humidor Hosts Inc., with an office at 1690 Tiburon Boulevard. Humidor Hostesses make office calls on men in industry and the professions with portable humidors containing 124 cigars in five sizes ranging from the Churchill to a Panatella.

Mrs. North has been active with the Florence Crittendon Service in Marin County for the past two years. Before that, she was a director and vice president of PR Pacific, a West Coast public relations firm based in Southern California, for nine years.

Foster

HOWARD FOSTER of Greenbrae was appointed treasurer at Bio-Rad Laboratories in Richmond, manufacturer of clinical diagnostic tests and specialty chemicals. He will report to Bio-Rad's president, David Schwartz.

Foster has a master of business administration degree in finance from New York University. He succeeded Glen Drummond, who had been serving as treasurer on an interim basis and who retains the title of secretary.

DRISKILL'S OUTBOARD Shop, specializing in the repair of outboard motors, has opened at 245 Gate 5 Road in Sausalito in space formerly occupied by Don Peters Marine.

Owner of the outboard shop is George W. Driskill of Terra Linda, a former motion picture cameraman in San Francisco and Southern California, who has been tinkering with motors for several years. He grew up in Marin County but was working in Los Angeles until he returned to Marin about two months ago.

Driskill's Outboard Shop, specializing in the repair of Evinrude, Johnson, and Seagull motors, is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. "We're the only outboard motor repair shop in Southern Marin where such service is greatly needed," said Driskill.

ROY A. BELL of San Rafael, senior engineer in Dames & Moore's San Francisco office, has been admitted to partnership in the environmental and applied earth sciences firm.

Bell has more than 20 years of experience in soils and foundation engineering, working on foundations investigations for high-rises, port and harbor developments and oil and chemical companies. He has a civil engineering degree from the University of Nevada.

Booth

GERALD (JERRY) BOOTH of Novato has opened an office at 907 Fox Plaza, San Francisco, to serve the West Coast for two national companies. One is Executive Ideas Inc., a Miami-based advertising agency specializing in marketing and advertising programs for auto dealers, banks and savings and loan companies. The other is American Creative Toys Inc., importers and manufacturers of toys, whose main product is Rotadraw, a kit that enables anyone to draw professional looking cartoons of Disney characters.

Booth has been president of Jerry Booth Associates, a sales training and motivation firm in San Francisco and Detroit.

ATTORNEY SEYMOUR L. Ellison of San Rafael, who has been a partner with Belli, Ashe, Ellison and Choulos in San Francisco, has left the firm to open his own general law practice. His new office is at 1005-1035 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

SAN RAFAEL-RICHMOND bus service has been operating for almost two months, but many people are still unaware of its existence, said Kevin Louie and David McGreevy, partners in Travelers Transit Co.

Travelers Transit buses run between San Rafael (Fourth and Irwin, near the Golden Gate Transit bus stop) and the BART station in Richmond, with stops at San Quentin and the Standard Oil Co. entrance in Richmond. Bus fare is $1 per ride (50 cents from San Rafael to San Quentin).

The first bus leaves San Rafael each workday at 6:30 a.m. and arrives at the Richmond BART station shortly after 7 a.m. There are 10 runs during the day, with the last bus from Richmond leaving at 6:15 p.m. Weekend service is on an abbreviated schedule.

BIG THREE UP!

G.M., Ford, Chrysler Hike Prices.

DETROIT—To keep up with recent rises in the price of steel, the Big Three auto manufacturers announced new increases on cars and options.

This is GM's seventh price rise since the end of the '73 model year. Increases have included not only the basic vehicle but extra standard equipment, optional equipment and destination charges. The increases average over $550 per vehicle over final '73 model prices.

It was the sixth [illegible] for both Ford and Chrysler, hiking their prices a total average of $584 and $458 respectively.

Extraordinary Increases

The multiple price increases put into effect by the auto makers are unusual for the industry, which in the past tried to limit increases to one per model year.

However, the recent rises in the cost of materials have forced the auto mak[illegible] as quickly as

Rockefeller Nominee For Vice President

Hopes Ford Will Run For President In '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today proposed former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, one of the richest men in the world, as the nation's next vice president.

Ford announced his decision on the 11th day of his presidency during a relaxed and informal televised and broadcast ceremony from the Oval Office in the White House.

The nomination of Rockefeller, 66, will go to Congress for confirmation by majority vote by both houses — which congressional leaders said could be completed before the November elections.

Rockefeller said he hoped Ford would run for president in 1976, and said he would be "delighted" to campaign this fall for Republican congressional candidates.

But the nominee said it was too early to make any decisions on his own political plans two years hence.

Minutes after being nominated by Ford for the No. 2 spot, Rockefeller told reporters he expected to place his vast financial holdings in a blind trust, and said he would reveal his income tax returns and other financial statements to Congress if asked during his confirmation hearings.

Rockefeller, who avidly but unsuccessfuly sought the presidency three times only to be rebuffed by his party, said he was now in a position of "relaxed desire to serve my country."

"The role of the vice president totally depends on the President," said the former New York governor. "If he wants to use him, wonderful. If he doesn't that's fine."

In announcing his decision, Ford called Rockefeller "a good partner for me and I think a good partner for the country and the world."

Two of the four most recent vice presidents ascended to the presidency upon the death or resignation of their predecessor —Ford when President Nixon resigned Aug. 9 and Lyndon B. Johnson when President Kennedy was assassinated in 1963.

Rockefeller was elected four times governor of New York and resigned last year after 15 years in that position to head a self-created Commission on Critical Choices for America.

Before Nixon resigned and Ford took over, political Washington viewed the commission as a springboard for another Rockefeller race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's wife did not accompany him to the White House. He explained she had been at the beach yesterday and simply did not have time to get "presentable."

His wife, the former Margaretta Fitler Murphy, married him in 1963 after she divorced her husband and Rockefeller divorced his wife of 32 years.

The initial reaction from Republicans in Congress to Rockefeller's selection was favorable. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a conservative, said Rockefeller "was not one of those I recommended but he is a distinguished American." Thurmond said he expected to support the nomination.

A liberal Republican, Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, who also harbored presidential ambitions, said a Ford-Rockefeller team in 1976 would be an "absolutely winning ticket."

In political ideological terms, Rockefeller is believed to be somewhat to the left of Ford even though he himself became more conservative in his last years as governor of New York.

When he sought the GOP presidential nomination in 1964, he was booed at the national convention by delegates who nominated Barry M. Goldwater, then and now a staunch conservative. Rockefeller was seen then as the embodiment of the Eastern, internationalist wing of the party.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the politically astute Republican Senate whip, said he was surprised at how many conservative Republicans had put Rockefeller on the list of candidates they had submitted to Ford. He said Rockefeller was not their first choice, but was frequently their second or third choice.

"I believe he is widely accepted and highly regarded," Griffin said.

The initial reaction from

Hamilton Land Disposal Voted

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A House Armed Services subcommittee today approved an Air Force proposal to dispose of 273 acres of land at Hamilton Air Force Base, the first and most important step toward possible eventual civilian use of the property.

Approval by the parent committee is almost automatic, officials said, and no action by the House itself is required.

Once the land is declared excess to the needs of the Department of Defense, it can be disposed of by the General Sur-

92-Cent Tax Rate Set By San Rafael Council

The San Rafael City Council last night set a tax rate of 92 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, down seven cents from last fiscal year's 99-cent rate. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 5.)

The council noted that residents of the former Terra Linda Community Services District are exempted form the 1971 sewer bond tax and will pay only 88 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The city administration predicted in June that an $8 million budget for 1974-75 would require a 96.5-cent tax rate, but last night reported the city's assessed valuation is higher than anticipated.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser said that last fiscal year's assessed valuation of $193 million has been boosted to $225 million. Bielser also said that the city expects higher interest income earnings this fiscal year.

The city tax rate breakdown is: general fund, 65 cents; library fund, 12 cents; employees' retirement fund, 10 cents; sewer bonds, four cents; payment of open space bond principal and interest, one cent.

Bielser said the city is able to reduce the tax rate while maintaining a reserve fund of $300,000.

Ross Taxes Slashed By Nine Cents

Ross town councilmen last night approved a 1974-75 tax rate of $1.66 per $100 assessed valuation, a nine-cent drop from the 1973-74 rate.

The tax rate will raise sufficient revenue to finance the $407,780 budget adopted earlier this month, according to Virginia Stott, town clerk.

Councilmen were able to lower the rate because reassessments and new construction have raised the town's assessed valuation by 21.12 per cent, she said.

In spite of the lower tax rate, most homeowners tax bills will be increased because of increased assessed valuation.

Two Perish In Tragedy On Freeway

It began shortly before 2 p.m. when the truck, driven by Mary Rebecca Wittman, 55, of San Francisco, broke down on northbound Highway 101 near Ignacio.

Mrs. Wittman began walking along the freeway shoulder, according to the California Highway Patrol. She was seen by Officer John Joseph Morre, 28, of the Novato Police Department, and he stopped to offer help.

The highway patrol said the officer and Mrs. Wittman were standing behind his patrol car talking, when another car went out of control and slammed into them.

Mrs. Wittman was killed instantly and Morre suffered severe injuries.

The car's driver, John Arnold Johnston, 59, of Santa Rosa, may have fallen asleep at the wheel, according to officers, who said he told them he had no idea what had happened.

The crash propelled Johnston's wife, Cheiko, 45, through the windshield.

Novato firemen using special power tools worked frantically to free her from the wreckage, but she later died at Novato General Hospital.

Johnston was not injured.

Morre was reported in fair and stable condition today at the Novato hospital with a broken pelvis, multiple fractures of the leg and minor cuts.

Mrs. Wittman and Mrs. Johnston were the 10th and 11th persons killed in traffic accidents in Marin to date this year, as compared to 20 highway deaths during the same period in 1973.

Pollution Limits Hit Dairies Hard

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — Stringent pollution limits that will cost Marin and Sonoma dairies some $70,000 each were imposed today by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Deadline to meet the new restrictions was set for September, 1976, for dairies on the Tomales Bay and Walker Creek watersheds, and one year later for all other dairies.

Approximately 164 dairies are in the board's Bay Area jurisdiction, 74 of them in Marin and 60 in Sonoma. The staff said about 20 of the two counties' dairies will have to meet the 1976 deadline.

The board unanimously rejected appeals to give Tomales Bay and Walker Creek dairies the extra year granted others.

Board members and the staff, however, stressed that the 20 dairies could be given the extra year if they cannot meet the deadline.

Marin County Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini, whose district includes West Marin, argued unsuccessfully that there are too few construction firms to do the required work within two years.

If the new controls drive dairies out of business, he warned, "The pressures for development would be incredible."

A report by the board's staff conceded the controls will drive some dairymen out of business, but said these would be "dairymen who were planning to leave the business anyway."

"Most of those abandoning dairy farming turn to raising beef cattle," according to the staff report.

The board's action prohibits all discharges of the manure wash water or other animal wastes to adjacent watercourses, and requires that stormwater runoff from corrals, pens, or other animal confinement areas be collected and retained.

The staff emphasized that the order wasrequired under guidelines adopted by the State Water Resources Control Board in March, 1973. "In our region," it said, "the most serious source of animal waste is dairy farmers."

The staff said the problem was especially acute in Tomales Bay, where harvesting of shellfish has had to be halted during the past four winters because of pollution from rain water draining from dairies.

The board's resolution commended Marin and Sonoma counties for helping dairymen

Panoramic Highway Will Close

A main route to Stinson Beach — the Panoramic Highway — will be closed for more than a month beginning Monday, the county public works department said today.

It will be closed between Ridgecrest Road on Mount Tamalpais and Shoreline Highway near Stinson Beach.

The Ed Dorsett Co. will be repairing two slides. The work is expected to keep the highway closed until Sept. 26.

The Fairfax-Bolinas Road has been closed since yesterday between Ridgecrest Boulevard and Shoreline Highway to permit replacement of two culverts, with work due to be completed Friday.

Corte Madera Councilmen Cut Tax Rate Eight Cents

In a midnight change of heart, the Corte Madera Town Council last night chopped eight cents off its tax rate as it adopted its 1974-75 budget. (Other Corte Madera Town Council stories, page 17.)

The move will reduce the tax rate to $1.29 per $100 assessed valuation, saving the owner of a $40,000 home (assessed for tax purposes at $10,000) $8 for the fiscal year.

The town will lose approximately $32,624 in revenue. No cut was made in the $1,604,258 budget. The final budget is up $168,960 from last year's total. A balance of $172,219 is predicted at the end of the fiscal year, more than enough to cover the lost revenue.

Councilman Larry P. Weingarth wavered for several seconds before casting the deciding vote in favor of the cut, joining Jana G. Haehl and Herber C. Leney. The measure passed, 3-to-2.

"We need to make this kind of a gesture to the taxpayers," said Mrs. Haehl, who proposed the cuts. "Besides, I'm convinced we'll have extra revenue by the end of the year from one source or another."

Mayor Robert J. Flahive, opposing the cut, called the budget "an austerity budget," said it was "unrealistic to lower

Bids For Mill Valley Project Run $300,000 Over Estimate

Financing of East Mill Valley's long-awaited public safety building isn't going to be any easier the second time around.

Mill Valley City Councilmen made that discovery last night when it was announced that the low bid on the planned police and fire building is $958,889 or about $300,000 over estimates. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 11.)

The revelation had an air of dejo vu about it — it was the second time the building cost had greatly outstripped the money available to build it.

Voters approved a $275,000 bond issue in 1972 to construct a fire station to serve the burgeoning East Mill Valley area from a site on the Sycamore Avenue extension.

But preliminary planning soon showed the station could not be built for that amount.

So $100,000 was added from revenue sharing funds and second bond issue, this one from $545,000, was approved by voters last year. That money was to pay for new police quarters as well.

Other bids received ranged from $978,500 to $1,018,000.

An ad hoc committee will meet Friday to consider what to do, with a report to the council due before its Sept. 3 meeting.

The choices, said Usher, are three: reject the bids and redesign the project; accept a bid

Bill Passed To Protect Pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today passed landmark legislation designed to protect the pension rights of 30 million American workers.

The compromise pension reform bill, one of the most important social issues facing the 93rd Congress, was expected to win final congressional approval from the Senate later this week.

The legislation, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, is mainly designed to guarantee that the worker who has been enrolled in a pension plan for a number of years will not lose his pension rights if he is fired, quits or if his company goes out of business.

Cyprus Issues Warrants For 3 In Death Of U.S. Ambassador

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cypriot government has issued warrants for the arrest of three Greek Cypriots in connection with the fatal shooting yesterday of U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies, a government spokesman said.

Diplomatic sources said Davies was the victim of a deliberate assassination attempt.

The government spokesman declined to name the three wanted men or to say whether they were military or civilian.

On the military front, the sitaation was calm. Greek Cypriot Radio Nicosia said today there have been no violations of the cease-fire between Turkish soldiers and Greek Cypriot troops since last night.

In a broadcast monitored in Israel, Nicosia radio described the situation on the island during the day as quiet and calm.

Charges of atrocities continued, however. In Ankara, Turkish Information Minister Orhan Birgit said Turkish troops on Cyprus have uncovered the bodies of 57 Turkish Cypriot victims of a Greek massacre in a small village near Famagus-

Bomb Wasn't Cause Of Los Angeles Blast

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There was no bomb involved in a devastating explosion that ripped through a city block during the weekend, says Fire Chief Raymond Hill.

He called the blast accidental, and said it probably was caused by a volatile chemical compound sitting in the hot sun for a day and a half.

Hill's report discounted an earlier claim by the city's so-called "alphabet bomber" that the explosion Saturday was caused by "delinquent leftovers of our activities one week ago."

The bomber who calls himself Isaac Rasim also said in a call to a newspaper that he would keep the city "clean of fireworks" for the next few days to give authorities a chance to respond to what he says are the demands of his group, "Aliens of America."

One demand is the repeal of all federal immigration laws.

Rasim has threatened to "spell out in blood across America" the lettered sequence of Aliens of America.

He already has claimed responsibility for a deadly explosion at an airport and a bomb planted in a locker at a bus terminal.

Hill said the sun apparently touched off a reaction in a truckload of two types of chemicals —butyl hydroperoxide and methyl ethyl ketone peroxide.

The chemicals had been sent to a plastics manufacturer about seven miles southeast of Los Angeles, but the delivery was refused, and heat started an "accelerating reaction."

The truckload of chemicals exploded at about 8:40 p.m. Almost an entire square-block was leveled, buildings within a radius of five blocks had their windows blown out, roofs and walls caved in and numerous spot fires broke out.

TODAY'S WORLD

"There's one insect that won't participate in taking over the world!"

First Request By Ford Given Quick Approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since it was President Ford asking, it took only one week after he made the request for the House and Senate to approve his Cost of Living task force.

Only minor differences divide the two bills, which passed yesterday, and final congressional approval of the new agency is expected before Congress leaves next week for its Labor Day recess. In an Aug. 12 address, Ford asked Congress to pass the measure before the recess.

Although almost no one expressed confidence that the new task force would hold back the current double-digit inflation, many congressmen urged passage simply because the new President wanted it.

The new agency would be powerless except for the power of persuasion. It would have no power to control wages and prices, no power to delay price increases, no power to subpoena records or individuals. It is intended to be mainly a monitoring and "jawboning" agency.

Both bills would give Ford $1 million to operate and staff a task force composed of his top economic aides and several cabinet members. In one of the few negative remarks, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, called it "a nice layer of fat at a cost of a million dollars."

The House passed the measure 379 to 23, and the Senate passed it 88 to 3 a few hours later.

The Senate defeated 50 to 34 a move by liberals, led by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to give the agency subpoena power and the authority to delay price or wage increases for up to 90 days if they were considered inflationary. The existing proposal, Stevenson said, "has no teeth — indeed, it has no jaw. It contains no stick, nor a carrot. It is a cipher."

But most lawmakers seemed willing to give the President what he sought. "This is the first thing he has asked for," said Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., who led the fight against the Stevenson amendment. "No one pretends that this is going to stop inflation, but it is an anti-inflationary tool."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

S. Korean Cabinet Offers To Quit

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea's cabinet including Premier Kim Jong-pil, and other high-ranking officials offered their resignations today, taking responsibility for the assassination of President Park Chung-hee's wife.

Kim

Park accepted only two of the resignations — Home Minister Hong Song-chul and security chief Park Chong-kyu. He named Park Kyung-won to the Home Ministry, but left the security post vacant temporarily.

A total of 40 top officials originally offered to quit today, a day after Mrs. Park's burial. She was killed last Thursday by an assassin's bullet meant for her husband.

The officials included all 20 cabinet ministers and 15 members of the presidential staff. Others included diplomatic and municipal officials.

The president issued a special statement today thanking the nation for its mourning and sympathy for his slain wife.

The suspected gunman, Moon Se-kwang, 22, was shot on the spot and arrested. He is still being questioned.

Offers A Port

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A top Israeli military analyst says the United States should consider moving the 6th Fleet's home port facilities to Israel if American warships are barred from harbors in Greece.

Reserve Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog said yesterday Israel should offer the fleet home port bases to ensure U.S. support in the face of reported Soviet arms buildups in neighboring Arab countries.

The Greek government withdrew its troops from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last week and left undecided the fate of the 6th Fleet, which has home port facilities in Greece and Italy.

Herzog, former chief of military intelligence, said the United States might not only be ousted from Greece but also from Turkey.

Sadat To Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will visit the United States sometime this year, according to a joint communique issued in Cairo and Washington.

Sadat was invited to make the trip by former President Nixon during Nixon's last overseas tour. The communique said no date has been set for the trip, but that President Ford "is looking forward with pleasure to the visit."

Jordan's King Hussein wound up a state visit Sunday, and Egyptian foreign minister Ismael Fahmi completed talks with top U.S. officials yesterday. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Fahmi signed a joint communique which stressed their agreement that the Middle East peace conference in Geneva should be resumed "as soon as possible."

A Marcos Pledge

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos says a Moslem rebellion in the southern Philippines must be wiped out before martial law is ended and a parliamentary government can be introduced in the country.

Marcos, 56, imposed martial law on the Philippines on Sept. 21, 1972. When a new constitution was ratified in 1973, martial law was "technically and legally" lifted.

In an interview, Marcos said, "The next phase will be a shift toward a parliamentary form of government." He gave no indication when the shift would come.

Rebozo Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Watergate grand jury is investigating charges that Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo illegally spent at least $41,000 in campaign funds on homes owned by Richard Nixon and to buy a set of diamond earrings for the former president's wife.

It was one of the few charges that the President himself personally profited from the Watergate scandal — something Nixon has steadfastly denied.

According to papers filed yesterday in U.S. District Court, the prosecutors believe the money came from a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes and a $50,000 donation from food chain owner A. D. Davis.

Paul R. Michel, an assistant toprosecutor Leon Jaworski, revealed the grand jury investigation in papers opposing a Rebozo attempt to suppress a subpoena.

Purges Military

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier Constantine Karamanlis has shaken up the Greek armed forces in his month-old government's first move to dismantle the command structure set up during seven years of military rule.

Political analysts said the move to reassert civilian rule over the military might represent a first step toward promised parliamentary elections in Greece.

Karamanlis, head of Greece's first civilian government since 1967, announced the shakeup last night, purging key officers picked by the junta.

He appointed 62-year-old Gen. Dionyssios Arbouzis as armed forces commander, the top military post in the country.

Town Captured

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops scaled a rocky mountain peak to capture a key government garrison town today, climaxing a month-long siege in the strategic Central Highlands.

Military sources said the Communists scaled a 3,700-foot-high mountain this morning to capture Mang Buk, an embattled town and military headquarters complex 275 miles north of Saigon.

The fall of towering Mang Buk, which looks down on a valley between Kontum and Quang Ngai provinces, came after a month-long siege by North Vietnamese infantry and artillery forces.

Wallace Hit

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace has kept his "segregation forever" promise by refusing to appoint blacks to important boards and commissions except where federal funding requires it, a federal district court was told yesterday.

Attorney Morris Dees, representing blacks who seek appointment to influential state boards, said Wallace had attempted to rely on "good faith" in justifying his appointment record.

Dees said the record showed race discrimination, because of the 71 blacks appointed 66 were named to boards and commissions related to federal funding.

"Gov. Wallace pledged segregation now, segregation tomorrow and segregation forever, in his 1963 inaugural address," Dees said in a brief filed with the court.

Most Admired

NEW YORK (UPI) — His rating has slipped a bit since May, but a new Louis Harris poll says Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger still is the most-admired public official in the United States.

The poll, a survey of 1,502 persons taken in late July and released yesterday, said 79 per cent of those questioned rated Kissinger's performance good to excellent, compared with 15 per cent who said it was fair to poor.

Kissinger had attained an 85-10 per cent rating in May, just after he had negotiated a cease-fire in the Middle East.

Corn Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although August rains ended a two-month drought in the Midwest they did not significantly improve the projected corn harvest, according to a special report from the Agriculture Department.

The experts said the final size of the grain crop will depend on whether enough rain falls the rest of the season. Also, the crop is maturing slower than usual and could face danger from killing frosts in the fall.

Driverless AC District Has Profit

OAKLAND (UPI) — Despite the fact that a bus drivers strike against the AC Transit District entered its 51st day today, the district was showing a weekly profit of $150,000 on its books.

An AC spokesman said this was because the publicly owned transit district collects $259,000 a week in property and gasoline taxes.

When the buses are running, the district loses about $310,000 a week, the spokesman said.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulos met separately with negotiators for the transit district and striking Division 192 of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

Talks broke off last Friday and Nicolopulos said afterwards that the "positions have not changed." Union members twice rejected a proposed settlement of the walkout.

AMONG YOUNG

Amnesty Views Vary In Nation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

About 12 million young Americans faced the decision.

The Vietnam war was raging when Richard A. Nelson, got his draft notice. "The choices were simple," he said. "I could go to jail for five years, the military for two, which meant possible, almost certain death —it was at the height of the Tet offensive in '68 when I was drafted —or alternative service.

"It was the odds game, and I didn't want to go to jail."

Nelson joined up. He is now 26 and lives in Washington, attending school on the GI Bill. He was asked about President Ford's announcement yesterday that he would consider some form of amnesty for the young men who decided to leave the United States, or go over the hill instead of fight.

"For my money," he said, "it took a lot more guts to leave than go into the Air Force like I did. I don't think they should be persecuted for having the strength of their convictions. I didn't have the guts to do it."

Another 26-year-old vet who was wounded in December, 1968, Gary Bardin, of Wilson, N.C., heard Ford tell the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Chicago that he would permit those who left to "work their way back into American society."

"In my heart," he said, "I can't support amnesty. I asked for a transfer to go to Vietnam because a friend of mine was killed during the Tet offensive. I felt I had to go and do my part and fight for my freedom. I feel that (draft dodgers) should have to pay the price."

The same decision, two different views. But among those who made the other decision, to leave, there is also disagreement.

Gerry Condon, 27, lives in Toronto. He deserted the U.S. Army in 1968 and has lived both in Sweden and Canada. He called Ford's proposal "a pretty tough thing to ask people who have already had their lives so disrupted to delay it for a couple more years before starting their life's work."

But Steven Trimm, 26, of Albany, N.Y., now living in Hamilton, Ont., said conditional amnesty "could be used as a building block to general amnesty."

This is the gulf President Ford must bridge if, as he indicated to reporters on the way back to Washington, he wanted to heal all the wounds of the nation and pull the people back together.

When Ford's decision was announced, reaction came from politicians, leaders of veterans' groups, and plain citizens. UPI reporters across the country searched for some of the men who faced the draft and made their decision:

Staff Sgt. Wallace R. Clopton, a bartender at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss. "If a guy had a strong enough feeling against that war, I think that should be taken into consideration," he said. "But if he did it because he was yellow, and that's the only reason, then that's different."

Jimmy McDaniel, a fireman in Philadelphia, Miss. "I don't think they should have it (amnesty). If they paid a penalty for it, yeah, but I don't think it should be free."

Frank Clark, 30, a VFW employe in Washington. His organization opposes any form of amnesty, and he said he was afraid to disagree. "My personal position is that I'm against unconditional amensty, but I believe a system should be set up to let them work their way back into the mainstream of society," he said. "I think it should be an individual judgment."

Richard Eckenroth, 24, Adamstown, Pa., served seven months in Vietnam and was wounded. He said some form of amnesty might be better for the country, but he didn't like the idea. "I figure I served my country," he said, "while these other guys run out and two years later come back scot free."

Richard Kuhns, 23, Columbus, Ohio, asked one of the big questions of the debate: "I'm willing to die for my country, why weren't they?"

Bob Taylor, 28, also Columbus, who won a Silver Star in Vietnam, asked another. "Why can't we forgive a little bit?"

WAITING, WAITING — Reflecting in their expressions varying degrees of impatience and annoyance, College of Marin students lined up yesterday in the school's bookstore to purchase texts for the fall semester. Bookstore officials reported that lines were about the same as in past years and students will face an even longer wait in line later in the week.

College Of Marin Opens For Fall

By BILL ROBERTS

While their younger brothers and sisters continued to enjoy summer vacation with games in the park or a picnic at the beach, older Marin students returned to the classroom yesterday.

Some 7,041 students are registered at the College of Marin for the fall semester and many were on campus yesterday to purchase books and begin classes.

The Aug. 19 opening was the earliest in the college's 48-year history and a visitor to the campus encountered mixed reactions.

"I hate it," said Mary Jane Armstrong of Mill Valley, a second-year student who attended the Kentfield school last year when it had a mid-September opening. "I hate having to deal with all these people at such an early date."

Her reaction was seconded by an older student who refused to give his name. "I had to give up two weeks of my vacation for this," he said gesturing wildly with his hands.

"I like it," said 18-year-old John Del Negro of Novato, a 1974 graduate of San Marin High School and a freshman at the college. "I'm working and it breaks up the boredom of working. And the extra time at Christmas will give people a month for skiing."

The new schedule was adopted to facilitate the transfer of Marin students to state universities after the fall semester. In the past, the Marin semester ended after Christmas causing students to miss the start of the winter quarter at state universities and making them wait for the spring quarter.

The Christmas vacation will be extended from two weeks to four weeks for students who remain at the college. They will begin the spring semester in mid-January and will end classes in late May.

The change has caused some confusion for students.

"I'm still somewhat confused," said a 19-year-old woman from Point Reyes Station who refused to give her name. "I would much rather have had it stay the same."

But for most students, the return to college life yesterday was mainly a return to old ways.

The scene was dominated by casually dressed young people sitting under a big shade tree with its relief from temperatures in the 80s. For most it was a time to renew old friendships or strike up new ones while lounging on a patch of greenery.

The student center was alive with chatter as students congregated over a snack or soft drink to discuss summer activities or to plan future get-togethers.

The college opening also signaled the renewal of some nuisances.

After learning which books were required for their courses, students trekked to the bookstore where it took only a few minutes to find the right books but half an hour or longer in line to reach a cash register to pay up.

"So far it's been a normal day," said bookstore manager Larry L. Shuster as he assessed the opening of another semester.

He said lines would be even longer at the bookstore today and students will find little relief by waiting until later in the week to make their purchases.

Class registration was also a familiar problem and many students wandered about campus looking for "one more class" to complete their schedule.

For a few students, yesterday's action was something to be viewed from a distance. A few classes will begin Sept. 10 and students who could not or chose not to register for the early opening date may find a few openings then.

But with over 7,000 students already registered, many classes are already filled and late comers will have trouble compiling a full schedule, according to college officials.

Sales And Use Tax Shares Top $845,000

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and Sonoma county governments and city governments in Marin and Southern Sonoma have received more than $845,000 in a distribution of local sales and use taxes it was announced yesterday.

The payment, by the state board of equalization, is part of a statewide distribution of $70 million representing the third advance payment for the second quarter of 1974.

Marin County received $54,000 and Sonoma County received $270,000.

City government shares were: Belvedere, $1,250; Cotati, $8,500; Corte Madera, $45,000; Fairfax, $8,500; Larkspur, $19,000; Mill Valley, $32,000; Novato, $63,000; Petaluma, $77,500; Rohnert Park, $14,000; Ross, $1,000; San Anselmo, $21,000; San Rafael, $260,000; Sausalito, $47,000, and Tiburon, $11,000.

Behr Is Honored By Sierra Club

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has been presented by the Sierra Club with an appreciation award for wildlife conservation.

Praising Behr at its recent annual awards luncheon, the club said the senator was "one of the foremost friends of wildlife in the California Legislature." Club president Kent Gill cited Behr's successful legislation to conserve the Tule elk, stop the overfishing of herring, and limit abuses of the exotic pet trade.

Gill also pointed to Behr's authorship of a law to halt dams on the last of California's wild North Coast rivers.

Youth Pleads Guilty In The Death Of Priest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth pleaded guilty yesterday to the bludgeon murder of a clergyman who had baptized the suspect.

Michael L. Stephens said he was aware that his plea could result in the death penalty.

Stephens also pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing 85-year-old Luther E. Cleaver, pastor of the Greater Little Chapel of the Church of God in Christ for 41 years.

Jury selection was to begin today in the court of Superior Court Judge William E. Mullins.

Bishop Cleaver was killed June 3 after he had withdrawn $1,000 from a bank. His body was discovered two days later in a weed-covered lot near Candlestick Park.

Meeting Reviews Marin's Growth, Transit Problems

Marin County's long-drawn debate over highways, transit and population growth was reviewed last night for a handful of people, in the first of four public presentations by the Citizens' Advisory Committee to the Marin Transit District.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell reminded the 20 persons in the audience that had all the various roads planned in the 1960s actually been built, Marin probably would have faced a population of about 800,000 in a few years and would have needed 18 lanes on the approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Robert L. Harrison, assistant manager of the transit district, reviewed the county's computer study of transport needs and land uses that evolved into the so- called balanced transportation plan for Marin and led to creation of the Marin Transit District.

The district's long-range plans suffered a setback in June when voters refused to approve increasing the district's tax rate maximum from 5 cents per $100 assessed property valuation to 25 cents. The district then asked its advisory committee for more citizen ideas as to what should be tried next, resulting in the series of meetings that began last night.

Next Monday, county officials will discuss the need for local transit as an alternate to the auto. On Sept. 16, the question of transit financing by the district or by the Golden Gate Bridge District will be discussed, and a final summing up session will be held Sept. 23 to lead to a report to the transit district board.

All of the meetings are set for 8 p.m. in the supervisors' chambers at the Marin County Civic Center.

President Ford Asks To Join Press Club

EXECUTIVE TEAM — President Gerald Ford introduced Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as his choice for vice president in a television appearance this morning from the Oval office of the White House. Reaction to the appointment from congressional leaders indicated Senate confirmation of Rockefeller is almost assured. (UPI Telephoto)

Democrats was favorable, too. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted Rockefeller would have no trouble being confirmed. He said the hearings would be held without delay. "We feel the President needs somebody," he said.

Likewise, House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., next in line to the presidency until a vice presidential nominee is confirmed, reacted warmly. "The President has just nominated one of the most experienced and capable men in the country," Albert said. "The President made a choice which few will criticize."

Ford said he had considered a number of candidates — "all men — and women — of great quality."

He called the final decision "a tough call for a tough job."

If confirmed by a majority vote of the House and the Senate, Rockefeller, 66, will become the second vice president chosen under the 25th Amendment which provides for filling vacancies in that office.

Ford, chosen to succeed Spiro T. Agnew when he resigned in October after pleading no contest to tax evasion charges, was the first vice president so chosen.

When former President Nixon announced that Ford was going to be the vice president upon the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew, it took two months for Ford to be confirmed.

During those two months Congress conducted a thorough scrutiny of all Ford's financial records and his political career.

Rockefeller was expected to undergo another thorough investigation, delaying the swearing in for some time. House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said yesterday in Chicago he thinks Democrats might stall confirmation until after the November elections.

Rockefeller, in an allusion to the Watergate scandal which had forced Richard M. Nixon to surrender the presidency and had elevated Ford, praised his new chief's "dedication and openness" which he said had "already reawakened faith and hope" in the nation.

After his brief speech, Rockefeller made the rounds of those present in the Oval Office, shaking hands and speaking personally with each person. The atmosphere was light and laughter filled the room.

Rockefeller stopped to speak with first lady Betty Ford before going to meet the Cabinet.

Two hours after Ford announced his nomination, Rockefeller left the White House. He told reporters he was going to the State Department to see Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger; then up to Capitol Hill to make some "courtesy calls" on committee chairmen.

He said later tonight he would return to Seal Harbor, Maine, where he had been vacationing, to prepare for his new job. He said he probably would return to Washington "later this week."

As he left the White House, he was escorted for the first time by Secret Service agents who have been assigned to protect him from now on.

Rockefeller said he had met with Ford and some assistants after his nomination was announced. Asked if Ford had given him any intitial instructions, Rockefeller said the President told him, "just to go up on the Hill and be available."

Seven More Nabbed In Drug Probe

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Seven more persons were arrested here yesterday as police and sheriff's officers continued a massive narcotics crackdown which has resulted in 57 arrests since last week.

The Sonoma County Grand Jury named 67 persons in 52 indictments last Wednesday after holding secret hearings on dope sales evidence gathered by undercover investigators.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said the remaining suspects will probably be rounded up in the next few days unless they have fled the county.

At least several more, he said, have made arrangements to surrender to authorities.

Sheriff Donald Striepeke said the crackdown resulted from a $335,000 federal anticrime grant from the law enforcement assistance administration.

Of the persons indicted by the grand jury, the spokesman said, most were believed to be dealers in heroin, hashish, amphetamines and cocaine, with relatively few pegged as marijuana sellers.

No Southern Sonoma residents were among the indicted.

and come up with the extra money, and accept a bid but change the design to reduce the cost.

Architect Matthew R. Mills of San Francisco, designer of the building, explained how the project came in so far over estimate.

Chiefly, he blamed inflation, which has been running at about 20 per cent in the building trades in the past year.

"These are crazy times," he said.

Some categories of building materials — steel, electrical supplies, heating goods and concrete — will cost double their projections, Mills said.

Evnen with specification changes — substituting less expensive materials — the full $300,000 shortage cannot be met, Mills predicted.

plus Administration. If no federal governmental agency wants the property, the process of informing various state, county and city governmental units will begin.

It is presumably at this point that the County of Marin and the City of Novato will have a chance to obtain the surplus property.

The land declared excess is located on the outer edges of the Hamilton installation. It includes the 24-acre Lanham housing areas on the western edge, the 15-acre golf driving range fronting Nave Drive, the 15-acre meadow Park School site, a 55-acre plot of vacant land in the southern end of the base and a 164-acre area in the northwest which includes the base's civil engineering complex, the ammunition hill and bunkers and two athletic fields.

The Air Force will retain 1,383 acres of the 2,127-acre installation and transfer 471 acres to the Navy.

Disposal of 477 acres originally was proposed by the Air Force in 1973, but the acreage was cut to 273 in a revised report submitted to the House committee in June.

RATE ORDER

to solve pollution problems and gave special praise to Marin for budgeting $55,000 to make up the difference between 5 per cent and whatever interest dairymen have to pay to finance pollution controls.

The order by the board declared that immediate action will be taken against any dairy found to be discharging manure into a watercourse or depositing manure in areas subject to flooding.

Marin County Farm Advisor Donald L. Brittsan estimated yesterday the controls will cost approximately $70,000 per dairy.

The regional board's sanitary engineer, Lawrence P. Kolb, told the I-J today, however, that this figure unfairly includes some $50,000 for barns that would have to be built anyway. Dairies without barns cannot survive economically, he said.

According to Brittsan, only one quarter of Marin's dairymen have barns. Cows produce about 20 per cent more milk if housed in barns in wet weather.

The remaining $20,000 in costs for the average dairy are for a holding pond and system to distribute wastewater.

Most Marin dairies are located directly on creeks because of the lack of flat ground elsewhere.

Kolb said the deadlines were "reasonable and obtainable."

An appeal for a uniform 1977 deadline also was made by the Sonoma County Dairy Waste Committee.

taxes with the economy the way it is," and asked, "why are we having this last-minute attempt when we've already gone through the budget line by line?"

A citizen, Philip A. Sasso, repeatedly urged the council to cut the budget, saying "there's fat in it" and claiming that in a time of inflation, the council had to show the way by lowering taxes.

Specifically, the cuts were made in the areas of planning, from six cents to four cents; repayment of 1951 bonds, 1.75 cents to 1.25 cents; repayment of 1965 bonds, 3.25 cents to 2.75 cents; and flood control, 13 cents to eight cents.

The budget breaks down as follows: general, $1,046,410; planning, $17,558; special park, $55,852; traffic safety, $20,000; retirement, $118,396; gas tax, $145,010; 1951 bonds, $5,300; 1965 bonds, $10,183; library, $97,638; flood control, $33,481; and revenue sharing, $54,430.

Simultaneously with their budget discussions, councilmen pondered how to spend $140,918 in federal revenue sharing funds.

They decided on: reserve for San Clemente pump station, $33,000; completion of tiny tot area in town park, $10,200; minipark on El Camino Drive, $3,900; improving town park ball diamond, $1,850; replacing a police car, $3,600; purchasing resuscitator, $540; five fire hydrants, $5,270; reserve for bicycle paths, $10,000; dictaphone for Department of Public Works, $600; calculator for Director of Finance, $600; reserve for parkland acquisition, $10,000.

Previously, they had decided on a fire truck at $44,457 and purchase of new fire truck equipment, $18,331.

"Fifty-seven of the 60 Turks living in the village of Atlilar near Famagusta have been massacred by the Greeks," Birgit said. "Only an old and blind couple and a middle-aged man escaped the mass killing."

Birgit said the Turkish reconnaisance planes spotted fresh mounds of earth around the village and troops dug out bodies.

"Foreign correspondents will be able to visit the village and see and hear for themselves what hapened there," Birgit said. "This was the latest in a series of murders committed in the name of that classical Hellenic civilization."

Diplomatic sources in Nicosia, contending Davies was deliberately assassinated, said all of the 40 or more shots fired at the building were aimed either at Davies's office or his apartment.

The sources said that at least two gunmen were involved and that they used military weapons.

A United Nations spokesman confirmed that all was quiet on the military front of the war-torn island.

On the diplomatic front, Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger told a news conference yesterday he has given the go-ahead for a new peace initiative to defuse the Cyprus crisis.

Turkey, Greece and the Cypriot government took time out from their dispute over the future of the embattled island to join in expressing shock and regret at the murder of U.S. Ambassador Roger B. Davies in Nicosia.

Machines, Clubs Stolen From Car

Some $6,143 in office machines and golf equipment was stolen over the weekend from the car trunk of a San Rafael man.

James C. Cutter, 40, of 120 Esmyer Drive told San Rafael police the thief apparently took a key from the glove compartment and opened up the trunk sometime between 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

The car was parked outside Cutter's home except for sometime Sunday, when he visited Walnut Creek.

Police have no suspects.

Girl Fails In Lake Swim Try

TORONTO (UPI) — For most of the 24-hour ordeal, six-foot swells slapped her face and strong winds blew her off course, but Angela Kondrak, 14, came within a mile and a half of becoming the seventh and youngest person to swim across Lake Ontario.

"No, I've had enough," Angela told her coach, Art Dufresne, when he tried to persuade her to finish yesterday. "I don't want the money."

Angela had been promised more than $12,000 in cash and prizes if she completed the 32-mile swim.

Water Agreement To Be Considered

The North Marin County Water District board will consider a water supply agreement with the Sonoma County Water Agency and seven other agencies at 8 o'clock tonight at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

The proposed agreement covers delivery of water through the planned Russian River-Cotati Intertie and cost sharing among agencies involved, including the cities of Petaluma, Rohnert Park, Cotati, Santa Rosa and Sonoma.

OBITUARIES

Thomas K. Mallett Dies At 51

Funeral for Thomas K. Mallett of San Rafael, lumber salesman and sports enthusiast, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Williams and Heffernan Mortuary in San Rafael.

Mallett, 51, died unexpectedly Sunday at his home. He had undergone heart surgery earlier this year.

He was born in Colorado and grew up there, but came to California in 1940.

The family home is at 29 Cottonwood Drive.

Mallett worked as a lumber salesman for the Henry Hess Co. for many years and then for the San Marin Lumber Co.

He had served about 10 years as a Little League coach and manager and also worked with Pop Warner football teams. He was a member of the San Rafael High School Sideliners club.

He is survived by his wife, Jeanne; three daughters, Susan Mallett of Corte Madera, Coreen Mallett of Kailua, Kona, Hawaii, and Deborah Mallett of San Rafael; two sons, Kenneth and Jeffrey Mallett, both of San Rafael; two brothers, George Mallett of Penn Valley, Nevada County, and Robert Mallett of Amarillo, Tex., and a sister, Mildred Winkfield of St. Helens, Ore.

The family prefers memorial contributions for the Marin Open House, the Marin Association for Retarded Children or the Marin Community Workshop.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

RICHARD B. CUNNINGHAM

Funeral for Richard Bruce Cunningham Jr., 17-year-old high school student who died last Tuesday in an auto accident in British Columbia, was held today at the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

Young Cunningham was fatally injured in an accident which occurred near Prince George while he was vacationing in Canada.

The youth was born in San Rafael and lived in Novato and Mill Valley. The past three yers he had made his home with his mother, Nancy A. Morgan, in Missoula, Mont., and had been attending school there.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his father, R. Bruce Cunningham Sr. of Mill Valley, owner of the APC Concrete Pumping Co. in Greenbrae and sister and brother, Allison and Robert J. Cunningham, both of Mill Valley.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

The family prefers memorial contributions in young Cunningham's name to his school, Project 100, Missoula, Mont.

LALAGE DUMAS

Memorial service for Lalage Dumas will be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Christ Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Dumas, 55, died last Tuesday at her Sausalito home.

EDWIN HURT

Capt. Edwin Hurt, retired sea captain and sculptor, died today at his home at 1188 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, after a long illness. He was 71.

Hurt was born in Russian Estonia. He came to this country and went to sea when he was 21. He became a captain of merchant ships in a few years and sailed in the Atlantic and South Pacific during World War II. He was in command of the Air Force tracking ship which stood by as the Atlas missile nose-cone plunged in the sea south of Cape Town in June 1960.

He was also an amateur sculptor. A bronze bust he made of Harry Lundeberg, long-time president of the Sailor's Union of the Pacific, stands in front of the Sailor's Union Building in San Francisco.

He was a member of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union.

Hurt is survived by his wife, Joyce Rockwell Hurt of San Anselmo; two sons, Gregory Jan Hurt of Novato and Christopher Hurt of San Rafael and a brother, Harry Hurt of Novato.

His body was cremated and his ashes scattered at sea.

Memorial contributions to the Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis Research at the Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco would be preferred by the family.

EMMA I. TIETZE

Service was today for Emma I. Tietze, a longtime Petaluma resident who died in a local convalescent hospital Sunday after a lengthy illness. She was 85.

She was born and reared in Germany. She came to the United States at the age of 18 and settled in Petaluma shortly therafter. Mrs. Tietze was a homemaker and the wife of the late Oscar Tietze. She lived at 25 Howard Street.

She is survived by a son and daughter, John Tietze of Sunnyvale and Margarethe Paysen of Petaluma; a sister, Berta Bach of Germany, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Liberty Cemetery.

JOHN J. ZUIKER

Funeral was today for John J. Zuiker of Petaluma, who died in a local hospital Saturday after a short illness. He was 71.

He was born in Chicago and came to California in the late 1930s, settling first in Fresno where he drove buses for the Greyhound Co. During World War II, he was an automotive advisor for the U.S. Army and later he operated a trucking firm of his own.

After several years as an insurance broker he retired in 1962, moving then to Santa Cruz and finally to Southern Sonoma seven years ago. He lived at 1821 Lakeville Highway.

Zuiker's wife, Blanche, died in 1967.

He was a member of St. James Catholic Church in Petaluma.

Zuiker is survived by three sons, David Corkill of Petaluma, Gilbert Corkill of San Diego and Albert Corkill of Panama City, Fla.; three brothers, Francis Zuiker of Park Forest, Ill., and Edward and Louis Zuiker, both of Chicago.

Burial was at Oakwood Cemetery in Santa Cruz. The family prefers memorial contributions to the Sonoma County Heart Fund.

LILO MADDEN

Lilo Madden, a designer and the wife of the owner of the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 52.

Mrs. Madden, the former Lilo Stoll, was born in Wiesbaden, Germany. She came to New York in 1957 and to San Francisco in 1958.

A bus trip to Sausalito convinced her it was the place to live. "This is where I'm going to stay for always," she said in an interview in 1958 in the Independent-Journal.

In Germany she had owned and operated a hand crafts studio and in this country she continued making raffia objects, jewelry, hats and clothing.

She met her husband-to-be, Herbert Madden Sr., in 1958 when she rented a small ark from the yacht harbor owner for a shop. They married two years later.

Mrs. Madden operated "Lilo's Millinery and Custom Boutique" in San Francisco until three years ago. After that, she continued to sell her crafts, under the name, "Lilo's Creations," to such stores as I. Magnin and Modern Eve.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a stepson, Herbert Madden Jr. of Sausalito and cousins in Germany.

A private memorial service is planned.

KARL F. MULLER

Funeral was today for Karl F. Muller, 67, of Penngrove, a longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died Saturday in a Novato hospital after a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, he moved to Southern Sonoma in 1930, operating a poultry company until 1959 when he went to work for an aluminum plant in Santa Rosa. His home was at 19785 Minnesota Avenue.

Muller is survived by an uncle, Herman T. Dratz of San Francisco, and an aunt, Amelia Burkhardt of Santa Rosa.

Inurnment was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park. The family prefers contributions to favorite charities.

BERTIL E. EDELHAMMAR

Bertil E. Edelhammar of Petaluma, a retired painter, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. He was 57.

He was born in Billingsholm, Sweden and emigrated to Petaluma 19 years ago. Edelhammar was a member of Linnea, a Swedish lodge in Petaluma, and the Marin County Painters Union, Local 83.

During World War II he served in the Swedish Coast Guard. His home was at 805 Sonoma Avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Margit; a daughter, Maj'Lis Ransom of Petaluma; his mother, Ebba Edelhammar of Sweden; a sister, Britta Nystrom of Sweden, and two grandchildren.

Funeral service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home. Inurnment will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

JOHN TELFER

A memorial service for John Harley Telfer of Novato, teacher, minister and worker for social service agencies in Marin, will be at 4 p.m. Sunday at Pilgrim Congregational Church in Oakland.

Telfer, 67, of 5 Nancy Drive, died Sunday at his home after a long illness.

He was one of the founders of the Novato Human Needs Center and served as its director of operations. He also was a member of the boards of Community Action Marin, the county Family and Children's Services Advisory Council and Marin Emergency Housing.

An ordained minister for the United Church of Christ for 32 years, Telfer was pastor for two years at Pilgrim Congregational Church in Oakland, retiring in May 1972.

Previously, he taught black history and African studies for the adult education program of the Berkeley Unified School District and conducted seminars on the subjects for teachers in various Marin communities.

In the 1950s, Telfer directed the antidiscrimination program for the United Packing House Workers Union in the eight southeastern states.

During his career, he was a minister for churches in Wisconsin, Iowa and Kansas.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, he attended Chicago Theological School, Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, the University of Zurich and the University of California at Berkeley.

Telfer was a native of Wisconsin and resident of Marin for three years.

Surviving is his wife, Marjorie, of the family home. Memorial contributions may be made to the Lung Association of the Redwood Empire.

Petaluma Man Held In Assault

A 32-year-old Petaluma man was arrested early today on suspicion of burglary and assault with intent to rape.

Petaluma police said they arrested Paul Francis McDonald of 1675 Acapulco Court shortly after midnight at the home of a woman on the same street.

She told officers McDonald had entered her home while she was asleep and had ripped her night clothes from her. Police were apparently summoned after neighbors heard the woman's children screaming during the assault. When they arrived, she was seen running from the front door. McDonald was found inside the house, naked.

He was booked into Sonoma County Jail and bond was set at $50,000 pending arraignment in municipal court.

Muir Woods Annex Will Be Considered

Marin Municipal Water District directors will consider whether to annex the Muir Woods National Monument to the district when they meet at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

The annexation has been proposed because Marin Municipal, which now has a moratorium on new water service connections, cannot continue to supply surplus water to the monument. Since the district says it does not have enough water to grant new services, it no longer has "surplus water" available, according to district attorneys.

$50,000 Set For Dollar Estate

The San Rafael City Council last night allocated $50,000 in city open space bond funds to aid in purchase of the historic Robert Dollar estate. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

The city council two weeks ago placed a proposal for public acquisition of the 11.1-acre site on the November ballot. Last night's action reduced from five cents to four cents the tax per $100 of assessed valuation residents would have to pay for a three-year period to buy the property. Thereafter, the tax rate would be two cents, the city administration said.

The council last night also called for county and citizen contributions to offset $250,000 for acquisition, saying the issue may be removed from the ballot if enough money is raised elsewhere.

Councilmen also approved a statement saying acquisition, restoration, maintenance and operation of the mansion and grounds is aimed at "public service purposes including but not limited to cultural, library, historical, park, recreation, open space and similar related uses."

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CLAIM — Rejected a $10,893 claim by James Oliver, who claims he flipped over a city culvert while riding a bicycle.

BUSINESS — Put over to Sept. 3 consideration of a $23,235 subsidy request by the city chamber of commerce, and put over to Sept. 3 a proposed 14 per cent boost in city business license fees.

TOW BUSINESS — Approved an urgency ordinance regulating tow car businesses in the city and setting a standard schedule of tow fees.

PARAMEDIC — Postponed action on a proposal by Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci for a paramedic program, pending conclusion of a report by a county committee on local emergency care.

GENERAL PLAN — Put over to 8 p.m. Thursday a decision on how to conduct an economic analysis of the city's general plan.

FIRE PROTECTION — In anticipation of successful passage of a county ballot issue creating a fire protection service area in adjacent communities, approved an agreement with the county providing for mutual fire aid. The agreement, whoch now passes to the county, includes a city proposal that San Rafael be allowed to request aerial drops of fire suppressant chemicals from the state. The county fire chief is currently the only official authorized to make such requests.

BIDS — Awarded the following contracts to low bidders: $16,160 to Pump Repairs Service for pump station repairs; $225,356 to Ghilotti Brothers for street resurfacing work, and $22,505 to Valley Slurry Seal for slurry seal resurfacing.

OPTION — Continued a decision on whether to exercise a $49,000 option on purchase of a parcel adjacent to St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda.

RECREATION CENTER — Reviewed preliminary plans for a city recreation center and referred them to the parks and recreation commission.

REDEVELOPMENT — Appointed Mayor C. Paul Bettini and councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan to a redevelopment development review committee, but set no meeting date for the group. The redevelopment agency also told staff to study the possibility of buying the old Borden's Dairy site on Tamalpais Avenue and razing the eyesore.

EMERGENCY EMPLOYMENT — Said eight persons will be hired with federal funds under the Emergency Employment Act.

SCHOOL — Said a meeting of the city-schools liaison committee is set for Aug. 29.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall.

Bite Victim Wants To Find Dog

Leslie W. Hack of 46 Karl Avenue, San Anselmo, who was bitten by a large grey dog last Wednesday on the Sir Francis Drake High School campus wants to locate the dog to learn if it has had its rabies vaccination.

Hack said the dog bit him while he was riding his bicycle. It was a large, greyish female somewhat like a German shepherd dog with very thick fur, he said.

The owner of the dog called it "Ricky or Rocky," but would not give Hack his name.

Hack requested that the owner give the San Anselmo police proof that the dog had its rabies vaccination so that he would not have to undergo the painful anti-rabies shots.

The dog's owner was described as 45-50 years old, round faced and solid build weighing about 180-190 pounds. He had short cut greying sandy hair.

Company's Reinecke Loan Goes Unpaid

CHULA VISTA (UPI) — A $53,200 loan from Rohr Industries to help finance the gubernatorial campaign of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke apparently will be written off as a bad debt.

A company spokesman said yesterday that the loan was made in early 1972 by Rohr executive Bert Raynes, who then was finance chairman for Reinecke's campaign.

VISITS FAMILY IN ITALY

Sentimental Journey For Mayor

By LEW CODDINGTON

When sociologists talk about the "extended family," they must have C. Paul Bettini in mind. His extends 6,300 miles.

The Mayor of San Rafael recently felt the tug of his family ties and journeyed to Sondrio, Italy, the town of 25,000 persons on the shoulder of the Swiss Alps which his father left seven decades ago to come to the New World.

Bettini returned to San Rafael last week, filled with praise for his Italian hosts and impressions of the country.

"They're wonderful people, and I had a wonderful time," he said. "You just have to learn to go with their pace of life, and join in the things they like the best. You fit right into it after a while."

One of the things Bettini enjoyed was the work schedule, which sidestepped the Monday morning blues by not beginning until 4 p.m. On other days, Italians worked from 9 a.m. to noon and 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. The four hours in between were just about enough time to attack a monstruous, multi-course midday meal.

Bettini found Italy a land of marked contrast between traditional ways of life and modern problems.

Residents of Sondrio still live in multi-story, chalet-style stone homes, with parents on one floor, offspring on another, their children on still another. There were seven Bettinis spanning three generations in the house where the mayor stayed.

While he was there, his cousin was married in the traditional ceremony, which included a sumptuous, five-hour reception and feast punctuated by spontaneous singing.

Sondrio retains its centuries-old flavor. The mountainous terrain chops the town into several sections, each with its own church and its own community identity.

From the Ponchiero section, where his relatives lived, Bettini could see workers, baskets lashed to their backs, working in the steep vertical vineyards. Behind them loomed the Alps (Sondrio is 25 miles from the Swiss border), carpeted with brilliant wildflowers.

Bettini's idyllic reverie was disturbed, however, by thick smog in Milan, fierce traffic jams in Rome, and a $2 price tag on a gallon of gas.

"They have the same problems we have," Bettini said. "They even knew all about Watergate. It was in the papers there every day."

One of the big problems is strikes, especially spontaneous wildcat walkouts. "At the art center in Florence, there was a sign saying, 'On strike until 2 o'clock today.'" He doesn't recommend the tactic to San Rafael city employees.

Bettini attempted to meet the mayor of Sondrio, but found that official made himself available to the public only two hours a week. Bettini was surprised, too, to find a soldier patrolling outside the mayor's office, and a military aide toiling inside.

But the important part of the trip was the family life. "It is so close," Bettini said. "We as Americans have gotten away from that. This is what we used to do when we were younger — having picnics, going to church, eating and playing together.

"Everybody is proud of their family and proud of their home. We would go to visit somebody, and the first thing they would do is give us a tour of the house. Then a tour of the garden. Then a tour of the wine cellar. It was great wine, 10-12-14 years old, but this was 9 o'clock in the morning! You'd spend four hours doing this, and then they'd take you next door and introduce you to their neighbor.

"You could take all day visiting houses. But what's wrong with that, when everybody is so damn nice?"

Stolen Tickets Result In Ex-employee's Jailing

A former employee of SFO Helicopter Airlines who now works for a salami company must serve three months in Marin County Jail for concealing airline tickets stolen from the firm's Sausalito heliport.

Paul Calder Strong Jr., 23, drew the jail term and two years' probation yesterday from Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court.

Best also ordered Strong to repay SFO for the value of the tickets he used and sold and fined him $1,000.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest V. Zunino said the tickets Strong had were part of 1,629 worth $80,000 which were stolen from the company last December and March.

Strong later told Marin Sheriff's Deputies he bought about 100 of the stolen tickets from someone else, using a few for himself and giving others to his girlfriend. He turned over 71 tickets to deputies.

FIREMEN TEST EFFICIENCY

San Rafael Fireman Forbes McGrame, on top of truck, guides a steady stream of 600 gallons of water per minute onto a burning building at the end of Jacoby Street in San Rafael. The building's owner, Joseph J. Garbarino of San Rafael, gave firemen permission yesterday morning to set and extinguish a controlled fire at the site. Fifteen firemen took part in the operation designed to test the department's efficiency in extinguishing large structural fires using a large diameter nozzle and smaller hand nozzles.

SLOW BURN — Two firemen stand by idly as billowing columns of thick black smoke envelop the two-story structure. It took firemen 20 minutes to get the blaze fully under way because the building was empty and open.

HALFWAY POINT — The building's charred roof caves in as firemen observe the control burn's progress. Capt. Douglas Jones said that the firemen purposely delayed extinguishing the blaze in order to have more time to experiment.

SMOKING DEBRIS — All that remains of the building is the charred debris in the foreground. In all, firemen were on the scene for 90 minutes. In a few days the rubble will be cleared away but it's not certain as yet what the property will be used for.

Many Aren't Aware Of Benefits Available To Veterans

By MARC LITTMAN

James V. Burdick, Marin County veterans service director, dipped into his files and produced a stack of pamphlets on federal and state benefit programs for veterans.

"Some of these benefits people don't even realize," he said.

For instance, Burdick pointed out, starting Sept. 15, the state will offer educational aid to Vietnam veterans once their federal educational aid has expired.

Under the program, which the Legislature had allowed to lapse for 10 years, veterans who served on active duty after Aug. 5, 1964 and who were legal residents of California while in service, may receive up to $100 per month for one year while taking 12 units in school.

Burdick said that 38,590 war veterans live in Marin; 9,178 veterans of Vietnam; 9,794, the Korean war; 18,584, World War II, and 1,015, World War I. Until last year, there was also a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

The veterans service director explained that his county office acts as liaison between Marin veterans and the federal and state veterans administrations, both of which offer assistance.

His office in the Civic Center also offers an employment referral service for those having difficulty regaining jobs they left on entering the service, or otherwise unemployed.

Federal veterans assistance is broken down into education, loan, disability compensation and pension, medical and dental care, and insurance programs.

However, educational benefits for veterans of all wars except Vietnam have long since expired, Burdick noted.

He also noted that while World War II veterans received both living subsistence and partial tuition, Vietnam veterans receive only living subsistence.

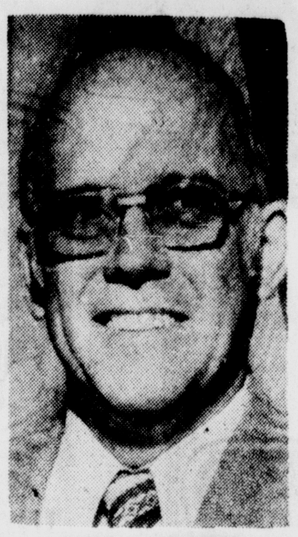
Legislation is pending in Congress to give Vietnam veterans the same benefits received by those in other wars by adding a partial tuition allowance to their education benefits.

Burdick said the legislation is supported by the Senate and opposed by the House of Representatives.

Presently, a Vietnam veteran who has served at least 181 continuous days of active duty and received an honorable discharge is eligible for 1.5 months of educational subsistence aid for every month of active duty he served up to a maximum 36 months.

The subsistence ranges from $110 a month for a single veteran taking six units in school to up to $298 a month for a veteran with two dependents and a full 12-unit load, plus $18 per month for each additional dependent.

Vietnam veterans are eligible for the education subsidy up to 10 years after their discharge.



JAMES V. BURDICK
County veterans director

In order to apply for benefits, veterans must come to the veterans' office at the Marin Civic Center. Burdick said a service officer will make home calls to disabled veterans.

In the office, no appointments are necessary, and Burdick said the waits usually are short.

Veterans should bring with them their discharge papers. If the benefits involve dependents, veterans should bring with them marriage certificates, birth certificates or divorce papers, if these apply. If veterans do not have such papers, the office will help them get them, Burdick said.

In addition to educational benefits, Burdick listed five other benefit programs still available to veterans of all wars. These include:

REAL ESTATE LOANS

The Veterans Administration will back a lending agency's loan for up to $12,500, although the loan can be considerably higher. Additionally, the Federal Housing Administration will insure home loans for up to $33,000 at a maximum interest rate of 9 per cent with a low down payment required. These loans can be issued in addition to the Veterans Administration guaranteed loans which require no down payment.

On the state level, veterans may apply for real estate loans for up to $25,000 at 4.75 per cent interest. The loans can be taken out in addition to any mortgages insured through either the federal GI loan bill or by the Federal Housing Administration.

The loans are available to veterans applying within 25 years following release from active military duty, but there is no time limit for veterans wounded in service or prisoners of war.

However, syndicated columnist Earl G. Waters, whose column appears in the Independent-Journal, reported Tuesday that only 20 per cent or less of the Vietnam veterans will ever get a California veterans home loan, and those that are granted have been subjected to unwarranted delays of five or more months.

Waters said this is among the findings of a report just released by the Assembly Committee on Governmental Administration, which detailed a lengthy list of shortcomings and mismanagement in the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Jack Johnson, manager of the billion-dollar lending program, explained, according to Waters, that lack of funds was caused by an unforseen increase in loan applications caused by the 25-year limit on eligibility for World War II and Korean veterans, the increase in loan amount ot $25,000, tight money, the rise in interest rates of private lenders, and the end of U.S. paritipation in the Vietnam war.

Burdick said he did not know if Waters conclusion was right, but he noted that there is a backlog of processed applications dating back to Jan. 1, 1974 that lack funds.

George J. Zisler, district manager of the Cal-Vet Loan Program in Concord, said $50,000,000 in state general obligation bonds were sold Tuesday and that funding will be available starting in September for applications processed through March 1974.

Last June a $350,000,000 bond issue was approved to fund the loan program but Zisler didn't know when the next bond sale would be.

DISABILITY COMPENSATION

Veterans injured or who contract diseases while on active duty are eligible for disability compensation. The amount of compensation is determined by a rating of each disability by an adjudication board in the Veterans Administration regional office in San Francisco.

Compensation ranges from $32 a month for a 10 per cent disability to $584 per month for a 100 per cent disability.

Veterans with service-connected injuries and diseases rated at 30 per cent disability or more are also eligible for tuition and up to 48 months of subsistence aid while undergoing vocational rehabilitation training.

DISABILITY PENSION

Veterans with nonservice connected disabilities are eligible for federal pension assistance determined on the basis of income.

A single veteran earning $2,600 a year can receive a $28 a month pension and a maximum of $143 a month if his annual income is $300 or less. A veteran with three or more dependents earning less than $300 annually can receive a $164 monthly pension and $49 a month if his income is no more than $3,800 annually.

Those veterans on pension who are totally disabled can also receive up to $110 more a month to pay for convalescent care.

MEDICAL-DENTAL CARE

All veterans are eligible for comprehensive health and psychiatric care at any of the Veterans Hospitals. There are four in Northern California; San Francisco, Palo Alto, Livermore and Martinez.

Although veterans suffering from war-incurred disabilities are never refused service, the admitting doctors at the individual hospitals can turn away other veterans depending on available bed space and the waiting lists for particular health services.

Additionally, veterans are eligible for dental treatment within one year after their discharge but are only treated once for a single ailment unless it was war-inflicted damage.

INSURANCE

While World War II veterans were insured for up to $10,000 during active duty and afterwards through the federally operated GI Insurance Program, Korean and Vietnam veterans are eligible for up to $15,000 insurance coverage through the commercial Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Program.

Full-time active duty group coverage can be converted to an individual policy at standard premium rates, regardless of health, with any of the participating companies licensed to do business in the vetrran's state within 120 days after a veteran's discharge.

Burdick, 52, county veterans service director for the past 12 years and himself a veteran of World War II, said his office had 26,999 contacts in the last fiscal year.

Asked whether his ofice was able to help all of them, Burdick smiled and retorted, "I don't know, but we sure tried."

Housing Workers Ratify Contract

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Housing Authority yesterday ratified a three-year contract with clerical and maintenance workers.

The commissioners' action ended a six-week strike by Local 29 of the Office and Professional Workers and Local 18 of the Building Service Employes Unions.

The two unions had approved the contracts at membership meetings Friday.

The contract with Local 29 gives office workers a 7.5 per cent pay increase for 1974 and contains a provision for a salary hike in 1975 equivalent to what similar workers will receive at Oakland City Hall. In 1976, talks will be resumed on salaries.

The Local 18 contract provides a 72-cent an hour wage increase for 1974. The 1975 increases will be determined by rate of pay given similar workers in city government.

The third year salary raise will be negotiated.

Hearing Set On Sausalito Ferry Site

A public hearing on the environmental impact report on the controversial permanent ferry terminal proposed for Sausalito will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Golden Gate Bridge District's toll plaza headquarters.

The report concedes the terminal will cause increased vehicular and tourist traffic, noise and air pollution, but says these adverse effects will be more than offset regionally because the expanded ferry system will lower air pollution by encouraging people to use the ferry instead of driving.

Hundreds of Sausalito citizens, however, have objected the new ferries will overwhelm downtown with visitors. The city council has filed suit in Marin Superior Court to halt the bridge district from building the terminal unless it gives the city control over the ferry system.

The $48,000 report by Wilsey and Ham of Foster City estimates the maximum number of ferry passengers that could accumulate in the downtown area at one time would go from the current 582 to 1,500 with the new vessels. The present single ferry carries a maximum of 575 persons, while each of the three new ones being built will carry up to 750.

The new $4 million ferries not only are bigger, but at 25 knots are twice as fast as the present vessel.

Put another way, the new terminal would mean a maximum of 11,250 riders a day could come to Sausalito, up from the present 6,325, according to the report.

The document, as reported last month by the Independent-Journal, also cautions that the increased tourist traffic would create "substantial" pressure for more than 100,000 square feet of new commercial space downtown. The area now has about 150,000 square feet of commercial space.

The report also points to the district's power under state law to build the terminal despite Sausalito's objections.

The $1.3 million terminal, at the same site as the present temporary float, is scheduled to open in the spring of 1976.

City officials last week asked the bridge district to shift the hearing to Central School, but the district's attorney said it was too late to make the change because legal notices of the session already had been published. The city's request came one month after the district announced the hearing would be held at its toll plaza offices.

Bridge directors, meeting as a committee of the whole, also will discuss the terminal at 10 a.m. Friday, again in toll plaza offices. The staff will report on how plans for the terminals at Sausalito, Larkspur and San Francisco could be trimmed to cut costs.

Fairfax Plans A Pet Parade

A "pet parade" for youngsters up to 14 years of age and their pets will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Fairfax Town Hall, according to the Fairfax Merchants and Businesspeople's Association.

Along with awards for best-dressed entrants, prizes will be given to the dog with the biggest paws, the cat with the bushiest tail, and the most colorful fish, according to an association spokesman.

In addition, a prize will be awarded for the cleverest people-powered float.

The event is sponsored by Martin's Pet Supplies, Gerties Aquatics and Fastidious Fido and the merchants association.

Cable TV Use Recommended To Mill Valley

The City of Mill Valley should enter the cable television field with locally produced programs on civic events, local government and the arts.

That is one major conclusion reached by a seven-member task force in a 40-page report presented to the city council last night. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1)

The report, eight months in the making, deals with two topics: whether Tele-Vue Systems, which operates cable TV in Mill Valley, should get a rate boost, and how the city should regulate cable TV in the future.

Councilmen set a special meeting Sept. 30 to discuss the second question.

They put off until Sept. 3 a decision on a permanent rate increase, but they did extend through the end of October a temporary hike which had been due to expire Sept. 30. This maintains the present rate of $5.50 per month.

The major recommendation of the committee is to form a new city-appointed group to oversee city participation in cable programming.

The new committee should produce 10 pilot programs, at a cost of $6,138, including the broadcasting of council meetings, the report said.

Ultimately, the city should consider building a video center, perhaps at the library, and make it available to citizens, the report said.

Besides producing its own shows, the video committee would help residents make and air programs of their own.

Part of the funds for these activities could come from fees paid the city by Tele-Vue under its franchise agreement, the report suggested.

Councilmen, at least one of whom saw the report for the first time yesterday, said they wanted more time to study it.

The discussion was videotaped by a Marin Community Video crew and will be braodcast sometime between 8 and 10 p.m. on Aug. 28 on cable channel 3 for subscribers in Southern Marin.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

RIGHTS — Met in closed session for 35 minutes to consider applicants for the Human Rights Committee but took no action.

NOISE — Told the planning commission to look into a temporary noise ordinance for enactment until a permanent law is drafted as part of the city's new general plan.

BAND — Gave permission to the Old Mill Tavern to conduct a one-hour live band test to check for noise leaks. No date was specified.

LOTS — Approved creation of two lots from one at 122 Circle Avenue, both less than the 20,000 square foot minimum required by the city's slope ordinance. Robert E. Capron dissented in the 3-1 vote.

PLANNING — Announced applications are being taken to fill a vacancy on the planning commission.

PARK — Applied for $73,000 in state funds to stabilize Warner Creek in Boyle Park and pave a parking lot there; the money is to come from the recent state park bond issue.

TAX — Postponed to an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow setting of a 1974-75 tax rate. The council also will discuss whether to continue the sewer service charge instituted last year.

Councilman Ivan S. Poutiatine was absent.

Senate Confirms Economic Adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has confirmed Alan Greenspan as chairman of President Ford's council of economic advisers.

Greenspan, a New York economic consultant, was opposed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who criticized Greenspan's positions against consumer protection bills and antitrust laws.

Police Met With Bottle Barrage

San Rafael police, pelted with beer bottles and furniture as they broke into a Terra Linda residence Saturday to end a rowdy teen-age party, were forced to use Mace and nightsticks to disperse the crowd, police officials reported today.

The brawl at 43 Skyview Terrace at 10:46 p.m. Saturday resulted in the arrest of two San Rafael men and a 16-year-old, police said.

Timothy Neil Williams, 20, of 43 Skyview Terrace, and Richard Dale Nolan, 20, of 5935 Redwood Highway, were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of disturbing the peace and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. They posted $500 bail each to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

The 16-year-old was cited to Marin Juvenile Hall for assaulting a police officer.

San Rafael police, saying a report on the incident was not ready yesterday, released today this account of events:

Officers Brian Bodily and Walter Kosta appeared at the residence at about 10 p.m. after a neighbor reported teen-agers were urinating in the street, drag racing up Skyview Terrace, and disturbing the peace at a noisy party.

They were met at the door with catcalls, obscenities and a barrage of beer bottles. Kosta drew his revolver while trying to arrest a 16-year-old who was attempting to strike him. The youth broke away and fled.

The two officers, battered by punches and flying bottles, returned to a patrol car and called for aid. Seven fellow officers, two sheriff's deputies, and a San Rafael reserve officer appeared to help quell the party.

The police broke open the door with their shoulders, and again were pelted with bottles and flying glass.

According to officer Bodily: "Officer Cunha, Kosta and myself entered the house and were met by physical resistance. Numerous subjects were hit with nightsticks and in order to back the group away from the door officer Cunha and myself used Mace on numerous people.

"The subjects were throwing numerous bottles and furniture at us while we were in the house. We gained the advantage and began pushing the group out the back door."

Several officers and Nolan were treated at local hospitals for minor cuts and abrasions, police said.

Bodily's official report on the matter concludes that teenagers in Terra Linda "are getting more and more aggressive toward police officers while parties are being broken up.

"There are numerous people who should go to jail, but it is obvious we have no means of holding, detaining and transporting prisoners at the scene. It is my opinion that in the future any type of party in Terra Linda involving our 'locals' should be met with a firm, and if necessary forceful approach, as displayed by the officers this evening.

"The officers were assaulted and returned with enough force to restore order."

Judge Lets Road Case Go To Trial

A Marin Superior Court judge today refused to order the County of Marin to honor its agreement with Marin General Hospital over the relocation of Bon Air Road.

Instead, Judge E. Warren McGuire ordered a suit by the Marin Hospital District against the county to go to trial in early December.

The district sued the county in June, claiming county officials reneged on a promise to move Bon Air Road to make room for expansion at the hospital.

County lawyers countered that the county is not obligated to relocate the road until the hospital district floats a bond issue to finance the new wing.

McGuire's order, however, agreed with the hospital district that it has no obligation to put the bonds to voters before the county moves the road.

Nevertheless, McGuire declined to side with the hospital district, saying instead that the suit should be decided in a trial.

A bond issue tentatively is scheduled for November 1975.

Household Foil Phase Out Set

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Aluminum Co. of America has announced plans to phase out production and sale of household aluminum foil.

Alcoa, which has been making the foil since 1931, said it made the decision because of a shortage of metal and capital funds.

It said it would continue to produce the foil for industrial uses.

Sixth Person Files For Cotati Council

Terrence L. Collins, a 32-year-old Army master sergeant, today became the sixth person to apply for appointment to the Cotati City Council.

Collins is a resident of Holiday Park, the city's only tract home development, and was active in the recall effort against three young councilmen last year.

He said today that, unlike many other recall backers, he had some sympathy for the embattled young councilmen, but felt they displayed too much immaturity for the jobs they held.

Collins and five others seek the two seats vacated by Mayor Stephen Laughlin and councilman Annette Lombardi, who resigned Aug. 7 after being arrested on suspicion of removing marijuana plants from a city police locker.

The city council will decide at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today whether to make appointmetns or to hold a special election to fill the vacant seats.

Meanwhile, municipal court officials in Santa Rosa reported that the cases against the two former councilmen and planning commissioner Eve Kitchen are still being held up pending a decision from Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes on whether to prosecute.

The marijuana plants had been confiscated from a house occupied by Miss Kitchen and five other persons. She resigned her city position when the councilmen quit, but later withdrew the resignation.

Hawkes indicated yesterday he is leaning toward prosecution, although he said a final decision must await his complete review of the case.

Range Fire Contained

TRAVIS AFB (UPI) — A range fire which burned 80 acres at the Russ Noonan Ranch near here was contained yesterday by 50 firemen from Six Solano County fire departments.

$157,000 Haul By Bank Bandit

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tall, dapper man walked into a bank last night, told an assistant manager he had four sticks of dynamite in his attache case, then waited patiently for 30 minutes while she fetched $157,000 from a vault, police said.

He fled with the money, but left the "dynamite" — four red cylinders which the police said were railroad flares.

"I'd say that was quite a haul," a detective said. "Your average bank job is usually $4,000-$5,000 — this one was unusual."

Federal Financing Subject Of Report

The Shoreline Unified School District board will hear a report from Supt. Kenneth E. Barnes on federal financing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at West Marin School, Point Reyes Station.

Barnes recently attended a conference in Salt Lake City on Public Law 874, convering financial aid to districts serving pupils from federal installations.

YMCA RECOGNITION BARBECUE

It Was Fun Time For Volunteers

GIVE IT A SHOVE — Enthusiastic girls do their bit to move giant earth ball downfield during game at YMCA barbecue.

Sunday's high winds failed to spoil the fun for members and their families at the first annual Volunteer Recognition Barbecue of the YMCA of Marin, held at Stafford Lake in Novato.

Softball, earth ball, watermelon seed-spitting contest, and other contests set the pace for the afternoon of fellowship. "Many of our volunteers work year round for the Y, and their families never know what they are doing. One of our goals for the barbecue was to acquaint our volunteers, staff and families — and in that sense, it was very successful," said Sheryl Montez, YMCA program director.

Awards for distinguished service to the organization went to 19 persons, with the top awards given to William Maier of San Anselmo, adult, and David Anderson of San Anselmo, youth volunteer.

Maier has served with the Y since it opened in Marin 28 years ago in the old railroad depot in Fairfax, and has been a board member, coordinator of exchange programs with Osaka and Europe, leader of high school youth groups, leader of caravans and river raft trips and "always the chef" at any 'Y' parties," according to director Montez.

Anderson, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School this September, has served as chairman of the Youth Committee, an organizer this year of the new CORE group for junior high youth, and delegate for two years to the statewide Y-run Youth in Government program in Sacramento.

Maier and Anderson received engraved paperweights and their names on a perpetual plaque for the YMCA office.

Other volunteers honored were:

Roc Morgan of Novato, board and program committee member, and active organizer locally of the National Youth Project Using Minibikes (NYPUM) which is aimed at troubled junior high aged youth;

Esther Taylor of Greenbrae, wife of YMCA board chairman Fayette Taylor, who has given valued help to the office staff;

Ken Navas of San Rafael, Gene Youth of Novato and Wes Olsen of San Rafael, who have given outstanding assistance in the Y Indian Guide father-son program;

Chris Schau of Terra Linda and Bill Cooper of San Rafael, outstanding contributors to the Youth Committee;

Elizabeth Blickman of San Anselmo, sophomore at California State University, San Francisco, who has helped drum up funding and volunteers for New Horizons, an activity program for elementary age youngsters;

Matt Hanzlik and David Dunbar of Novato and Candy Reed of Houston, Tex., a Dominican College student, who have assisted the Y camp staff and served as caravan leaders, as well as contributing to the NYPUM program;

Kathy Burkhardt and Marc Spinner of San Rafael and Matt McKenzie of Mill Valley, active in the CIT (Counselors In Training) program which helps the paid staff at day and resident Y camps;

Carol Harris and Diane Nichols of San Rafael and Mark Bijok of Mill Valley, leaders for the CORE program for junior high youth.

Certificates of appreciation were given to the honorees.

Barbecue arrangements were made by Ellawynn Taylor of San Rafael, program committee chairman, Roc Morgan and Richard Lockman of San Rafael.

GIVE IT A TRY — Matthew McKenzie and Stacie Shatkin do their best to catch a fly ball in a game of 500.

WINDY, BUT FUN — Friends and staff members of the YMCA of Marin had a happy afternoon beside Stafford Lake, Novato, at the Y's first annual Volunteer Recognition Barbecue Sunday.

Improved Communities Her Goal

By PAT BALMES

With hundreds of millions of dollars to work with, Liz Tapscott of Tiburon plans ways to improve and develop urban communities in four Western States.

She has been appointed assistant regional administrator for Community Planning and Development for the San Francisco Region of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It's a lot more work," said Mrs. Bill Tapscott, who previously headed half the function. (She has held high-level administrative positions in government since 1965). "Until we move the offices together, I'm getting my exercise running between the north and south sides of the federal building, because the planning and management office just merged with the development office."

INTEGRATING two staffs and learning new programs, she saves time by riding the bus to work so she can read her in-box material.

However Mrs. Tapscott does not believe in taking work home. She, her husband and her mother Nibs McGuire live on a lagoon at Paradise Cay. The Tapscotts' weekends are oriented to Elica, an Islander 30 racing yacht moored outside their glass-walled living room.

The Tapscotts participate in Friday night races of the Paradise Harbor Yacht Club and compete in YRA regattas.

Liz Tapscott comes to her new position at an interesting time. Legislation, about to become law, will change the way HUD deals with its clients, the local communities, she said.

"The new federalism is to put decision-making back to the local level. An excellent idea; it will give local communities more flexibility and responsibility. The new law requires citizens to participate in planning," she said.

THERE WILL BE more equitable distribution on the basis of local need and more local discretion on how to use the $8.6 billion HUD will distribute nationally over the next three years, according to Mrs. Tapscott.

"The whole concept is mind-boggling. Instead of in-depth HUD review of local applications for HUD categorical money, cities will now submit minimal applications and proclaimers assuring that statutory requirements have been met, such as citizen participation and relocation," she said.

"Let's take Marin County. It has been averaging $369,000 each year for urban renewal in Marin City, water and sewers in San Rafael and Open Space throughout the county," she said.

UNDER THE NEW law, Marin County will be eligible for a block grant to elected officials who will identify needs and set priorities, instead of HUD, she said.

A big advantage to the local community is it can concentrate resources. Funds can be distributed more equitably than depending on availability of categorical funding, she said.

It may be possible also to qualify Marin for discretionary funds in the future, she indicated.

IN THE LATE 1940s, Liz and Bill Tapscott were the first married students at University of Arizona. A native of Flagstaff, Mrs. Tapscott earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts and education and then taught school.

Innovative in teaching children of different learning abilities in her classroom, she was frustrated when her supervisor was disinterested in her findings.

"What do you do to make them listen? You go back to school and get the degrees," she said. She spent the next four years at night school at Arizona State University earn-

Can A Girl Honor Her Parents If They Never Did Honor Her?

DEAR RAP:

I love my parents, but I could never please them. When I got B's in school, they bawled me out for not earning A's. I was elected senior senator and they were upset because I didn't run for student body president, but then they added, "Oh well, you wouldn't have won, anyway."

No matter how hard I worked, I was never as good as the neighbor' kids. And when I fell in love with Tony, who is a great guy with a lot of ambition and a good job already, they hit the roof because he wasn't of our religion.

We got married in Tony's church and my folks wouldn't attend. We're going to have a baby and they say if he or she isn't brought up in their religion (which isn't mine anymore — it's too rigid and condemning), they won't be grandparents.

The Bible says, "Honor they father and thy mother. . .," but when they never honored me, is it wrong to feel a little relieved that our child won't have to take their put-downs as I did? — PREFER MY IN-LAWS, BUT FEELING GUILTY

DEAR PMILBFG:

Why feel guilty over a human reaction? "Honor thy father and mother" doesn't mean "succumb to dictatorship." — HELEN

DEAR P. ECT.:

Why not turn the tables? Tell your folks you'll accept them as grandparents "only if". . .and don't mince the "ifs!" — SUE

RAP:

A group of us girls, ages 21 to 24, got together to discuss your recent Survey of Unmarried Teenagers. You reported some 60 per cent of kids, aged 13 to 19, were still virgin. We question that.

Our own private survey indicated not one of us had been virgin since age 17. Of the 21 we questioned, none has had children, 15 are on the pill and the other six use some other method of birth control. We are all respected people from good homes and have good jobs. We don't "sleep around" and several are engaged, but we all think sex is natural, if you care about each other.

Are you sure you didn't concentrate on the under-16 group in your questionnaire? — JOAN from Trenton, N.J.

DEAR JOAN:

Our survey of unmarried teen-agers included some 22 per cent in the 18-19 group, 24 per cent under age-15, and the rest (54 per cent) in the middle-teen years. We'll admit we too were somewhat surprised at the high rate of virginity (though it dropped to under 49 per cent in the over-17 section), but we feel these anonymous young people were perhaps more honest than they might be in a gathering of their peers. — HELEN

By EMILY MALINO
(Distributed by United Features Syndicate)

One of the big reasons why some folks resist plastic furniture is because they can't handle a whole roomful at a time. And why should they? After all, pure anything can be a bore, and pure plastic is no exception to the rule.

Plastic furniture, in spite of the current shortages in raw materials, is here to stay. After all, it does make sense to make furniture in the same way that we make almost everything else these days, from cars to boats to showers to tubs to bowls and glasses and, certainly, toys.

Molded or extruded plastics, the process whereby a liquid or semiliquid material is converted with the help of heat and pressure through a preformed mold or extrusion, into a chair or a table, is certainly more sensible than having to put legs and frames together to make furniture the way our Founding Fathers did 200 years ago and more.

But simple and unadorned plastic furniture continues to look oversimple and far too plain for many of us to accept as a total style for a room. I've discovered, however, that mixing plastics with other styles can be the answer to using these marvelous pieces successfully.

Take a tiny dining room, for example. The one I designed is in a typical, anonymous new home, with square walls and a picture window. I found a fantastic cast-iron fireplace and painted it white, to give pizazz and nostalgia to the space; it works well, thanks to the fine and inexpensive new flue built through the roof.

I painted the chimney wall dark, to give focus and drama to the room, as well as to silhouette the lines of the antique fireplace.

In front of this large and imposing edifice, I used a very simple white plastic dining table, which doubles for games or work when dinner is over. With the table I used two white plastic chairs and, as a total contrast, two early American ladder-back chairs.

The rest of the room is treated simply. White vertical blinds in the window add height to the low ceiling and match the walls, extending and stretching the space. A simple hooked rug gives texture and color to the floor, defining the dining area.

Lots of plants fill in the gaps. Some of them are in pots on movable pedestals; others are in mobile planters of the same white plastic as the table and chairs, so that the entire garden can be moved about as needed to take advantage of sun and light and the need for change that plants and people share.

The tall fireplace is offset by the plants and by the table group, where the highback chairs contrast with the low modern forms to give variety and balance to the space. The ornate ladder-back shape of the chairs contrast pleasantly with the unadorned white plastic.

The same kind of balance, between old and new, high and low, can be designed with other shapes and styles. I've blended plastic with French chairs, or with Chippendale or Queen Anne. A plastic coffee table looks super with Victorian wicker, for instance, or with Mission oak.

In other words, experiment and enjoy! Just keep basic guidelines of balance and scale at the back of your mind and let the rest of your imagination take over.

Announcing Birth To Unwed Mother

Is it proper for the parents of an unwed mother to announce the birth of their grandchild, if they'd like to? Etiquette authority Amy Vanderbilt gives the socially acceptable procedure.

"If you will just tell your friends and neighbors that your grandchild has arrived and that, of course, you are happy about it, most will understand and admire your daughter's courage in keeping her child (as many young women are doing today in these circumstances)," Miss Vancerbilt told a reader in her colum in the September issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

Safety Urged During Month

Take a vacation from danger this summer.

As you join the increasing number of people who take time off to play in August, beware of accidents that can maim and claim lives.

That is the warning of the Department of Safety and Research of the Combined Insurance Company of America. A study of accident statistics has led the safety experts to urge every man, woman and child to take special precautions during August becuase it is one of the peak months for deaths in auto accidents, from drowning or in falls.

She Handles Millions To Help Communities

ing a doctorate in education in educational administration.

Mrs. Tapscott became the State of Arizona director of elementary education and later assistant state superintendent in charge of federal programs.

IN 1965, when Masonite Corporation transferred her husband to Hawaii, Mrs. Tapscott became director of compensatory education for the Hawaii Department of Education.

"Then the government announced a new Fulbright Scholarship to send school administrators to India to study and bring back a better understanding of India to teach in our school systems," she said. Mrs. Tapscott had to give up her job to study four months in India.

Bill Tapscott was transferred to Chicago next. His wife applied to the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare there. Her new job was administering federal programs dealing with state employees in jobs similar to the ones she had held for Arizona and Hawaii.

"HUD model cities program asked me for technical assistance. One hundred and fifty cities were selected and received almost a block grant.

"A CITY WOULD come in with a plan to eliminate slums and blight and improve living conditions for target areas. Cities were using a great deal of this money for education. I was giving more time to HUD than to HEW, so I transferred," she explained.

As HUD Human Resources State Participation Coordinator, she was a "money-getter."

"We wanted to get enough resources into the target area to improve its educational level, employee opportunities and housing, all that would save an urban community," she said.

She tapped HEW, U.S. Department of Agriculture, U.S. Department of Labor and law enforcement.

THEN HER HUSBAND was transferred to San Francisco in 1971 and Mrs. Tapscott received a lateral transfer.

"Our job at the regional level is to distribute funds to its communities and states for all community planning and development programs, interpret policy and give specialized assistance, through the two area offices," she said.

When her boss was appointed director of the Peace Corps Botswanna, Africa project in 1973, Mrs. Tapscott became assistant regional administrator for community development.

In her new position under Robert Baida, Western region administrator of HUD, her responsibilities include model cities urban renewal, rehabilitation loans, resource development, relocation and property acquisition.

SHE WILL ALSO administer planning and management assistance to state and local government and review environmental impact statements.

"When the new legislation comes into effect, our heaviest emphasis in the next six months will be in training staff. So you see where teaching background helps," said the HUD administrator.

'The People's Choice' Fleece The People

We complain about high taxes. We grumble about inflation. But we send to Sacramento and Washington men and women who vote for lavish spending that hikes our taxes and adds to inflation.

At no time is this more evident than right now, as the California Legislature goes into high gear to pass bills before the Aug. 31 deadline.

In the last-minute rush, many bad bills go through. It was so when the Legislature met for only six months. It is even more so with the Legislature met for only six months. It is even more so with the Legislature meeting for a year and eight months — because there has been more time to introduce bills, hence there are a lot more measures lying around awaiting last-minute action.

LET'S LOOK at just a few of the measures the two houses in Sacramento have shoved through since they went back to work after the July recess.

Some of them are outright appropriation bills.

For instance, AB 4439 (Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento) appropriates $131,000 for two centers to treat critically ill newborn babies. This passed the Assembly without a dissenting vote. AB 4507 (Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco) appropriates $45,000 to complete the Earl Warren Oral History Project at University of California's Bancroft Library, a previous appropriation for the purpose having all been spent. There was a single vote against this one.

AB 4182 (Paul Bannai, R-Gardena) appropriates $5 million to create a state mortgage insurance program. This also passed the Assembly unanimously. AB 4134 (another by McCarthy) appropriates $200,000 to set up four or five new migrant child care centers. Six assemblymen voted against it.

Sailing through the Assembly with only eight opposing votes was AB 3369 (John F. Foran, D-San Francisco), appropriating millions for new housing programs for the elderly and handicapped.

The Senate overwhelmingly passed AB 2599 (Frank Lanterman, R-Pasadena) appropriating $2.5 million to expand the SHARE program for tutoring "under-achieving" school children. And there were only two votes in the Senate against SB 2175 (George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco), appropriating $45,470,000 for bilingual education.

SOME CREATE programs with unspecifid future costs, either to the state or to local jurisdictions.

Among these is AB 3732 (Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa) requiring appointment of an attorney for a juvenile at every stage of juvenile court proceedings, which passed the lower house 68-1. Also AB 4389 (March K. Fong, D-Oakland) creating the California Commission on Nutrition to "develop a long-range nutrition plan," which passed the Assembly 56-18. Also AB 2998 (Howard Berman, D-Sherman Oaks), requiring that community colleges pay all part-time and temporary employees at the same rate as fulltime employees, which the Assembly approved 51-19.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST "ripoff" by the current Legislature was the $1 million pension bonus plan the legislators voted for themselves. This was to enable those who are rejected by the voters after short service to cahs in on pension benefits intended originally for those who had served in the Legislature for long periods.

Assemblyman Robert McLennan, R-Paramount, had qualms of conscience about that. He introduced a bill (AB 4506) to repeal it. So what happened? By vote of 29 to 24, the Assembly refused to even allow his repealer a committee hearing.

Were we complaining about taxes? Grumbling about inflation? Well, what can we expect when we elect to office characters who are so loose with our money?

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Our Legislators' Nest Eggs Unmatched Anywhere Else

By K.W. LEE
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — The retirement system the California Legislature created in 1947 for its members, constitutional officers and certain legislative employes may be incomparable.

Perhaps no insurance company in the world would underwrite such a pension plan.

In many other states, there's no pension plan for legislators.

THE AVERAGE California taxpayer would have to contribute $9,390 a year to a private pension plan to reap benefits this state's legislators receive for only $768 a year, a Sacramento office of a national insurance company handling pension plans estimates.

Under the California legislative plan a 36-year-old man can receive a pension bonus of $146,995 — or $6,125 annually for the next 24 years until he reaches age 60, or $8,292 a year, plus annual cost-of-living increases for life.

Not surprisingly, the cost of administering the plan has been soaring.

Since 1949, two years after the system was established, the state taxpayers have pumped $6.8 million into the fund to keep it solvent for 192 current members and 122 retired members and their widows.

But the nearly $7 million in taxes poured into the fund apparently isn't enough.

TO PREVENT the system from going bankrupt, the taxpayers — if a pending bill is approved — must pay an additional $15 million in the coming five years.

This bill, already passed by the Senate, assumes that legislators will be giving themselves 10 per cent pay raises every two years, the constitutional limit granted by the voters in the mid-1960s.

The current salary, on which the legislative pension is based, is $19,200. It will go to $21,120 in December this year. Another bill, now pending, would increase that to $23,040 on the first day of 1975.

This last fiscal year, legislators contributed about $125,000, while retired members and widows were drawing $869,803. That year, taxpayers paid into the system $640,000 — more than five times the current members' share of the cost.

THE LEGISLATURE has decided the widening gap between contributions and payments must be bridged.

So this fiscal year, taxpayers' share of the skyrocketing cost will jump to $1,143,000 while the current members' share will remain about $125,000.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Thinks Nixon Also Has Other Complexes

I agree with you wholeheartedly in regard to your editorial (Aug. 10) about Richard Nixon's "martyr complex."

I believe that our former president is suffering from a few more psychological problems. For instance, taping all of his conversations with everyone who he spoke to, as if he were anxious to rap his visitors or to eventually have a hold over them in some way. This alone is a classic case of paranoia.

Mr. Nixon's secretiveness about the war, his lack of association with his own staff, his aloofness with members of Congress and the Senate, prove that he felt above everyone.

As you recall, Adolph Hitler had the same complexes.

The thousands of dollars spent on his vacation homes, without any regard to the expense in taxes to the American people.

I was completely overwhelmed yesterday when I heard that Mr. Nixon had called President Ford and complimented him on his speech before the joint session of Congress. A normal man couldn't have watched or listened to the man who replaced him.

Relocation Of Pool Ignores Citizens' Study

It was with great surprise and loss of faith in our board of supervisors that I read in today's paper that the 50 meter pool meant for McInnis Park will be constructed at Indian Valley Colleges.

It makes one wonder the merits of even bothering with citizen committees. Hundreds of Marin County citizens spend countless hours researching and presenting their arguments to the board of supervisors during the past few years concerning the merits of the pool in the location at McInnis Park. While the particular pool site wandered a little from Civic Center to McInnis Park, the concept was to keep it in total family recreation complex, convenient to the heart of Marin with its use destined to serve the greatest number of residents for the greatest number of hours per year.

I could see from your article there is already a battle on the number of hours available for public use. I venture to say it won't be the last time we hear that problem discussed!

. . . It seems a wonder that anything can get done when the same issues keep coming up for new and different votes once the citizens have quieted down and are resting on the premise that all is well. Thanks, Bob Roumiguiere, for your continued support and not changing your vote.

Bouquet For Column On 'People's Schools'

When you give out your bouquets for jobs well done, be sure to give one to Bryce Anderson for all his efforts to improve our schools through his columns, "The People's Schools."

We regret he will not write any more of the school articles. He has done much "leg work" for us the general public. He has told us of pending bills pertaining to education; the status of teacher tenure; what the CTA, NEA and AFT were planning.

Mr. Anderson has tried to wake us up that the public schools do belong to the people through their elected school board members and that teachers' unions should not have veto power over them.

He has made us concerned with declining school enrollments combined with ironclad tenure laws which have virtually closed the door to teaching career for recent college graduates.

Please thank him for us all. Perhaps too, someone will pick up where he has left off.

Director Should Be Proud Of His Players

I found Gerald Genese's review of the Sunset Players' production of "Mame" very upsetting. I saw the play with five friends and everybody in the audience, including us, gave them a standing ovation. The play was excellently done.

. . .All I'm saying is that I and a lot of other people think that Gerald Genese's review is too harsh and is making the Sunset Players' play, "Mame," seem as if it were put on by a bunch of kindergarteners who didn't know what they were doing. We think that Ed Decker did an excellent job and that he should be proud of himself and of his Sunset Players. Because we are!

Reporting Of Personnel Hearing Disputed

On Aug. 13, the Marin County Personnel Commission met to hear an appeal filed by Mrs. Marie Kniveton seeking reemployment rights with the County of Marin.

I represented Mrs. Aaron, department head of the Marin County Criminal Justice Planning Agency. She was not able to attend the hearing due to prior commitments of which she had informed both the chairman of the commission and the director of the County Personnel Department . . .

The facts are simply that Mrs. Kniveton worked as a secretary-stenographer in this office from June of 1971 through Mary of 1974, at which time she gave her resignation, giving two days' notice. The letter of resignation, dated May 29th, was to be in effect on May 31. On May 30, Mrs. Kniveton, through the county personnel office, requested that Mrs. Aaron sign a statement granting her re-employment rights. Mrs. Aaron refused on the grounds that two days' notice does not constitute sufficient notice, particularly at a peak period, and therefore she was not in good standing.

The commission hearing was covered by a reporter from the Independent Journal, Erik Ingram. His story appeared on the front page of today's (Aug. 14) Independent Journal under the caption, 'Criminal Justice Agency Head Scored By Former Secretary."

The heading of the article mis-states what, in fact, transpired at the hearing. Further, the balance of the article is filled with mis-quotes, statements and words taken out of context, and statements that were not made at that hearing at all.

The next to the last paragraph quotes me as saying "the atmosphere" created by Mrs. Aaron was, in part, due to the pressures of her job. I made no such statement. I did say that since Mrs. Kniveton's original employment in 1971 through her resignation in 1974, she had seemingly lost a great deal of tolerance in being able to deal with the pressures of the office . . .

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

Our country is a little short on former presidents now, but we have enough ex-vice presidents to start an alumni association.

It will take awhile for the new president to lay the foundation for his regime. Who'll be first to call it the Ford Foundation?

Political campaigns are heating up, but a lot of voters are still undecided. They can't decide where to go fishing on election day.

Many politicians won't accept money from milk producers now if it's handed on a silver platter. But they'll take the platter.

Human Presidency Restored As Gerald Ford's First Act

There were so many good things in and about Gerald Ford's opening public speech as president Aug. 12 that it's difficult to know just where to start in appraising it.

First, probably, is that he got his priorities right.

Beyond any doubt, the first problem facing the new administration is the inflation. Every effort must be bent toward bringing it under control. He recognizes this is a priority task. He is free of any hostages to fortune or campaign commitments which might get in the way of his approach to it. And (perhaps this is his greatest asset) he doesn't pretend to know the answers. This is a great, big, bruising problem which no modern western democracy has yet mastered. The only prudent thing for him to do is precisely what he has done — agree to take counsel of the top people of the country in labor, business, and economics and meanwhile call off deficit spending.

This is a common-sense approach. It is characteristic of everyting else in the speech. It was put together by a man who can and does get along with people. He knows them. He can grasp their ordinary problems. And he knows that he himself is human and hence not omniscient. It was the speech of a human being who can see himself in human scale.

THIS CAPACITY of Gerald Ford to see himself in human scale can turn into an important milestone in American history. Some historians date the imperial presidency from Franklin Delano Roosevelt. I would argue that it began with John F. Kennedy. Certainly both Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower saw themselves in hman scale. Ike and Mamie could greet distinguished guests on the front porch of the White House — without benefit of trumpets, uniforms, honor guards, and leteral red carpet. The White House was still a fairly homey place down through the Eisenhower presidency.

There were some early glimmerings of the omniscient and hence indispensable presidency in the Kennedy reign. It got more so under Lyndon Johnson, who tried to be both omniscient and omnipotent, but was saved by knowing that he wasn't. It was a bold front, but in the pinches he would listen to disagreeable and unwelcome opinion. He would have so loved to be an emperor, but wasn't.

The climax certainly came with Richard Nixon, who was surrounded for the first time in American history by courtiers dedicated to the proposition that he must always seem to be all-wise and all-powerful.

SUDDENLY, ALL THAT is gone —or most of it. Let's hope Mr. Ford also sheds the trumpets and soldiery on the back lawn of the White House. The presidency needs to be recivilianized. Mr. Ford has already proved that no man is indispensable in the White House. The United States has been through a political crisis which tested concept of the imperial presidency, and rejected it. This is like the restoration of King Charles II after the Cromwellian dictatorship. That Charles knew his history. The divine right of kings disappeared with Charles I. Charles II was most careful to avoid any attempted revival. It would not work, and he knew it.

Gerald Ford knows, and it came through loud and clear in every line of his speech, that the American system demands not an all-wise and indispensable sovereign, but a plain human person of goodwill who will take counsel of others and preside over the deliberations of state. He intends to "preside" in person over the summit conference on the economy. That in itself is an excellent omen for his presidency. His country wants someone who will preside, not rule. He looks like the right man for the job.

Cyprus Crisis Shows Value Of U.S.-Russian Detente

WASHINGTON — The proposed debate on detente, postponed by the spectacular events here at home, finds the advocates with a current proof of its benefits. The outcome of the Greek-Turkish-Cyprus crisis is dark and unpredictable. Without searching for silver linings, one aspect is evidence of the cooling influence of the Nixon-Kissinger policy of relaxation of tensions with Moscow.

Before the series of agreements with the Soviet Union and the prospect of further relaxation, it takes little imagination to see what would be part of the present Greek-Turkish showdown.

Day after day the headlines would have reported mobilization of Russian troops on the Turkish border. Or, perhaps, the movement of naval vessels on the Bulgarian border off Cyprus. In short: confrontation, which was a way of life in the era of the cold war.

The bloody mess on Cyprus in the past would have been the perfect opportunity for Moscow to square off against the United States and NATO.

IF AND WHEN the detente debate occurs, confrontation will not be the avowed goal of those in opposition. They talk about the superiority in weapons of the Soviet Union and how American negotiators allowed this to occur.

One of the shabbiest deceits was the planted story of the "secret" agreement to permit the Russians an additional 70 missiles. Quickly proved false, this nevertheless was used by the opposition with Sen. Henry M. Jackson in the lead.

If we are to revert to confrontation with a crisis every other week, an important difference should be noted. In the good old days, as seen by the big weapons lobby, it was possible to boost defense budgets without too much difficulty.

Today, with President Ford's plea for economy, Congress is cutting defense costs. Sen. John L. McClellan, chairman of the appropriations committee, has just put through a $5 billion cut in the defense budget.

This should be a lesson to the apostles of confrontation who go all-out to prove that each request for new and more powerful weapons — such as the Trident submarine with a longer-range missile — is essential if we are to stand up to the other superpower.

THE WEAPONS LOBBY has an important new recruit. Adm. Elmo Zumwalt could hardly wait to get out of his suit as chief of naval operations before he, like Oliver Twist, started to cry more, more, more.

Exceptionally intelligent, outside the cookie-cutter pattern of the joint chiefs, he will beat a powerful drum in the weapons band.

If all of the United States' land-based missiles were destroyed in a Soviet first strike — one of the dire prophecies of the weapons lobby — submarine-based missiles and the bomber force could still wipe out half the Russian population and virtually all their cities.

In light of the recent Moscow summit's failure to reach any agreement on offensive weapons, this has a catch. The Russians are now in an intensive drive to put multiple independently targeted warheads — MIRVs — on their giant missiles and thereby come even with the United States. We, at the same time, are MIRVing as fast as possible. Here is a scenario to chill the easy acceptance of a return to confrontation.

A DECADE AGO, when Gen. Curtis LeMay was Air Force chief of staff and an implacable cold-war warrior, the United States had an estimated 1,500 missiles. Brandishing the nuclear weapon, LeMay would nevertheless have hesitated to restore us to a limited use of nukes since, whatever else the consequences, it would have spoiled the overall game plan for a complete nuclear response.

Let's say that in the near future the United States has 15,000 missiles, a conservative guess. A small portion could be employed without upsetting the larger plan. That is the temptation and it is enhanced by Secy. of Defense James R. Schlesinger's proposed retargeting for a limited nuclear war.

The Greek-Turkish blowup and threat of the collapse of NATO's eastern flank is the new president's first test on the international front. But if it can mean cooperation with Moscow, rather than confrontation over a grave danger to world peace, it should prove to him the value of detente.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Aug. 20, 1964

Marin County supervisors adopted a budget of $21,261,037 for fiscal 1965, calling for a county tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

A roaring brush fire blazed for 23 hours in San Rafael's Black Canyon before being halted by 300 fire fighters. About 300 acres were blackened, but no homes were lost.

20 YEARS AGO

Aug. 20, 1954

The Defense Department lifted a military freeze on Marin City and Hilarita housing projects, clearing the way for the Marin County Housing Authority to negotiate for their purchase.

A two-state alarm was issued for Mr. and Mrs. William C. Allen of Las Vegas, Nev., accused of stealing the two children of Mrs. Allen by a former marriage from the home of their grandmother in San Rafael.

ART BUCHWALD

Nobody likes to talk about it, but there is a lot of kid-swapping going on in the United States. It isn't going on just in the suburbs or the small towns but in the larger cities as well.

I hadn't realized how prevalent kid-swapping was until I moved to Washington. One night I came home from the office and, instead of finding my dark-haired little beauties, I discovered a 7-year-old blonde stranger doing the twist.

"WHO'S SHE?" I asked my wife.

"That's Ann Lindsay. She's staying here for the night with Connie."

"Where's Jennifer?" I asked.

"She's sleeping at Priscilla's house because Ann Lindsay's sleeping here."

"Who's Priscilla?"

"Jennifer didn't know her last name, but she says she's her best friend."

"THAT'S NICE. Where is Joel?"

"He's sleeping at his friend's — B.J. He said if Jennifer can sleep somewhere else so can he."

"Where does that leave us?" I asked my wife.

"Well, we had three to start with, we got rid of two for the night, and we gained one, so we're only short one."

"It saves on food," I agreed.

"Not really," my wife said. "We had fish tonight, but Ann Lindsay doesn't like fish, so I had to go out and get her a steak. Then when Connie saw Ann was getting a steak, she wanted one, too."

"I wouldn't mind having a steak myself," I said

"You can't. Somebody's got to eat the fish."

THE NEXT WEEK END when I came home Connie was missing, but Jennifer had two friends and Joel had B.J.

At 8 o'clock I ordered them all to bed.

"B.J.'s father lets him watch television until midnight every night," Joel, who is 9 years old, said.

"Is that true, B.J.?" I asked.

"Sometimes later," B.J. said without batting an eye.

"When I stayed at B.J.'s last week," Joel said, "we didn't go to bed until 2 in the morning."

"My parents don't like me to go to bed early," B.J. said, "because then I wake up early."

"WELL, WHY DON'T we just call up your parents and ask them what time you go to bed?"

"Oh, you don't have to do that," B.J. said hurriedly. "They've probably gone out to a movie."

Just then the phone rang. It was Mrs. Lindsay, who said, "What time do you usually put Connie to bed?"

"Eight o'clock," I said.

"She said you let her stay up till midnight to watch television. I was a little worried." Mrs. Linday seemed relieved.

LATER THAT EVENING I said to my wife, "We've got to put a halt to this kid-swapping. Everyone on Cleveland Avenue is starting to talk."

"Oh, it's harmless," my wife said, "and they get so much fun out of it."

But I knew what I was talking about. A few weeks later I came home and found three kids at the dinner table — none of them mine.

"What happened?" I asked.

MY WIFE WAS rather embarrassed. "There's been a dreadful mix-up. Joel invited Francis over to sleep with him, but he forgot he'd accepted an invitation to sleep at Butch's. Jennifer and Connie were invited over to Karen's, but after they left Veronica and Mary Elisabeth showed up and said they had been invited over here. I didn't have the heart to send them home."

"So now we've got three kids that don't even belong to us," I said.

"Yes," my wife said, "and guess what? They said their mothers let them stay up until midnight every night to watch television."

Groucho Marx Set For Release

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Groucho Marx, who has been undergoing tests since Aug. 13 at Mount Sinai Hospital, is scheduled to be released within a day or two.

Dale Olson, spokesman for the 83-year-old comedian, said yesterday Marx entered the hospital for a routine physical examination involving time-consuming tests and not because of any ailment.

Olson said Marx plans to perform in an Oct. 6 benefit for the Committee to Research Hereditary Diseases.

Two Youths Get $500 Scholarships

Two Marin youths have each received a labor-sponsored $500 scholarship.

The winners, chosen on the basis of essays they wrote on the American labor movement, are Joan Larkins, 17, and Kevin L. Bastian, 18. They received the awards at ceremonies held recently at the Marin County Labor Council headquarters in San Rafael.

Miss Larkins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Larkins of Kentfield, received the 1974 California Labor Federation scholarship. She is a graduate of San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow and will attend Stanford University in the fall.

Bastian, the son of Philip L. Bastian of Mill Valley, received the 1974 Marin County Labor Council scholarship. He is a graduate of San Rafael High School and will attend the University of California at Santa Cruz in the fall.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Jay M. Ver Lee, retired Oakland city parks and recreation director, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the board of directors of the California Spring Garden and Home Show.

Revocation Of Permit Is Put Off

The Corte Madera Town Council, unwilling to jeopardize a developer's pending court case, last night decided to wait six months before considering revoking his permit. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1)

The action was requested by the developer, Cal-West Properties of Palo Alto, to give it time to clear up the legal tangle surrounding its proposed Madera del Presidio project.

Cal-West feared that the council would rescind the permit for a 528-unit development — which it did once, on July 15, only to find its action invalid becuase the developer was not properly notified.

Recission, Cal West holds, could hurt the firm's appeal of a court decision blocking the development, and its appeal of a Marin Municipal Water District denial of a main line extension.

Cal-West no longer plans to build 528 units, having submitted a compromise plan for 326 units, but fears a rescission of the original permit would, for all practical purposes, kill the project and thus kill suits by rendering them pointless.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

YOUNG — Continued until its next meeting, Sept. 3, its hearing of an appeal by 16 residents of a planning commission decision permitting Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Young to build a swimming pool in their front yard at 26 Fairview Road.

LICENSING — Expressed displeasure at the proposed state licensing measure for parks and recreation workers.

PARKING — Voted 4-to-1 (Major Robert J. Flahive opposed) to require certain businesses to provide one off-street parking space for each 220 square feet of gross floor area.

FIRE — Removed from the calendar and thus killed a proposal to make citizens financially liable for firefighting expenses if the fire was caused by the citizen's neglect.

PLANNING — Renewed its membership in the City-County Planning Council of Marin, which had lapsed.

PARK — Designated the Paradise Drive bay frontage property, the Priest, Weigel and Smith property on Lucky Drive, the town park, Menke park and the Tarrant-Harris property as projects on which to spend $23,970 available from the county for park acquisition and development.

TREES — Referred to staff for modification a proposed ordinance to prevent cutting of older trees.

Diabetic Talks

A meeting for parents of diabetic children will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Marin General Hospital's Blue Room. Dr. George J. Monteverdi, pediatrician, and Dr. Conrad Ellner, psychiatrist, will lead the session, which is sponsored by the Marin County Diabetes Association.

Sewer Tax Is Jumped By 44 Cents

The Corte Madera town councilmen, sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary Commission, last night avoided levying a sewer service charge by more than doubling its tax rate.

The board voted 4-to-1 (Larry P. Weingarth dissenting) to adopt a $361,766 budget for fiscal 1974-75 calling for a tax rate of 77 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Last year's rate was 33 cents. The rate which prevailed from 1968 through 1972, however, was 60 cents.

The new rate will enable the sanitary district to wipe out a $28,000 deficit incurred last fiscal year, and end the new year with a balance of $12,000.

Some $108,000 is earmarked for sewer replacements.

The district originally considered levying a sewer service charge of $30 per homeowner per year, but changed its mind when it discovered it was not bound by S.B. 190, the California law which prevents certain agencies from raising the tax rate above the previous year's.

Planners Pass First Revised Tree Permit

Marin County Planning Commissioners yesterday granted the county's first firewood cutting permit under Marin's revised zoning ordinance.

The permit to cut oak trees on the A. Crawford Cooley Ranch on the Marin-Sonoma county line west of Highway 101 went to Daniel A. Bostrom, operator of the D and W Firewood Co. in Petaluma. About 200 acres of moderately sloping hillsides will be logged over several years. Only oak trees will be cut and the logger must carefully control erosion by planting grass seed and piling brush to encourage new trees to grow, the commission ordered.

The commission agreed with staff that no formal environmental impact report was needed for the permit.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

HAMILTON — Set a hearing for Sept. 16 on updating the clear zone safety standards for land near the runway at Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base. Land use in the Ignacio Industrial Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard may be affected. The proposed changes reflect new Air Force safety standards and data.

WATER — Directed the planning department staff to work with the county's two water districts on drafting requirements for applicants who want to establish independent water systems within the districts.

CONDOMINIUM — With almost no discussion, concurred with changes requested by the board of supervisors in the county's proposed condominium ordinance.

HEARINGS — Asked the supervisors to ratify a guide for citizens to use in speaking at public hearings of the commission, board of zoning adjustments and the like. The guide, planned to be distributed to would-be speakers at each hearing, was proposed by the League of Women Voters, according to Planning Director Werner Von Gundell.

APPEAL — Granted Roy Gibbs's appeal against requirements that a water storage tank and fire hydrants be installed as conditions for a permit to divide an 11.68-acre parcel in Inverness Park into four parcels.

MASTER PLAN — Recommended that the county master plan consistency requirements be made to apply to all land divisions the same as they now regulate all subdivisions within unincorporated areas. Staff explained that some land division applications have conflicted with the county general plan.

Fairfax Fighting To Trim Budget; $35,325 Is Cut

The Fairfax Town Council, again grappling with a budget for 1974-75, last night trimmed $35,325 from the spending program.

The proposed budget now stands at $729,832, up from this year's $719,774 program.

Mayor Frank J. Egger estimated that the present budget level would require a tax rate of $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, up five cents over this year. He added that the tax rate could drop by several cents depending on the final budget that is adopted.

By state law, the council is required to fix a tax rate by Sept. 1 and Mayor Egger said that the council will also have adopted a budget by then.

The councilmen were determined last night to offset a $62,750 spending deficit which still lingers at $27,425.

Councilman Randall L. Garrison characterized the mood of the meeting when he said, "the whole town is going to have to start cutting back."

Councilman Priscilla R. Gray explained his statement, saying simply, "we're broke."

Cut last night was a $1,800 police department allocation for a motorcycle to patrol parking violations in the downtown area. The task will now be handled by a patrolman on foot.

Also cut from the police department budget requests $5,580 in overtime pay for full-time employees and $2,000 in overtime pay for part-time and temporary employees. The council also agreed to finance $3,200 in state-required police safety equipment from federal revenue sharing funds.

Another $3,000 was trimmed in overtime pay allocated for the street department. The council decided to save an additional $6,529 by hiring a needed street department employee through the Federal Public Employment Act program which will pay 90 per cent of the man's salary.

The council also sliced $7,416 from various nondepartmental accounts in central services, legal services and engineering contract services.

Another $1,300 in nondepartmental miscellaneous allocations was also eliminated including $1,000 originally allocated for a Survival Inc. recycling depot.

Lastly, the council trimmed traveling expenses for the various departments by $1,800, including the entire $1,250 allocated to the council for out-of-town meetings.

The council will consider the budget again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Youngster Is Given Heart Transplant

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A teenage boy yesterday became Stanford University's youngest heart transplant recipient.

The unidentified youth was given the heart of Albert Lorincz, 26, San Jose, who suffered massive head injuries in a hang-glider accident at nearby Pacifica on Sunday.

Two Escape Jail Time In Pot Case

Two San Rafael men will not serve time in jail for possessing marijuana and concealing stolen property, a Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled.

Judge Peter Allen Smith sentenced David Phillips Root, 18, to 10 days of work with the county parks and recreation department.

Root had pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen motorcycle frame.

Smith also ordered Albert John Rasmussen, 19, to spend one year on probation for possessing marijuana. If he stays out of trouble, the charge will be dismissed, Smith ruled.

San Rafael police arrested the pair in May after they went to their apartment to investigate a theft. Inside they found the motorcycle frame, marijuana, pills and drug paraphernalia.

Penicillin Seen Losing Potency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Penicillin may be nearly useless in treating common staph infections, since many staph strains have developed an immunity to the drug, according to a research report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

For years, it has been well known that staph strains circulating in hospitals have become resistant to the commonly used penicillin G. But, the report said, tests now show that street variety strains of the infection also show high degrees of resistance to the drug — possibly because of indiscriminate use of penicillin during the past 20 years.

In studies conducted on 133 children in Washington D.C., the report said, resistance of staph strains common to the community was 84 per cent while resistance of hospital strains was 95 per cent.

A SLACKMAN — Father Arthur Harrison counsels an inmate at his chapel office in San Quentin State Prison. The 43-year-old priest describes himself in prison slang as a "slackman," a friend who's there to help an inmate regain his sense of decency and awareness that he's a human being.

Best Friend Gets Woman's Whole Estate

In a handwritten will penned the day before she shot herself, Marion S. Young of Greenbrae has left her estate to a man she called "my only friend for nine years."

Mrs. Young's will, filed with the County Clerk's office, leaves nothing to her 91-year-old husband, Harry J.

Instead, she named Raymund A. Frazier, 43, a music teacher, the only beneficiary and executor of her will, disposing of bank savings, stocks and some eight pieces of property.

It was Frazier who was invited to Mrs. Young's home on Los Cerros Drive for dinner the evening of July 30, but when he got there he found not a meal on the dining room table but a note.

"Look in the shower," it said.

He did, and found Mrs. Young's body with bullet wounds in the neck and temple. A pistol lay nearby.

The coroner's office called it a suicide.

Mrs. Young, 68, had penned two copies of her will, mailing one to Frazier, who lives in an apartment on nearby Via Hidalgo, and leaving the other in her home.

She wrote, "I hereby give, devise and bequeath unto my best friend, Raymund A. Frazier, all of my estate.

"Raymund has been my only friend for nine years. None of my relatives have ever shown any kindness or love for me," it read.

If anyone, related or not, contests the will, that person will get only $1, she wrote.

Besides her husband, survivors include two brothers and a sister.

Burns Recuperating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian George Burns, who is recuperating from open heart surgery conducted Aug. 9, is reported doing fine at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. The 78-year-old entertainer is expected to be released in about a week.

Open Creek Zone Appears Doomed

A controversial proposal to create an open space flood plain strip on either side of the Sleepy Hollow and San Anselmo creeks appeared doomed last night, at least in its original form.

A crowd of about 150 San Anselmo residents, most of whom own property along the creeks, turned out for a public hearing held by the city planning commission at Isabel Cook School, mainly to express opposition to the plan.

The views expressed were similar to those aired at a similar public hearing last month. Property owners were disturbed by a proposed ordinance which would require a variance permit to reconstruct buildings within 20 feet of the creek bank if the structures were to burn or be demolished in a flood.

"My property would be worthless; I have two houses which would be illegal," one man said. He and others expressed fear that the city would in effect be taking the property without paying for it.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said that this would not be the case and that the man probably would be eligible for a variance to rebuild.

Other San Anselmans expressed fear that the public would be allowed to go through their property to use the creek for recreation.

Former Mayor Warren R. Perry, who has led the fight against the proposed ordinance, said he hoped the commission realized "the vast percentage of creek property is privately owned" and that "introduction of the public into it would create vast problems most of us are not ready for."

Despite mutterings from members of the large audience that "they'll do whatever they want regardless of what we say," planning commissioners agreed to drop the proposed ordinance as presently designed.

They instructed City Atty. Hadden W. Roth to advise them on the posibility of requiring use permits rather than variances for new structures along the creek banks. They also asked advice on the possibility of declaring the intent to keep the banks free in a resolution by the city council rather than an ordinance.

Planning Commissioner Duane C. Ragan said he thought it is "important to preserve the creek bank," but "the proposed ordinance is not workable."

"You cannot force a green belt on the owners," he concluded.

The planning commission set another hearing on the matter for 8 p.m. Sept. 16 in the city hall.

Marinwood CSD Hikes Center Rent

The Marinwood Community Services District last night boosted fees for rental of the community center.

District Mgr. Genevieve T. Bolding said rental of the facility on Saturdays will be increased from $70 to $80 for district residents, and from $105 to $125 for nonresidents.

The hike is necessary to cover increased cost of utilities and maintenance, she said.

The board last night also boosted fees charged for district tiny tot program by $1, she said.

In other action, the board said it opposes a proposal for a swim and tennis club complex on 15 acres at 1601 Lucas Valley Road. The board of supervisors will consider the Lucas Valley Racquet Club proposal on Aug. 22, she said.

49th Stab Victim At San Quentin

Another stabbing, the 49th this year at San Quentin, resulted in return of a total lockup of the West Honor block, a lockup that had been gradually easing.

Richard M. Ray, 32, serving a five-year-to-life sentence for robbery in Los Angeles County, was reported in fair condition today at the prison hospital with three stab wounds, according to Alex Silva, information officer. One lung collapsed in the stabbing.

Silva said that there was no suspect and no weapon was found. The lockup of the block will remain until prison investigation is completed, Silva said.

A lockup was imposed last Friday after Walter Hiryk, 38, serving a five year to life sentence for robbery from Los Angeles County, was stabbed 28 times.

That lockup was eased yesterday until the stabbing in the honor block, Silva said. Inmates in the other blocks in the prison were out today at their regular work assignments, Silva said.

Chinatown Civic Figure Convicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jury last night found Chinatown civic leader Albert Yin Wong guilty of lying to a federal grand jury investigating gambling in Chinatown.

U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel released Wong, a former president of the Chinese Six Companies, on his own recognizance until sentencing Oct. 16.

The jury deliberated seven and a half hours before deciding Wong, 73, committed perjury when he told the federal panel he never paid bribes to police or discussed Chinese gambling games with officers.

First Test Is Passed By Sign Law

Novato's proposed new sign ordinance weathered its first public hearing last night with its basic structure intact, according to planner Michael Harlock.

At a meeting of Novato planning commissioners and businessmen, there were proposals for rewording, no significant changes, Harlock said.

Under the proposed ordinance, sign review would be by the planning director rather than city plan review committee, a step designed to speed up the process.

The new ordinance also would permit product advertising, which has been banned, and would reduce abatment of nonconforming signs.

Abatement would be enforced where signs have been constructed without a permit, do not conform to approved plans or remain in disrepair.

Nonconforming signs generally are replaced in a few years, the planning staff reported.

Harlock said a new draft of the ordinance will be ready in three to four weeks and another public hearing in about six weeks.

Denial Of Permits Announced

Permits for a Mill Valley tennis court and a Black Point area firewood sales lot were denied today by Warren Baker Jr., deputy county zoning administrator.

In both cases, neighbors objected to the proposed uses in residential areas.

Donald Hall had sought to turn an existing house into a tennis club and to build three courts on a 34,000-square-foot lot at 39 Plaza Drive. Opponents claimed overcrowding of the lot, and a public works spokesman said proposed parking areas were clouded by easements over part of the property. The land originally was planned for two more homes, but constructon was balked by the sewer hookup moratorium, neighbors said.

Black Point Improvement Club spokesmen argued that the wood lot wanted by William Isom for 275 Olive would be undesirable. The site is on filled property at the southwest corner of the Oliver-Atherton Avenue intersectin within the Novato Flood Plain. It now is used for grazing.

Orange Crate Derby Applications Ready

Applications and instructions for the Fourth annual orange crate derby, sponsored by the Mill Valley Jaycees, are available Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue.

The race, which will be run at 10 a.m. Sept. 22 at the Mill Valley Library, is open to Mill Valley youths aged 10 to 15 as of Oct. 5.

To Chaplain, San Quentin Is 'Warehouse Of Bodies'

By MARC LITTMAN

Father Arthur Harrison gazed silently out his office window in San Quentin State Prison and pursed his lips.

Two guards were hustling a lanky, black inmate, his legs bound tightly with iron chains, into the isolated adjustment center, heavily guarded and ringed with coils of rusting barbed wire, where psychopathic killers and other dangerous criminals are housed.

The scene, though witnessed often by Father Harrison in the seven years he's been the prison's Catholic chaplain, drew an expression of pain upon his face.

The 43-year-old priest turned slowly in his chair, sighed, and said of San Quentin: "It's a warehouse of bodies."

He lapsed into silence again, slowly collecting his thoughts as he surveyed the small office, whose walls were adorned with handcrafted mementos from inmates past and present.

At last, the priest focused on a pendant which said, "Jesus Christ is Your Perfect Slackman."

"That's me," Father Harrison said, his eyes brightening. "A slackman, I'm that flexible go-between, the friend to ease the pressure."

Father Harrison explained that when he first arrived, at the prison, "a fish" as the inmates refer to someone new, it took him awhile before he became "conwise," able to understand what an inmate was really saying.

"You can't imagine the pressure on these guys to conform, where everyone, even the strangest perverts, are equal. The pressure to fall into racial, homosexual and narcotics circles is immense," Father Harrison said.

"Sometimes a guy will come to me with lightweight talk that's worthless when all he really wants is just to talk with someone on the sidelines who's free. To say, 'hey, I'm here. I'm a human being, notice me.' "

Father Harrison defined his role as more than just a priest, although he does conduct weekly mass and services in the Catholic chapel for some 150 regular attenders. (There is also a Protestant chaplain and chapel and a parttime rabbi with a makeshift synagogue.)

He is also liason between the prisoners and their families in emergencies, a counselor he says in a loose sense, but above all, a friend.

"I draw no religious lines," Father Harrison remarked. "I'm here five days a week and my door's always open. If the guys won't come to me, I go to them and that includes those in maximum security."

The amiable priest, who lives in San Rafael in the rectory at St. Raphael's Church, noted that he doesn't strive to make great inroads towards reforming inmates, many of whom he says are resigned to just struggling to survive.

"The external rewards are microscopic," Father Harrison said. "I see some changes and share in a guy's happiness who makes it on the streets, but I'm here to help a man regain his sense of personal dignity and sense of awareness of being a real human being. If that could be brought about on a large scale, this prison would be a different place."

Communication inequities of the American legal system in which the rich receive less punishment than the poor, Father Harrison said, "If you have a million-dollar attorney, you get million-dollar results. If you're some poor Mexican from San Leandro with a public defender, well . . ."

The American Council of Bishops issued a statement six months ago pleading for equality in the courts, Father Harrison noted.

He also said that the correctional system in California, itself, could be improved but that "people just aren't laying out the dough."

"The average man on the streets doesn't care about the guys here. They're pleased that they can't be let out of this warehouse," Father Harrison noted wryly.

At that point, he rose and together with his clerk, an inmate who wished to remain unidentified, took a short stroll on the prison grounds.

The expansive "big yard" where the inmates position themselves in long trim rows for meal countdowns was conspicuously empty that day, save for a few inmates, clustered into singular ethnic eddies.

Warden Kenneth R. Britt had ordered a partial "lockdown" that week in the wake of a rash of stabbings.

Only those inmates in minimum security West Block were permitted to leave their cells for anything but meals.

Father Harrison explained that the character of the prison had changed drastically since August 1971 when George Jackson of the Soledad Brothers was slain in an escape attempt.

"It's a tight prison now. Used to be a guy could just walk over and see me. He still can, but it's not as easy. It's tense," Father Harrison said.

As he strode briskly through the yard, occasionally he'd single an inmate out, "haven't seen you around for a while Joe," or nod kindly to another, "how ya doing, fellow."

"I think my work here will make me more sensitive to people when I return to a regular parish someday," Father Harrison reflected.

When he will return to a regular parish, he doesn't know, but Father Harrison, who was born in San Francisco, has been a priest for 18 years and has had parishes in Palo Alto and in San Jose and was the priest from 1960 to 1964 at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

The clerk led the way through the West Block, stopping to peer inside one of the dingy, narrow cells which he called a "house."

It was painfully void of all but the barest living comforts.

A wistful look crossed the clerk's face. "My greatest joy upon getting out of here will be to say, I survived both physically and mentally," he said slowly.

Father Harrison smiled and added, "And my little joy will be to say, I helped him survive."

Belvedere Pay Dispute With Policemen Settled

The Belvedere City Council and city policemen settled their dispute over salaries last night with approval of an 11.88 per cent pay hike.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported that the wage package, which covers all city employees with the exception of management personnel, ends negotiations under way since April.

Policemen had rejected an 8.63 per cent raise previously offered by the city.

The increase, retroactive to July 1, is equal to the rise in the cost of living over the past 15 months, Cavalli said. The package is expected to cost the city about $15,000, according to the city manager.

In addition, police officers won a boost in their annual allowance for uniforms from $170 to $225 and all employees will be allowed to accumulate 120 sick days, double the previous amount.

Councilmen also agreed to contract for retirement benefits for city workers with the state public employees retirement system.

Coarse Foods May Be Healthy

CHICAGO (UPI) — A number of modern man's ills may be attributed to food that's just too easy to digest, according to a team of British and South African researchers.

The researchers reported in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association that coarse, indigestable fibers found in crudely milled flour and unprocessed bran bay be dietary essentials for avoidance of a variety of diseases, including heart disease, blood clots and obesity.

Such diseases are relatively unknown in native African populations, where the basic diet still consists of coarsely processed cereals, according to Dr. D. P. Burkitt and N. S. Painter of London and A. R. P. Walker of South Africa.

Development Board Will Discuss Hiring

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the agency's San Rafael office, will discuss procedures for hiring Marin City residents for jobs in the community's planned redevelopment project, according to Board Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Plans by Highland Associates call for construction this year of 442 apartments and townhouses on 36 acres in Marin City.

Planners Pass First Revised Tree Permit

Marin County Planning Commissioners yesterday granted the county's first firewood cutting permit under Marin's revised zoning ordinance.

The permit to cut oak trees on the A. Crawford Cooley Ranch on the Marin-Sonoma county line west of Highway 101 went to Daniel A. Bostrom, operator of the D and W Firewood Co. in Petaluma. About 200 acres of moderately sloping hillsides will be logged over several years. Only oak trees will be cut and the logger must carefully control erosion by planting grass seed and piling brush to encourage new trees to grow, the commission ordered.

The commission agreed with staff that no formal environmental impact report was needed for the permit.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

HAMILTON — Set a hearing for Sept. 16 on updating the clear zone safety standards for land near the runway at Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base. Land use in the Ignacio Industrial Park on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard may be affected. The proposed changes reflect new Air Force safety standards and data.

WATER — Directed the planning department staff to work with the county's two water districts on drafting requirements for applicants who want to establish independent water systems within the districts.

CONDOMINIUM — With almost no discussion, concurred with changes requested by the board of supervisors in the county's proposed condominium ordinance.

HEARINGS — Asked the supervisors to ratify a guide for citizens to use in speaking at public hearings of the commission, board of zoning adjustments and the like. The guide, planned to be distributed to would-be speakers at each hearing, was proposed by the League of Women Voters, according to Planning Director Werner Von Gundell.

APPEAL — Granted Roy Gibbs's appeal against requirements that a water storage tank and fire hydrants be installed as conditions for a permit to divide an 11.68-acre parcel in Inverness Park into four parcels.

MASTER PLAN — Recommended that the ocunty master plan consistency requirements be made to apply to all land divisions the same as they now regulate all subdivisions within unincorporated areas. Staff explained that some land division applications have conflicted with the county general plan.

Fairfax Fighting To Trim Budget; $35,325 Is Cut

The Fairfax Town Council, again grappling with a budget for 1974-75, last night trimmed $35,325 from the spending program.

The proposed budget now stands at $729,832, up from this year's $719,774 program.

Mayor Frank J. Egger estimated that the present budget level would require a tax rate of $1.85 per $100 assessed valuation, up five cents over this year. He added that the tax rate could drop by several cents depending on the final budget that is adopted.

By state law, the council is required to fix a tax rate by Sept. 1 and Mayor Egger said that the council will also have adopted a budget by then.

The councilmen were determined last night to offset a $62,750 spending deficit which still lingers at $27,425.

Councilman Randall L. Garrison characterized the mood of the meeting when he said, "the whole town is going to have to start cutting back."

Councilman Priscilla R. Gray explained his statement, saying simply, "we're broke."

Cut last night was a $1,800 police department allocation for a motorcycle to patrol parking violations in the downtown area. The task will now be handled by a patrolman on foot.

Also cut from the police department budget requests $5,580 in overtime pay for full-time employees and $2,000 in overtime pay for part-time and temporary employees. The council also agreed to finance $3,200 in state-required police safety equipment from federal revenue sharing funds.

Another $3,000 was trimmed in overtime pay allocated for the street department. The council decided to save an additional $6,529 by hiring a needed street department employee through the Federal Public Employment Act program which will pay 90 per cent of the man's salary.

The council also sliced $7,416 from various nondepartmental accounts in central services, legal services and engineering contract services.

Another $1,300 in nondepartmental miscellaneous allocations was also eliminated including $1,000 originally allocated for a Survival Inc. recycling depot.

Lastly, the council trimmed traveling expenses for the various departments by $1,800, including the entire $1,250 allocated to the council for out-of-town meetings.

The council will consider the budget again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Youngster Is Given Heart Transplant

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A teenage boy yesterday became Stanford University's youngest heart transplant recipient.

The unidentified youth was given the heart of Albert Lorincz, 26, San Jose, who suffered massive head injuries in a hang-glider accident at nearby Pacifica on Sunday.

Two Escape Jail Time In Pot Case

Two San Rafael men will not serve time in jail for possessing marijuana and concealing stolen property, a Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled.

Judge Peter Allen Smith sentenced David Phillips Root, 18, to 10 days of work with the county parks and recreation department.

Root had pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen motorcycle frame.

Smith also ordered Albert John Rasmussen, 19, to spend one year on probation for possessing marijuana. If he stays out of trouble, the charge will be dismissed, Smith ruled.

San Rafael police arrested the pair in May after they went to their apartment to investigate a theft. Inside they found the motorcycle frame, marijuana, pills and drug paraphernalia.

Penicillin Seen Losing Potency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Penicillin may be nearly useless in treating common staph infections, since many staph strains have developed an immunity to the drug, according to a research report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

For years, it has been well known that staph strains circulating in hospitals have become resistant to the commonly used penicillin G. But, the report said, tests now show that street variety strains of the infection also show high degrees of resistance to the drug — possibly because of indiscriminate use of penicillin during the past 20 years.

In studies conducted on 133 children in Washington D.C., the report said, resistance of staph strains common to the community was 84 per cent while resistance of hospital strains was 95 per cent.

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1974 19

A SLACKMAN — Father Arthur Harrison counsels an inmate at his chapel office in San Quentin State Prison. The 43-year-old priest describes himself in prison slang as a "slackman," a friend who's there to help an inmate regain his sense of decency and awareness that he's a human being.

Best Friend Gets Woman's Whole Estate

In a handwritten will penned the day before she shot herself, Marion S. Young of Greenbrae has left her estate to a man she called "my only friend for nine years."

Mrs. Young's will, filed with the County Clerk's office, leaves nothing to her 91-year-old husband, Harry J.

Instead, she named Raymund A. Frazier, 43, a music teacher, the only beneficiary and executor of her will, disposing of bank savings, stocks and some eight pieces of property.

It was Frazier who was invited to Mrs. Young's home on Los Cerros Drive for dinner the evening of July 30, but when he got there he found not a meal on the dining room table but a note.

"Look in the shower," it said.

He did, and found Mrs. Young's body with bullet wounds in the neck and temple. A pistol lay nearby.

The coroner's office called it a suicide.

Mrs. Young, 68, had penned two copies of her will, mailing one to Frazier, who lives in an apartment on nearby Via Hidalgo, and leaving the other in her home.

She wrote, "I hereby give, devise and bequeath unto my best friend, Raymund A. Frazier, all of my estate.

"Raymund has been my only friend for nine years. None of my relatives have ever shown any kindness or love for me," it read.

If anyone, related or not, contests the will, that person will get only $1, she wrote.

Besides her husband, survivors include two brothers and a sister.

Burns Recuperating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian George Burns, who is recuperating from open heart surgery conducted Aug. 9, is reported doing fine at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. The 78-year-old entertainer is expected to be released in about a week.

Open Creek Zone Appears Doomed

A controversial proposal to create an open space flood plain strip on either side of the Sleepy Hollow and San Anselmo creeks appeared doomed last night, at least in its original form.

A crowd of about 150 San Anselmo residents, most of whom own property along the creeks, turned out for a public hearing held by the city planning commission at Isabel Cook School, mainly to express opposition to the plan.

The views expressed were similar to those aired at a similar public hearing last month. Property owners were disturbed by a proposed ordinance which would require a variance permit to reconstruct buildings within 20 feet of the creek bank if the structures were to burn or be demolished in a flood.

"My property would be worthless; I have two houses which would be illegal," one man said. He and others expressed fear that the city would in effect be taking the property without paying for it.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said that this would not be the case and that the man probably would be eligible for a variance to rebuild.

Other San Anselmans expressed fear that the public would be allowed to go through their property to use the creek for recreation.

Former Mayor Warren R. Perry, who has led the fight against the proposed ordinance, said he hoped the commission realized "the vast percentage of creek property is privately owned" and that "introduction of the public into it would create vast problems most of us are not ready for."

Despite mutterings from members of the large audience that "they'll do whatever they want regardless of what we say," planning commissioners agreed to drop the proposed ordinance as presently designed.

They instructed City Atty. Hadden W. Roth to advise them on the posibility of requiring use permits rather than variances for new structures along the creek banks. They also asked advice on the possibility of declaring the intent to keep the banks free in a resolution by the city council rather than an ordinance.

Planning Commissioner Duane C. Ragan said he thought it is "important to preserve the creek bank," but "the proposed ordinance is not workable."

"You cannot force a green belt on the owners," he concluded.

The planning commission set another hearing on the matter for 8 p.m. Sept. 16 in the city hall.

Marinwood CSD Hikes Center Rent

The Marinwood Community Services District last night boosted fees for rental of the community center.

District Mgr. Genevieve T. Bolding said rental of the facility on Saturdays will be increased from $70 to $80 for district residents, and from $105 to $125 for nonresidents.

The hike is necessary to cover increased cost of utilities and maintenance, she said.

The board last night also boosted fees charged for district tiny tot program by $1, she said.

In other action, the board said it opposes a proposal for a swim and tennis club complex on 15 acres at 1601 Lucas Valley Road. The board of supervisors will consider the Lucas Valley Racquet Club proposal on Aug. 22, she said.

49th Stab Victim At San Quentin

Another stabbing, the 49th this year at San Quentin, resulted in return of a total lockup of the West Honor block, a lockup that had been gradually easing.

Richard M. Ray, 32, serving a five-year-to-life sentence for robbery in Los Angeles County, was reported in fair condition today at the prison hospital with three stab wounds, according to Alex Silva, information officer. One lung collapsed in the stabbing.

Silva said that there was no suspect and no weapon was found. The lockup of the block will remain until prison investigation is completed, Silva said.

A lockup was imposed last Friday after Walter Hiryk, 38, serving a five year to life sentence for robbery from Los Angeles County, was stabbed 28 times.

That lockup was eased yesterday until the stabbing in the honor block, Silva said. Inmates in the other blocks in the prison were out today at their regular work assignments, Silva said.

Chinatown Civic Figure Convicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jury last night found Chinatown civic leader Albert Yin Wong guilty of lying to a federal grand jury investigating gambling in Chinatown.

U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel released Wong, a former president of the Chinese Six Companies, on his own recognizance until sentencing Oct. 16.

The jury deliberated seven and a half hours before deciding Wong, 73, committed perjury when he told the federal panel he never paid bribes to police or discussed Chinese gambling games with officers.

First Test Is Passed By Sign Law

Novato's proposed new sign ordinance weathered its first public hearing last night with its basic structure intact, according to planner Michael Harlock.

At a meeting of Novato planning commissioners and businessmen, there were proposals for rewording, no significant changes, Harlock said.

Under the proposed ordinance, sign review would be by the planning director rather than city plan review committee, a step designed to speed up the process.

The new ordinance also would permit product advertising, which has been banned, and would reduce abatment of nonconforming signs.

Abatement would be enforced where signs have been constructed without a permit, do not conform to approved plans or remain in disrepair.

Nonconforming signs generally are replaced in a few years, the planning staff reported.

Harlock said a new draft of the ordinance will be ready in three to four weeks and another public hearing in about six weeks.

Denial Of Permits Announced

Permits for a Mill Valley tennis court and a Black Point area firewood sales lot were denied today by Warren Baker Jr., deputy county zoning administrator.

In both cases, neighbors objected to the proposed uses in residential areas.

Donald Hall had sought to turn an existing house into a tennis club and to build three courts on a 34,000-square-foot lot at 39 Plaza Drive. Opponents claimed overcrowding of the lot, and a public works spokesman said proposed parking areas were clouded by easements over part of the property. The land originally was planned for two more homes, but constructon was balked by the sewer hookup moratorium, neighbors said.

Black Point Improvement Club spokesmen argued that the wood lot wanted by William Isom for 275 Olive would be undesirable. The site is on filled property at the southwest corner of the Oliver-Atherton Avenue intersectin within the Novato Flood Plain. It now is used for grazing.

Orange Crate Derby Applications Ready

Applications and instructions for the Fourth annual orange crate derby, sponsored by the Mill Valley Jaycees, are available Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce, 85 Throckmorton Avenue.

The race, which will be run at 10 a.m. Sept. 22 at the Mill Valley Library, is open to Mill Valley youths aged 10 to 15 as of Oct. 5.

To Chaplain, San Quentin Is 'Warehouse Of Bodies'

By MARC LITTMAN

Father Arthur Harrison gazed silently out his office window in San Quentin State Prison and pursed his lips.

Two guards were hustling a lanky, black inmate, his legs bound tightly with iron chains, into the isolated adjustment center, heavily guarded and ringed with coils of rusting barbed wire, where psychopathic killers and other dangerous criminals are housed.

The scene, though witnessed often by Father Harrison in the seven years he's been the prison's Catholic chaplain, drew an expression of pain upon his face.

The 43-year-old priest turned slowly in his chair, sighed, and said of San Quentin: "It's a warehouse of bodies."

He lapsed into silence again, slowly collecting his thoughts as he surveyed the small office, whose walls were adorned with handcrafted mementos from inmates past and present.

At last, the priest focused on a pendant which said, "Jesus Christ is Your Perfect Slackman."

"That's me," Father Harrison said, his eyes brightening. "A slackman, I'm that flexible go-between, the friend to ease the pressure."

Father Harrison explained that when he first arrived, at the prison, "a fish" as the inmates refer to someone new, it took him awhile before he became "conwise," able to understand what an inmate was really saying.

"You can't imagine the pressure on these guys to conform, where everyone, even the strangest perverts, are equal. The pressure to fall into racial, homosexual and narcotics circles is immense," Father Harrison said.

"Sometimes a guy will come to me with lightweight talk that's worthless when all he really wants is just to talk with someone on the sidelines who's free. To say, 'hey, I'm here. I'm a human being, notice me.' "

Father Harrison defined his role as more than just a priest, although he does conduct weekly mass and services in the Catholic chapel for some 150 regular attenders. (There is also a Protestant chaplain and chapel and a parttime rabbi with a makeshift synagogue.)

He is also liason between the prisoners and their families in emergencies, a counselor he says in a loose sense, but above all, a friend.

"I draw no religious lines," Father Harrison remarked. "I'm here five days a week and my door's always open. If the guys won't come to me, I go to them and that includes those in maximum security."

The amiable priest, who lives in San Rafael in the rectory at St. Raphael's Church, noted that he doesn't strive to make great inroads towards reforming inmates, many of whom he says are resigned to just struggling to survive.

"The external rewards are microscopic," Father Harrison said. "I see some changes and share in a guy's happiness who makes it on the streets, but I'm here to help a man regain his sense of personal dignity and sense of awareness of being a real human being. If that could be brought about on a large scale, this prison would be a different place."

Communication inequities of the American legal system in which the rich receive less punishment than the poor, Father Harrison said, "If you have a million-dollar attorney, you get million-dollar results. If you're some poor Mexican from San Leandro with a public defender, well . . ."

The American Council of Bishops issued a statement six months ago pleading for equality in the courts, Father Harrison noted.

He also said that the correctional system in California, itself, could be improved but that "people just aren't laying out the dough."

"The average man on the streets doesn't care about the guys here. They're pleased that they can't be let out of this warehouse," Father Harrison noted wryly.

At that point, he rose and together with his clerk, an inmate who wished to remain unidentified, took a short stroll on the prison grounds.

The expansive "big yard" where the inmates position themselves in long trim rows for meal countdowns was conspicuously empty that day, save for a few inmates, clustered into singular ethnic eddies.

Warden Kenneth R. Britt had ordered a partial "lockdown" that week in the wake of a rash of stabbings.

Only those inmates in minimum security West Block were permitted to leave their cells for anything but meals.

Father Harrison explained that the character of the prison had changed drastically since August 1971 when George Jackson of the Soledad Brothers was slain in an escape attempt.

"It's a tight prison now. Used to be a guy could just walk over and see me. He still can, but it's not as easy. It's tense," Father Harrison said.

As he strode briskly through the yard, occasionally he'd single an inmate out, "haven't seen you around for a while Joe," or nod kindly to another, "how ya doing, fellow."

"I think my work here will make me more sensitive to people when I return to a regular parish someday," Father Harrison reflected.

When he will return to a regular parish, he doesn't know, but Father Harrison, who was born in San Francisco, has been a priest for 18 years and has had parishes in Palo Alto and in San Jose and was the priest from 1960 to 1964 at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

The clerk led the way through the West Block, stopping to peer inside one of the dingy, narrow cells which he called a "house."

It was painfully void of all but the barest living comforts.

A wistful look crossed the clerk's face. "My greatest joy upon getting out of here will be to say, I survived both physically and mentally," he said slowly.

Father Harrison smiled and added, "And my little joy will be to say, I helped him survive."

Belvedere Pay Dispute With Policemen Settled

The Belvedere City Council and city policemen settled their dispute over salaries last night with approval of an 11.88 per cent pay hike.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported that the wage package, which covers all city employees with the exception of management personnel, ends negotiations under way since April.

Policemen had rejected an 8.63 per cent raise previously offered by the city.

The increase, retroactive to July 1, is equal to the rise in the cost of living over the past 15 months, Cavalli said. The package is expected to cost the city about $15,000, according to the city manager.

In addition, police officers won a boost in their annual allowance for uniforms from $170 to $225 and all employees will be allowed to accumulate 120 sick days, double the previous amount.

Councilmen also agreed to contract for retirement benefits for city workers with the state public employees retirement system.

Coarse Foods May Be Healthy

CHICAGO (UPI) — A number of modern man's ills may be attributed to food that's just too easy to digest, according to a team of British and South African researchers.

The researchers reported in the current edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association that coarse, indigestable fibers found in crudely milled flour and unprocessed bran bay be dietary essentials for avoidance of a variety of diseases, including heart disease, blood clots and obesity.

Such diseases are relatively unknown in native African populations, where the basic diet still consists of coarsely processed cereals, according to Dr. D. P. Burkitt and N. S. Painter of London and A. R. P. Walker of South Africa.

Development Board Will Discuss Hiring

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency board, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the agency's San Rafael office, will discuss procedures for hiring Marin City residents for jobs in the community's planned redevelopment project, according to Board Chairman Collie B. Gaines.

Plans by Highland Associates call for construction this year of 442 apartments and townhouses on 36 acres in Marin City.

WHY PAY EXTRA FOR A CAR WHEN YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN MARIN?

If you're tempted to buy a car in the City or East Bay, put on the brakes and consider: Marin dealers, with much lower overhead, pass you the saving. They're local, you're local. They want your business and will prove it to you both in price and service. Lower sales tax, too! More convenience, a better deal. Makes sense?

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider amendments to Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code, which amendments would reclassify, separably and independently, the following properties in the Wolfback Ridge area; including properties all or partially designated as Ridge and Upland Greenbelt Open Space in the Marin Countywide Plan. Also included are public lands purchased as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, which should be rezoned O-A (Open Area District).

As described in the County's adopted policies for rezoning open space areas designated in the Marin Countywide Plan, the purpose of the proposed rezoning is to apply very low densities, to protect the open space character of the areas, and to achieve consistency with the plan's policies. In most cases, a very low density, RMP (Residential, Multiple Planned District), will be recommended because it allows maximum flexibility in building placement and allows either detached or attached units. The Commission will consider rezoning to either a higher or lower density, according to the specific characteristics of the site, at the time development plans are presented. The possibility of provision of low, moderate, or middle-income housing will be one of the considerations to be applied to the decision concerning density at the time of the review of the development.

The following parcels are included in this proposal:

Public Notice

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE MARIN COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT RESOLUTION NO. 74-248 RESOLUTION ORDERING NOTICE OF THE PUBLIC SALE OF AND ORDERING PUBLIC SALE OF REAL PROPERTY

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 25363 authorizes the sale of real property owned by the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and not required for public use, at a public auction; and

WHEREAS, the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District is owner in fee simple of a parcel of real property located on the south bank of Novato Creek just easterly of U.S. Highway No. 101. Said property is more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto. Said property is also known as Assessor's Parcel No. 153-170-42 and contains 13,256 square feet; and

WHEREAS, by Resolution No. 73-374 on November 20, 1973 this Board did declare said parcel to be surplus and stated that it may be sold pursuant to law.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that it is the intention of this Board to sell the above described parcel at a regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Flood Control District, at the Chambers of the Board of Supervisors, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, at 1:45 o'clock p.m., on the 10th day of September, 1974. Said property will be conveyed by Grant Deed, Without Warranty. Copies of the Grant Deed and a description of the property will be available at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors and in the Department of Public Works, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the terms and conditions of sale shall be as follows:

a) The minimum acceptable price is THIRTEEN THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS ($13,250.00).

b) Sealed written bids shall be submitted to the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, accompanied by cash or certified check payable to Treasurer, County of Marin, in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the bid price. All written bids must be submitted prior to the time of the hearing.

(c) This Board shall, before accepting any written bids, call for oral bids. Any responsible person may offer orally to increase the amount of the highest written bid by a sum of not less than five percent (5%) and to continue thereafter to bid in any amount until the highest oral bid, if any, is received.

(d) In the event no written bids are received, the Board shall call for oral bids. Such oral bidding must begin at a figure no lower than the minimum acceptable bid price of $13,250. Any responsible person may enter the oral bidding or may offer to increase the amount of the opening oral bid by a sum of not less than five percent (5%) and to continue thereafter to bid in any amount until the highest oral bid, if any, is received.

(e) The balance of the successful bid shall be paid within thirty (30) days of the acceptance of the bid, and in the event it is not so paid, the ten percent (10%) cash or certified check of the successful bidder shall be declared forfeit.

(f) This Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and/or waive any irregularities in a bid.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Clerk of this Board is hereby ordered to post copies of this Resolution, signed by the Chairman of this Board, in three (3) public places in the County not less than fifteen (15) days before the date of the opening of bids, and to publish a Notice of Intention to Sell once a week for three successive weeks prior to the hearing, in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation in the County.

PASSED AND ADOPTED at a regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District held on the 13th day of August, 1974, by the following vote:

AYES: SUPERVISORS PETER R. ARRIGONI, GARY GIACOMINI, BOB ROUMIGUIERE, ARNOLD M. BAPTISTE, MICHAEL WORNUM
NOES: SUPERVISORS
ABSENT: SUPERVISORS
MICHAEL WORNUM,

$9 Million Awarded To Lawyers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday awarded fees of $9.2 million to approximately 100 lawyers for their seven years work on 140 successful anti-trust suits against the gypsum industry.

U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli wrote that the $67.6 million recovered in the lawsuits was the largest anti-trust settlement ever obtained "without benefit of an assist from the government."

The six defendants in the cases produce more than 90 per cent of the nation's production of fibreboard, an important material in the construction industry.

Zirpoli said in his order that after the defendants "abandoned their conspiracy in 1968" the price of fibreboard dropped nearly 21 per cent in three years.

One of the lawyers involved, John Boone, said the case was the first in which a "pilot trial" was held to establish whether the defendants were guilty of price-fixing.

That trial, held from Oct. 20, 1969, to March 19, 1970, resulted in a guilty verdict against three of the defendants and the awarding by Zirpoli of $3.1 million damages to six San Francisco fibreboard dealers.

The actual settlements were approved last summer, Boone said, and the $67 million will go to approximately 60,000 governmental agencies, companies and individuals.

The six defendants in the cases were: U.S. Gypsum Co., Chicago; National Gypsum Co., Buffalo, N.Y.; Kaiser Gypsum Co., Oakland, Calif.; Georgia-Pacific Co., Portland, Ore.; Flintkote Co., White Plains, N.Y., and Celotex Corp., Chicago.

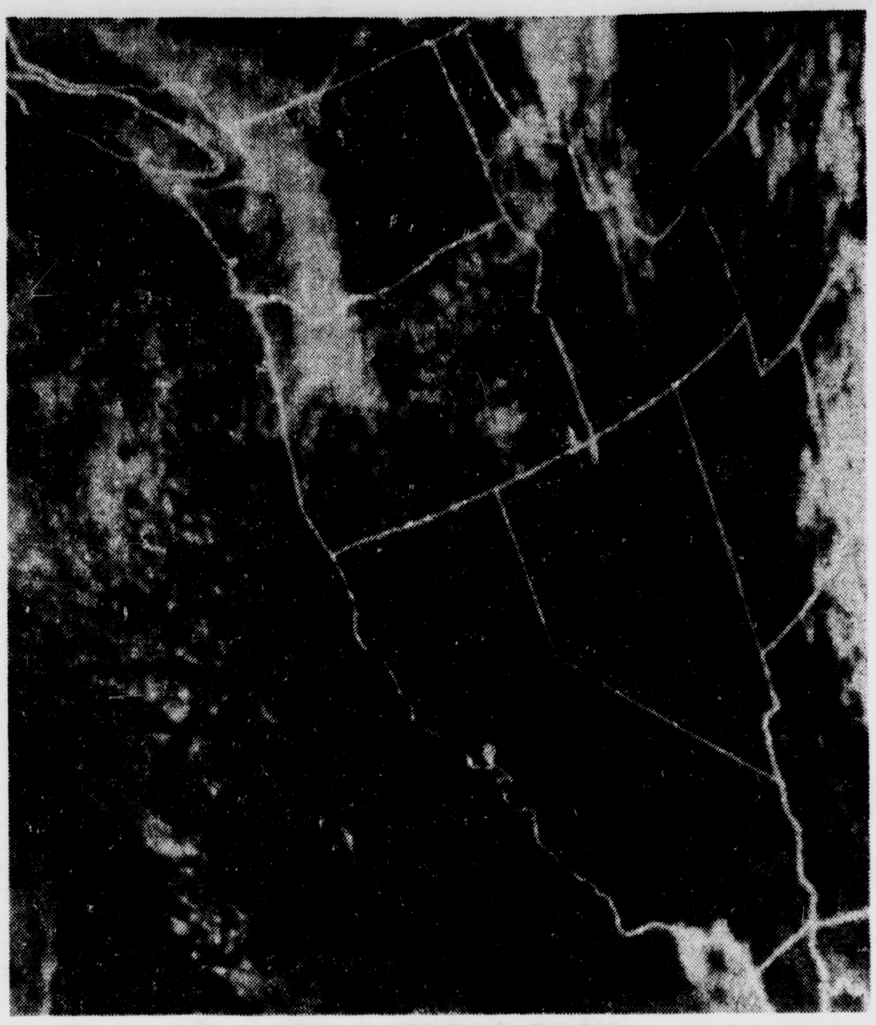
Reopening Of Lake Pollution Hearing Asked

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that U. S. District Court Judge Miles Lord should reopen hearings into alleged pollution of Lake Superior by the Reserve Mining Co. of Silver Bay, Minn.

In one of the longest environmental trials in U.S. history, Lord had ordered Reserve to shut down its operations because of the pollution.

The company, however, won a reprieve at a hearing in May before the appellate court, and both sides were ordered to discuss possible on-land disposal of the waste materials now being dumped into the lake.

In its order yesterday, the appellate court did not change its original ruling allowing Reserve's 3,100 employes to continue working at the plant in Silver Bay.



ON A CLEAR DAY

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

FORECASTS

San Francisco Bay Area: Fair through tomorrow, except for patchy fog and low clouds near the coast late tonight and tomorrow morning; high tomorrow in the mid 60s to mid 70s along the coast and in the upper 70s to upper 80s inland areas; low tonight in the 50s; west to northwest winds to 20 m.p.h. tomorrow afternoon and both evenings.

Sierra Nevada: Fair through tomorrow; warming trend.

Napa and Sonoma valleys: Fair through tomorrow; low tonight and high tomorrow at Santa Rosa 54 and 92; northwest winds 10 to 20 m.p.h.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Histoplasmosis: You Can Get It From The Birds

"Several years when I worked on a farm, I developed fever, cough and extreme fatigue. The doctor had me admitted to a Veterans Administration hospital, where I was told I had histoplasmosis. I am now cured, but what are my chances of getting the infection again?"

Almost nil, if you give up farming and exploring caves or other places where birds roost. If you must go into a rural area, stay away from chicken coops and pigeon roosts since these are favorite breeding places for the causative fungus.

Histoplasmosis is a noncontagious lung infection that afflicts millions of Americans, mostly frequently in infancy and in old age. It is caused by Histoplasma capsulatum, a mold or fungus, that thrives in damp, shady areas and lives in soil contaminated by bird droppings (of bats, starlings and pigeons). The benign form of the disease is symptomless, but most of the victims develop fever, fatigue, chest pain and a slight cough, all symptoms that are indistinguishable from those caused by flu. Some sufferers cough up bloody sputum and develop aching and shortness of breath. Others have more serious manifestations like those seen in severe flu, pneumonia, or tuberculosis.

DIAGNOSIS IS MADE by cultures of secretions from bone marrow, blood, sputum, exudate from an ulcer, or by administering the histoplasmin skin test. A positive reaction may denote a past or mild, chronic infection. Expensive tests are often needed to rule out pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid and even leukemia. This is especially true when the yeast-like fungi have spread throughout the body. Few organs are exempt from infection.

Ingested for a relatively short period of time, Amphotericin-B, an antibiotic, has been effective. This drug hastens recovery and may prevent a protracted illness. The sulfonamides yield the best results in children.

ANGINA, HEAT

E. J. writes: Does the excessive heat and humidity of summer aggravate angina pectoris?

REPLY

Yes. The heart has to work harder to adjust to extremes of heat.

TENSION AND GLAUCOMA

S. O. writes: Do nerves play an important part in glaucoma?

REPLY

Yes, emotional upsets may increase pressure within the eyeball.

LEG MOTTLING

M. M. writes: Can you tell me something about livido reticularis? I've got it, and my doctor knows neither its cause nor treatment.

REPLY

Your physician is right. We do not know the cause of livido reticularis. This disorder is similar to chilblains and is best described as a mottling of the skin over the upper or lower extremities. You should keep your legs warm and if the skin is unsightly, cover it with a suitable masking cream.

WHITE KNUCKLE FLIGHT

Mrs. J. writes: We are flying to Europe this summer, and I have a fear of heights. Is there a medicine I can take to relieve this anxiety?

REPLY

Your physician can prescribe one of the many sedatives that are available.

PAINLESS ARTHRITIS

L. G. A. writes: Is there such a thing as painless arthritis?

REPLY

Yes. An X-ray may show extensive evidence of arthritis, but the victim will have none of the symptoms, such as pain, swelling or limitation of movement of the joint.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

FORGETFUL

M. L. writes: Could forgetfulness be the first sign of insanity?

REPLY

Perhaps. But so many of us are forgetful, the condition cannot be regarded as an early sign of disease. There are many types of insanity, and the first symptoms are so vague, it is difficult to single out the culprit. Besides, there is no sharp line of demarcation between normal and abnormal. I assume you are not referring to the amnesia some psychotic persons develop during the height of their illness.

VERTIGO

H. H. writes: Could four days in a mountainous region cause an attack of dizziness three days later?

REPLY

I doubt it because of the timing and also because so many people develop dizziness even though most of them have never been to the mountains. Did you catch cold while away?

Ford Invites Rabin To Mideast Session

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has invited Israeli prime minister Yitzhak Rabin to visit Washington in early September for the final round of Arab-Israeli consultations on a Middle East peace settlement.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced the invitation in a news conference yesterday in which he said he would be conferring later this week with the Syrian foreign minister.

GAZER'S GUIDE

Equinox To Be Sky Feature

By DR. THOMAS D. NICHOLSON
Director, the American Museum of Natural History, New York

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Sept. 1 — Mercury is in conjunction with Mars. Both are in the evening sky tonight but are too low, too dim, and set too soon after sunset to be visible.

Sept. 1 — Jupiter rises below and shortly after the waning gibbous moon a little after sundown tonight. During the night, the moon moves slowly to the east (left) above Jupiter, passing nearest to the planet about 5 a.m., local daylight time.

Sept. 5: Jupiter is directly opposite the sun in our sky. This means that Jupiter rises tonight at sunset and sets tomorrow morning at sunrise. During the months hereafter, it will become more obviously an evening star.

Sept. 7 — The bright morning star near Venus (but not nearly as bright as Venus) is Regulus, in Leo.

Sept. 11 — The bright object nearest the moon this morning is Saturn. Tomorrow morning, the moon will be to the east (left) of Saturn and more distant from it.

Sept. 14 — The moon is at perigee, nearest Earth.

Sept. 17 — Mercury is near the early crescent moon this evening, but it will be difficult to see either one.

Sept. 23 — The sun has been moving southward in the sky above the Earth and today it crosses above the equator, at the point in the sky known as the autumnal equinox, at 5:59 a.m., LDT. At that time, summer ends and autumn begins in the Northern Hemisphere.

Sept. 26 — The moon is at apogee, farthest from Earth.

Sept. 28 — For the second time this month, Jupiter rises near the moon, this time shortly after sunset, since opposition occurred earlier in the month. Again, you can see the moon moving closer to Jupiter during the night as it passes above the planet, nearest to it at 5 a.m., LDT.

All month: Mercury, Mars, and Jupiter are technically evening stars this month ?Jupiter after the fifth), but none of them look like it. Mercury and Mars are simply too low in the western sky at sundown. Both planets set so soon after the sun that they cannot be seen.

As for Jupiter, it is bright enough, but its position is such that it is just rising in the east at sundown, amid the dim stars of Aquarius. During the night, it moves westward and higher till midnight, when it is in the south, then lower until it reaches the western horizon about dawn.

In the dawn sky, Jupiter will still be prominent, low in the west. In the east, Saturn will have risen about midnight and by twilight it will be well up in the southeast. Venus also rises before the sun, but just barely in time to be seen before the sky brightens in early September and too late to be visible in late September.

Al Hirt Getting New Restaurant

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Trumpeter Al Hirt signed a lease for a new cafe in a renovated section of the French Market yesterday.

While Hirt said his French Quarter nightclub will remain open, he planned to spend as much time as possible in the new restaurant.

It will be named the Cafe St. Cecile after the patron saint of music, he said.

Cash Performs At Penitentiary

MCALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — "The only reason we're here today is because we care about the people," Johnny Cash said after a performance for 850 cheering inmates at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary.

State Corrections Department Director Russell Lash said it was "a great morale booster for the men — they'll be talking about it for months."

Cash was joined yesterday by the Tennessee Three and Glen Shirley, a former prison inmate whom Cash helped get into show business after meeting him at a concert at Folsom prison in California.

She Sets Mark; Loses No Weight

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Housewife Jennie Cox broke a world's record for crow's nest sitting yesterday, but she failed in her attempt to lose 30 pounds.

During her 61 days in a four-foot-diameter crow's nest, Mrs. Cox actually gained two pounds.

A fire truck was called yesterday to pluck Mrs. Cox from her 40-foot-high perch because she didn't think her legs were strong enough for climbing down the metal mast.

She said the first thing she wanted to do was take a long, hot bath.

TELEVISION REVIEW

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hudson Brothers are riding high now with their summer music-comedy show on CBS. But to hear Bill Hudson tell it, their climb from obscurity was more like riding the crest of a slump.

Record deals collapsed, creditors' notes materialized, empty stomachs rumbled and worst of all, Allan Blye, who now co-produces their show, didn't laugh when they auditioned for him.

But the three brothers — Bill, 24, Mark, 22, and Brett, 21 — never were fazed. Bill says that's because they've always found something to laugh about, usually themselves.

The brothers started their career in their early teens and also started slipping fast comedy bits into their soft-rock music act.

Alas, when they landed their first record contract in 1968 and went on tour, the comedy caused problems, Bill says. The company thought they should stick to music, but the brothers couldn't help gagging it up.

"We've always cracked each other up, but there were many times we didn't crack anyone else up," said Bill. "We'd say something and thought it was hilarious.

"We'd kill ourselves laughing on stage and we'd stop laughing — and silence . . ."

The Hudson comedy style on their Wednesday night show is a wild blend of sight gags, quick skits and fresh puns.

Bill said it evolved in late 1968, when the brothers repaired to the basement of the Hudson home in Portland, Ore., and started writing and performing skits.

They went back on the road, but fiscal disaster followed. One record company flew them from Los Angeles to New York to play at a bash, but the bash was canceled for reasons unknown, he said.

"The company wouldn't fly us back " Bill said, "And we only had $50 between us."

They grabbed whatever club dates they could find. One club hired them for two weeks, but wouldn't pay in advance. It did agree to advance them one meal a night.

They finally arrived home in Portland with total cash assets of 75 cents.

Their big break came — and went — in early 1973 when they met pop music star Elton John, whom Hudson said liked their style and wanted to produce an album recorded by them in England, a deal that fizzled.

But prior to leaving for England, he said, they'd met Chris Bearde, producer of the old "Sonny and Cher" show, and auditioned for him.

Bill Hudson recalled that an audition before Blye left them feeling fame and fortune were not imminent.

"We did 45 minutes for him, used everything in the bag," he said. "But he didn't crack a smile and our hearts just fell."

Chewing Gum Industry Hit By Inflation

The dominant firm in the industry, William Wrigley Jr. Co., has announced a 30 per cent wholesale price increase in three of its brands. The hikes follow 15 per cent increases June 29.

Wrigley claims to manufacture nearly half of the chewing gum market in the United States. Its president, William Wrigley, said since early 1974 materials in gum have been hit with "staggering cost increases."

Wrigley said they have risen 50 per cent this year.

A Wrigley spokesman said the wholesale cost of a single package of seven sticks is 7.5 cents.

The over-the-counter price may rise to 15 cents in some parts of the country.

House Creats National Monument

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted yesterday to create a new national monument and five national historic sites at a cost of $18.5 million.

It also approved a $42,4 million package of additions and improvements to existing National Park System units in 11 states, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

The additions to the park system would be made under two bills sent to the Senate by voice vote.

One bill would establish the John Day Fossil Beds National Monument on Oregon at a cost of $4.4 million.

The five new historic sties and their estimated cost include:

Clara Barton home at Glen Echo, Md., $812,000; Knife River Indian Villages, N.D., $1.1 million; Springfield Armory, Mass., $5.3 million; Tuskegee Institute, Ala., $2.7 million, and the Martin Van Buren home in Columbia County, N.Y., $2.7 million.

Major additions proposed in a second bill sent to the Senate include 1,873 acres to the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore, 8,738 acres to the Biscayne National Monument in Florida and 1,556 acres to the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado.

The bill would permit additional spending of $7.6 million to buy land for the Indiana park, $2 million for the Florida unit and $2.4 million for the Colorado park.

The legislation, if agreed to by the Senate, will increase the ceiling for land acquisition at 10 park units. Spending for development could be increased at five parks.

The total new spending authority of $42.4 million would include $37.2 million for land acquisition, $5 million for development and $140,000 for study.

The legislation would merely authorize the spending, with needed funds coming through separate appropriations legislation. Acquisition funds are drawn from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

UFW Strike Proposal Wins Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly today defeated an attempt to eliminate "recognitional strikes" from a controversial farm worker secret ballot election bill supported by the United Farm Workers Union (UFW).

On a 39-25 vote, an amendment to strip the "recognitional strike" provision from the measure (AB3370) was tabled by the Democratic-dominated Assembly.

Several sets of amendments to the bill by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, were prepared for introduction as debate on the legislation moved into the afternoon.

The bill would create a mechnaism for farm laborers to choose a union to represent them by a secret ballot election. It is supported by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers and opposed by growers and the Teamsters Union.

A recognitional strike, in effect, would allow a majority of workers to choose a union by calling a strike, charged Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield, who moved that the "recognitional strike" be struck from the bill.

Victory For Chavez On Bargaining

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time since Cesar Chavez began organizing field hands in Delano vineyards nine years ago, the Assembly has passed a major bill providing secret union elections for farm workers.

But the historic measure, backed by Chavez' United Farm Workers Union (UFW) and opposed by the Teamsters and the growers, faces an uphill battle in the Senate and grave warnings of a veto by Gov. Ronald Reagan if it is not changed drastically.

The bill (AB3370) by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, cleared the 80-member Assembly yesterday on a minimum 41-31 cross-party vote after debate spanning the entire day. William T. Bagley of San Rafael was the lone Assembly Republican casting a vote for the bill.

Alatorre, a Chicano and a UFW supporter, said the bill would "end the chaos in the fields of California" and provide for "representation for the majority of farm workers."

But Republican Assemblyman Bob Wood, a Greenfield farmer, opposed the measure, saying: "There is a great probability the governor would not sign this bill in its present form because it was written for one particular group (the UFW)."

Supported by the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, the bill would grant for the first time a secret ballot mechanism for farm workers to choose a union to represent them — if any. But it was silent on the controversial subject of secondary boycotts, which are permitted under current law.

The bill also would permit farm workers to call a "recognitional" strike against their employers as a way of getting them to acknowledge a union as their bargaining agent. A new state commission would be created to oversee farm labor relations.

Tam High District Board Wants To Reopen Teacher Pay Parley

Tamalpais High School District trustees last night told Supt. Robert D. Torrey to meet with teacher representatives to discuss reopening negotiations on teachers' salaries.

According to Edward J. Neumeier, district administrative assistant, Torrey, who represents trustees in negotiations, will meet with representatives of the Tamalpais Federation of Teachers and the Tamalpais District Teachers Association to schedule negotiation dates.

Negotiations collapsed last spring and teachers, who wanted a 15 per cent wage hike, staged a one-day strike over the 4 per cent granted by trustees.

A special committee appointed by trustees met throughout the summer studying district finances and the budget, and recommended that salary negotiations be reopened.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

SEX — Discussed at length proposed materials to be used in human sexuality classes in the district's three high schools. Trustees deleted from the list of series of records and film strips dealing with "heterosexual and homosexual intercourse" but approved all other proposed materials.

COURSE — Approved a new course for Tamalpais High School, biological macro photography.

TRANSPORTATION — Noted that trustees Bette Wallace and Lotte Schiller and district business director Frank Cassou will meet with Bolinas area parents Thursday at 8 p.m. in Bolinas School to discuss transportation for students from the area.

REDEVELOPMENT — Approved an agreement with Corte Madera extending until Jan. 20, 1975, the time in which the district can file legal suits concerning town redevelopment.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to discuss termination of the contract of resigned Tamalpais High School principal Lawrence E. Sheppard and his new salary as a teacher, but took no action.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

Grid Giants' Surgeon In Gambling Scandal

PETE ROZELLE
Knew about probe

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The team surgeon for the New York Giants provided known gamblers with confidential information about player injuries last season, it was disclosed today when two members of an organized crime family were arrested on pro football bookmaking charges.

Dr. Anthony "Tony" Pisani, chief orthopedic surgeon for 10 years with the Giants before resigning that position a month ago, has been mentioned in a 40-count indictment but was not charged.

Thomas Musto, 65, of New York and Michael Astarita, 47, of Hillsdale, N.J., both known gamblers and partners in an operation said to have handled more than $100,000 in wagers on a typical football weekend, were formally charged in Manhattan Supreme Court with conspiracy in the third degree and bookmaking in the first degree, a felony carrying a possible penalty of three to five years in prison.

Musto is a "soldier" in the organized crime family formerly headed by the late Vito Genovese while Astarita is a one-time associate of the late Thomas "Tommy Ryan" Eboli, gunned down and killed in Brooklyn more than a year ago.

Pisani's involvement with the two gamblers came to light during an an intensive investigation begun last September by the Public Morals Division of the New York Police Department's Organized Crime Control Bureau. The unit worked in conjunction with the Rackets Bureau of the Manhattan District Attorney's office.

During the course of the investigation, Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and Wellington Mara, the Giants' President, both were informed a probe was being conducted which involved Pisani. He resigned as team surgeon shortly thereafter.

The conspiracy count against Musto and Astarita in the indictment was based on the charge "they conferred with Dr. Anthony Pisani, New York Giants' orthopedic surgeon, to increase their winnings above the customary bookmakers' profits by acquiring certain medical information as to the physical condition of several New York Giants' football players."

Court papers filed by District Attorney Richard Kuh's office charged that Musto and Astarita "agreed to confer on a regular basis with Dr. Pisani throughout the (1973) football season regarding the extent and exact nature of injuries sustained by Ron Johnson, Carl Lockhart, John Mendenhall and other offensive and defensive players with the Giants."

On one occasion last season, according to the indictment, Musto "refused to discuss the football (betting) line with a certain individual, stating 'I want to speak with the doctor first to find out what he knows about injuries.'" Pisani, a native New Yorker and a popular figure in the National Football League, is considered one of the most skilled orthopedic men in the profession. He is the chief orthoepedic surgeon at St. Vincent's Hospital here and clinical professor of orthopedic surgery at Bellvue Medical College.

His surgical techniques for repairing torn knee ligaments were widely copied by doctors with other pro football teams, and athletes with knee troubles in all sports frequently were sent to him from every section of the country. He is credited with prolonging the careers of many Giants' players, including Tucker Fredrickson and Greg Larson.

The investigation which led to the arrest of Musto and Astarita was supervised by First Deputy Police Commissioner James Taylor and James Hannon, Chief of the Organized Crime Control Bureau, and was under the immediate direction of Sgt. Lawrence McGee.

NFL Factions No Longer Far Apart

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the National Football League owners rejected the players' "final proposal" Saturday night, NFL management council executive director John Thompson says the two sides are no longer that far apart — once the length of the contract is decided upon.

"I'm not optimistic on an early settlement, but neither am I pessimistic," said Thompson yesterday. "The players started with 90 demands in March, which then fell to 63. Now they've come out with a 15-item list. Two or three weeks ago, the federal mediators asked us to make a list of our areas of difference. Our list had 28, theirs 27. With the overlap, there were 33 areas to discuss.

"Nearly half of these have been settled."

However, said Thompson, the owners could not accept a pact for only a one season period, claiming that to sign such an agreement would be destructive to pro football.

"The terms of the agreement proposed by the players for a five-month contract to expire Jan. 31 is unacceptable to us," said Thompson. "One playing season is not enough for a reasonable contract. The game itself can't stand another year like this one that we've gone through. The strike has had a tremendous economic effect — everyone's been a loser.

"We hope that when we reach an agreement we will have a four-year contract or longer. Trying to restore normalcy is our No. 1 goal."

Although the players' proposal was rejected, Thompson said the owners would return to the bargaining table with a counter-package, their first since

DOWN HE GOES — Amos Martin of the Minnesota Vikings (55) got set to lower the boom on falling Dolphin runner Jim Kiick last night in the first quarter at Miami. The Dolphins won the National Football League exhibition game, 21-9. (UPI Telephoto)

Grind-It-Out Dolphins Display Winning Style

MIAMI (UPI) — It wasn't the same as Super Bowl VIII but for the Monday night television football watcher, it was close — in the first half, anyway.

Just as they did in their 24-7 Super Bowl win over Minnesota in January, the Miami Dolphins played grind-it-out football Monday night to down the Vikings 21-9.

The Dolphins used most of their regulars in the first half, with quarterback Bob Griese calling his usual artful game and Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick pushing for steady hunks of yardage. By intermission, it was 14-0 and the Dolphins needed only to hang on to win.

"I thought the veterans, offensively and defensively, played exceptionally well in the first half," Miami Coach Don Shula said. "Bob Griese called an exceptional ball game and he, Csonka and Kiick played well for the short time they've been in camp."

Csonka, who with Kiick and wide receiver Paul Warfield are bound for the World Football League Memphis Southmen in 1975, scored touchdowns from one and three yards out. Csonka gained 61 yards on 16 carries in the first half.

Warfield did not play but the crowd showed what Shula called "mixed emotions" for Kiick and Csonka when they were introduced.

But the pair seemed to dispell any belief that they will be below par this year — their last in the NFL.

"I have a great amount of respect for each of them, as individuals and as football players," Shula said. "My only disappointment is that they didn't give us an opportunity to talk about it before they signed. Our big thing now is to get this team ready for the regular season."

Many observers had given the Dolphins the edge because most of their veterans had been in camp longer than the Vikings. When the NFL Players Association called a cooling off period last Wednesday, there were 34 Dolphins already working out while only six Vikings were in camp.

In addition to Csonka's two first half touchdowns, Miami scored in the fourth quarter on an eight-yard run by rookie Nat Moore.

Minnesota's Dave Osborne scored from one-yard out on the end of an 80-yard drive in the fourth quarter. Fred Cox had kicked a 27-yard field goal for the Vikings in the third period.

'Bryant Of Old' Beats Bucs

First Win Since May For Lefty

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ron Bryant, bidding to regain the form that made him a 24-game winner last season, earned his first pitching triumph in more than two months last night as he helped the San Francisco Giants to a 5-3 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Off-form since suffering a severe gash in his right side in a freak swimming pool accident during spring training, Bryant boosted his record to 3-12 with his first start since July 7 and his first win in nine decisions.

"That was the Ron Bryant of old you saw out there tonight," Giants manager Wes Westrum said after Bryant allowed seven hits and three runs over eight innings.

"I came out to the ballpark about noon and just sat here thinking about how well everything went last year and now this year," said Bryant, savoring his first victory since May 31.

"And I kept telling myself I had to get back in a good frame of mind and start pitching like I've shown I can pitch," said the curly-haired lefty.

Bryant and losing pitcher Jim Rooker were tied 3-3 into the Giants' ninth when San Francisco scored two runs with the help of a single by Bryant.

After Rooker walked Gary Matthews on four pitches to open the inning, Chris Speier moved him to second with a sacrifice bunt. Dave Kingman followed with a double that was ruled fair after hitting just inches behind third base.

That provided the margin of victory, and the Giants added an insurance run after Bruce Miller was walked intentionally and Bryant scored Kingman with a two-out single to center that chased Rocker.

Rooker, 8-10 with the loss, was visibly angered after the game.

"We didn't get where we're at playing like we did tonight," Rooker said. The Pirates had squandered a chance to move to within 1½ games of the National League East lead.

"There was some lousy baseball being played out there tonight," Rooker snapped.

A reporter asked Rooker if he was suggesting that third baseman Richie Habner should have caught Kingman's run-scoring hit over third base in the ninth. As he has been known to do on sharply hit balls, Hebner didn't move a muscle as Kingman's hit shot past him and rolled down the left field line.

TOO LATE — Dave Kingman of the Giants arrived safely at third base as Pirates' Richie Hebner took the late throw in the third inning last night in Pittsburgh. Kingman didn't score, but in the ninth he drove in the winning run. (UPI Telephoto)

Rooker's two-run triple staked Pittsburgh to a 2-0 lead in the second, and he also scored a run to tie the score at 3-3 in the fifth.

The Giants had taken a 3-2 lead with three runs in the fifth off Rooker, who had a one-hitter going into the fifth.

After Kingman walked with one out in the fifth, he took third on a bloop single to center by Miller.

Kingman then scored on a wild pitch, Ken Rudolph followed with an infield single to move Miller to third before Bryant sacrificed Rudolph to second and Garry Maddox belted a two-run single.

SECOND ACE, SAME HOLE

John Tarrantino of Greenbrae pulled a "Believe It or Not" feat Sunday when he scored an ace on the 11th hole at the Richmond Golf course for the second time in two months.

Tarrantino, who got the first hole-in-one of his life July 6 on the 145-yard par three hole, did it again Sunday with Thomas Morse of Corte Madera and Jim Dellos of San Mateo watching. He used a five iron both times.

MILWAUKEE WINS, 1-0

A's Blue Loses 'A Game Of Great Pitching'

OAKLAND (AP) — "It was a game of great pitching," manager Alvin Dark summed up last night after his Oakland A's had lost 1-0 to the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Our pitcher was very good and theirs were even better," he added.

Billy Champion and Tom Murphy combined to pitch a six-hit shutout, with the victory going to Champion.

Losing pitcher Vida Blue gave up only four hits in going all the way, but one of them was a second-inning homer by George Scott.

The loss cut Oakland's lead to five games over the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

"I can't explain my wildness," said Blue, who walked eight batters and struck out four. "I couldn't get the ball over."

Scott felt fortunate to hit a homer off Blue. "He's one of the best pitchers in the league. For every hit I've had against him, I've gone 0-for-four," Scott said.

The A's had only one serious threat in the game. A walk to Sal Bando and a single by Reggie Jackson put two runners in scoring position in the sixth inning. But Champion got Joe Rudi on a long fly to right field, and Jesus Alou grounded out to end the inning.

Murphy picked up his 15th save of the year by blanking the A's on one hit over the last two innings.

Jackson was the center of an unfortunate incident in the ninth inning when he accidentally threw his bat into the stands after popping up. The bat struck two youngsters, but they were unhurt.

Owner Charles O. Finley of the A's invited the two youngsters into the clubhouse where Jackson apologized for the incident. The boys were each given a bat, an autographed ball and an Oakland A's hat.

Meanwhile, the A's yesterday traded Pat Bourque to Minnesota for Jim Holt in a swap of reserve first basemen.

The A's meet the Brewers again tonight with Catfish Hunter, 17-10 pitching against Eduardo Rodriguez, 6-2, of Milwaukee.

See A's box score on inside page.

Snyder, Anderson Break 16 Records

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — Sixteen national and world records were set yesterday by drivers Bill Snyder and Vern Anderson.

Snyder, a 54-year-old air conditioner company executive, set eight records in a Ford Ranchero powered by a 144 cubic inch diesel fueled air conditioner motor.

Anderson, 35, blasted his "Pollution Packer" rocket car to eight records in the standing quarter-mile and standing half-kilometer.

Snyder breezed down the flying quarter-mile at 110.385 miles per hour and set the flying one-mile record at 110.336 MPH.

Anderson's hydrogen peroxide powered rocket car blew through the standing quarter in 4.93 seconds at 181.341 miles per hour to break the records set by the late Dave Anderson last September.

Dipsea Race: A Celebration Set Aug. 25

By DAVID EINSTEIN

It is an athletic event, a tradition and one of Marin County's claims to fame. But more than these, the Dipsea Race is a celebration.

A more festive mood would be hard to imagine than that which will pervade Mill Valley's Lytton Square the morning of Aug. 25. Some 1,500 runners, including grandfathers, children and entire families, will be there at 10 o'clock for the start of the 6.8 mile cross-country run to Stinson Beach — the 64th annual Dipsea.

It may be foggy, it will probably be cold, but nothing will daunt the joyful mood of the runners as they prepare to challenge the course.

Actually, the course will challenge the runners. It opens with 671 steps rising from Old Mill Park to the Panaramic Highway.

The open and rugged terrain that follows, down through Muir Woods, up Cardiac Hill to Lone Pine Spring, down again to Steep Ravine, up again on Insult Hill and finally down to Stinson, is so difficult that the fastest runners will need three-quarters of an hour to cover it. By contrast, a world-class distance runner can run twice as far in the same time on a flat course.

The course has been much the same since 1905, when the first race was organized by an affiliate of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, a group called the "Dipsea Indians." A half dozen sponsors have handled the race since, including the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce from 1963 to the present. Yet except for the years of World War II, the Dipsea has been held every year. It has also grown steadily larger, from 110 entries in that first race to more than 1,200 last year.

To insure that every runner has a chance to win, the race is handicapped up to 15 minutes. Thus last year a 10-year-old girl, Mary Etta Boitano of San Francisco, was the overall winner. It came as no surprise because her brother Mike won the two previous years.

The handicap system also gives old timers a chance; in 1970 the overall winner was sexagenarian Norman Bright of the Olympic Club.

Applications for the race can be obtained at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce. Runners filing before Aug. 17 will pay $3, afterward $4. For families, one member must pay the full fee but additional members can run for $1 each.

Registration will be open up until a half hour before the start of the race at Litton Square. Every runner must have an Amateur Athletic Union membership card, which will be available at the race.

Which brings us once more to Litton Square, and the mood of celebration as 1,500 runners and a massive crowd of spectators swarm around the picturesque, half-timbered buildings of downtown Mill Valley.

Harry Cordellos, a perenially runner in the Dipsea, wrote an epithet that conjures up images of bygone days when men had handlebar moustaches and women wore bonnets. Yet it fits the Dipsea perfectly:

"... Through the poison oak
we'll stumble,
Down in Steep Ravine
we'll tumble,
If you will meet me at
the Dipsea-Dipsea,
Meet me at the race.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

On The Road With Officials

Last week Fish and Game Department biologists Gil Thompson and I were assigned to take Tim Doheny, the vice president of the Fish and Game Commission on a tour of Tubb's Island in Sonoma County and the Tomales Bay area in Marin County.

The Fish and Game commissioners are appointed by Governor Reagan to set up the laws and policies of the Fish and Game Department.

To me, it was like taking the governor around. I had never seen a commissioner before in my 26 years as a warden. Everything had to be right. I had the car checked, dusted, shined and polished.

I PICKED UP Gil at Marinwood about an hour early, then called the number in Oakland given to me by the office to recheck the time and place. Someone at the other end of the phone answered, "horse stables!" I asked for Mr. Doheny. "Never heard of him," was the reply. Further questioning brought out that there was a restaurant at the site. Gil and I decided to go there.

While having breakfast, a big black limousine drove up with the commissioner and two friends, Bob Keefer and Bob McFall. After introductions, we proceeded to Tubb's Island, situated adjacent to San Pablo Bay along the Sonoma County shoreline.

Everything was going fine. Then we met Diane! We were at the Nature Conservancy buildings, when she suddenly appeared, coming out of the bushes which cover most of the island. She said she was the island's keeper.

We explained our presence. Diane volunteered to take us around the perimeter of the island, which was what we came to see. Our interest was to view the island and to study its part as the closed refuge area of the new San Pablo Bay Wildlife Refuge.

She pointed the way, so I drove the car that way. About that time, we noticed a sleeping bag out in the brush. Diane said she liked to sleep out watching the stars!

THE ROAD got rougher. I started to sweat. For two miles, I sweat that jungle road out. At one point, we came upon a tent set up in the middle of the road. Diane commented, "That's Tupper's tent. He's a bird watcher.."

There was no backing up, so I got out and took the tent down. We finally made it through. The car was covered with twigs, leaves and dust. We noted a dripping leak from the gas tank.

The leak was slight. I figured I could make it home and exchange cars for my Suburban.

Everything went fine. Lots of laughs until I remembered that Andy my son, had taken the Suburban the day before with Bruno the dog for a buck hunt. The car was full of dust, some blood, (Andy had killed a buck). The interior smelled as if a skunk had worked it over. Bruno had been doused by a skunk, and Andy had thrown him into the little lake at the ranch to clean him off. The car seats were pretty muddy. From such a good start to this!

About then my wife Mary came home for lunch. She showed the trio the house and questioned the commissioner about the duck seasons and the sage grouse seasons to be set the next day. I got the car cleaned up.

Things looked better. We stopped for lunch at Jerry's Farm House in Olema. Jerry's wife gave us a laugh. She asked the commissioner if he was associated with me, the game warden. The commissioner answered, "Yes, in a way, so the lady immediately said, "I knew it, you can tell a game warden everytime!"

WE HAD a good lunch, then looked at the problems relating to herring, Wildlife Conservation Board projects, the ecological area, the steelhead and salmon areas, the National Seashore and the newly formed Golden Gate Recreational Area. We looked at Bolinas Lagoon and the salmon fishing gounds off Stinson Beach. Actually it turned out to be a good informative day.

We had driven 256 miles when we arried at Sausalito. I still had Oakland and the return trip to make, when suddenly the commissioner said to pull over. The three fellows got out, shook hands all around, then they took a taxi cab. They said they were all coming back for another tour.

Gaters Need Win Tonight—Badly

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden Gaters need to win tonight's playoff match against the Denver Racquets if they want to advance to the semifinal round of the World Team Tennis championships.

The Gaters lost last night to Denver 29-17 for only the second time in five matches this season. Since playoff winners are determined by total games won over two matches, the Gaters need to win by 13 games tonight if they are to move into the WTT semifinals.

The Racquets won the first four matches and led 24-10 before Frew McMillan and Ilana Kloss gave the Gaters their only victory of the night, 7-5, in mixed doubles.

Denver's Francoise Durr led Barbara Downs 5-1 in women's singles before Lesley Hunt substituted for Downs and lost the final game. Hunt, who usually plays in the women's singles, was sidelined last Thursday after she was struck in the eye by a tennis ball.

"She's still not 100 per cent yet and has some slight vision defects," said player-coach McMillan. He won't decide whether to let her play the singles match tonight until after another eye examination today.

In men's singles, Denver's Dick Pattison beat Dick Bornstedt 6-3.

"Dick wasn't able to get in his first serve as much as usual, and he only got one or two points off my serve," said Pattison.

Then Durr and Kris Kemmer teamed up to beat the Gaters pair of Hunt and Kloss, 6-4, and Pattison and Tony Roche defeated McMillan and Bornstedt, 6-2.

'A Good Loser' Is Seeking Golf Win

(Fifth in a series)

Mill Valley Municipal Golf Course champion Terry Nichols is an artist with a paint brush and "a good loser" with a putter. Obviously, Mrs. Nichols has a sense of humor as she prepares for the seventh annual women's Tournament of Champions at Indian Valley Friday, 9 a.m.

"I'm rooting for Nancy (Gapinski, San Geronimo champion), because I belong to San Geronimo, too," Mrs. Nichols said.

Others in the field are defending champion Tillie Gondak of Marin Country Club, Laura Cann of Meadow Club, Liz Cole of Peacock Gap and Peg Williams of Indian Valley.

When not brushing up on her golf, Mrs. Nichols can be found at her San Rafael home working on oil paintings. The Massachusetts native studied under artist Leo Brodeur before moving to Marin in 1966.

However, the artist and housewife has been busily preparing for her second tourney appearance. "I've been playing two to four times a week. Last year, I just played for the experience." She tied Mrs. Harold Baer of Peacock Gap for last place at 93 in 1973.

This year, she hopes to do better but. . . "I don't play well at Indian Valley. I have trouble putting there."

When asked to pick the strongest part of her game, she replied: "I'm a good loser." The 13-handicapper then added that she is "normally a good putter, and I'm best with my short irons."

Mrs. Nichols' husband Arthur works for Fireman's Fund Insurance in San Francisco. The couple has three children: Leslie, 25; Glenn, 23; and Lynn, 20.

Handicap Won't Stop Gutty Baseball Star

By DAVID EINSTEIN

A major league baseball scout, prowling for talent during the Joe DiMaggio regional tournament at Novato High School Friday, was interested for a while in Dennis Marshall of Arcata. He appreciated the fluidity of Marshall's swing, and noted the tall first baseman's quickness in the field.

The scout thought, however, that Marshall wasn't a fast enough runner to merit further consideration. Most baseball experts agree, and the 16-year-old Arcata High School senior's career will probably end when he finishes college.

Not bad for a guy who has always played with an artificial leg.

Unlike many handicapped players, whose greatest accomplishment is just being able to play, Marshall is a star. He hit .365 for Arcata Outdoor Store in the McKinleyville DiMaggio League, and he bats cleanup for McKinleyville, which picked him up expressly for this tournament. Earlier in the season, he was chosen most valuable player in a Colt League tourney.

Besides the big league scout, neither tournament director Art Thompson nor this writer could tell from watching him play which is Marshall's bad leg. It follows that nobody in the stands could even guess he was fiberglas and wood from the knee down on his right side.

Marshall lost his leg in a car accident when he was five. At eight, he began to play ball. His parents neither encouraged nor discouraged him, "but once I had started, they were behind me. It's not much of a handicap, except on running," he says. "I have to play a little closer to the bag, but I've always worked on my quickness."

In addition to baseball, Marshall swims and water skis ("I can touch my shoulder to the water"). Because he's in the water a lot, he wears a modified leg without a customary leather sheath in the socket at his knee. "So I get blisters when I run a lot, and then I can't play 100 per cent.

"But that's the only handicap," he adds. Judging from the way he plays, Marshall should give other players handicaps.

Taiwan Favored In Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Kao Hsuing, Taiwan, looms as a heavy favorite to extend a three-year Nationalist Chinese winning streak in the 28th Little League World Series which opens today.

Eight teams with a combined record of 71-2 will be vying for the Little League crown, last won by a U.S. team in 1970.

Kao Hsuing meets New Haven, Conn., and Athens, Greece, a team comprised of the sons of American military and embassy personnel, takes on Tallmadge, Ohio, in today's opening round.

Tomorrow, the first round will conclude with Esquimalt, Canada, meeting Red Bluff, Calif., and Jackson, Tenn., facing Maracaibo, Venezuela.

Teams from Nationalist China have captured the title the past three seasons and four out of the last five. The Far East representative has won the World Series six out of the last seven years, with only Wayne, N.J. breaking the string in 1970.

Powell Is New Bike Champion

Frank Powell of San Rafael is the new senior champion of the Marin Cyclists following his victory Saturday in a 65-mile race from Lucas Valley to Marshall and back.

The race was the sixth and last in the Marin club's summer series. Marshall's win was his second in the series.

Al Kerr of Terra Linda came in second, with Kent Carlomagno of San Rafael third.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

A Rocky Debut For Rookie

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Welcome to the major leagues, Tom Underwood.

The Philadelphia Phils' highly touted pitcher made his major league debut against the Cincinnati Reds last night and nobody could blame the 20-year-old lefty if he wishes to forget the experience.

"Not too many pitchers make their major league debut on national television like that," said the native of Kokomo, Ind., who came on in relief and lasted one-third of an inning, facing seven batters and allowing six runs, including a grand slam homer by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's homer was his second of the game and 17th of the year and highlighted a nine-run third inning for the Reds, who won 15-2. The triumph enabled Cincinnati to remain 2 ½ games behind first place Los Angeles in the National League West.

Losing pitcher Wayne Twitchell was the victim of Morgan's first homer, which came in the second inning with two runners on as the Reds' second baseman finished with seven RBIs and made it easy for Don Gullett, who went seven innings, to gain his 14th victory against eight losses.

In other National League games, Los Angeles edged Chicago 8-7 in 12 innings, San Francisco beat Pittsburgh 5-3, Atlanta walloped St. Louis 11-6, Houston shaded New York 2-1 in 11 innings and Montreal beat San Diego 7-4.

Dodgers 8, Cubs 7

Relief specialist Mike Marshall, who hurled six scoreless innings, raced home from second on an infield out to give Los Angeles its win over Chicago and snap the Dodgers' six-game losing streak. Marshall, winning his 12th game against eight losses, was on second with one out in the 12th when Rick Auerbach topped a slow roller down the first base line. Catcher Steve Swisher picked up the ball and threw out Auerbach but when Marshall discovered that neither Cub pitcher Oscar Zamora nor third baseman Bill Madlock was covering home, he scored unmolested.

Braves 11, Cardinals 6

Henry Aaron, finding his favorite victim in the return of Claude Osteen, smacked a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Marty Perez drove in four runs with two doubles to lead Atlanta over St. Louis.

Astros 2, Mets 1

Milt May, who tied the game with a sacrifice fly in the ninth, singled home the winning run with two out in the 11th to give Houston its win over New York.

Expos 7, Padres 4

Barry Foote doubled home a run in the second inning and snapped a 3-3 tie with a seventh inning home run to lead Montreal past San Diego.

STRIKE

July 19, "as soon as we can cost out a proposal and the mediators call us back together."

Thompson said the topics both sides are still at odds over include the Rozelle rule — whereby commissioner Pete Rozelle determines the compensation to a club which loses a player to another club — which he said was "an integral part of our system. We feel there must be a reasonable restraint. A club losing a player needs some fair compensation."

Other controversial areas include raising the salary for players playing out their option, when to eliminate the option clause for veterans, the standard player contract, no-cut contracts, the agency shop and suspension of two playing rules just instituted: the sudden death overtime and the restrictive punt return rule.

In addition, Thompson said the players presented two new demands for the first time Saturday night, asking for the right of a player to sit out, rather than play out, his option year and for a minimum squad size of 47 men.

Areas in which the two sides have progressed, said Thompson, include the option clause, starting salaries, pre-season pay, post-season money, insurance, medical coverage, pensions and working conditions.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Was It Bill Lee Hurling?

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Bill Lee was credited with his 14th win last night but he swears he didn't pitch in Boston's 6-1 win over the Chicago White Sox.

"That wasn't me out there — that was Buddy Leroux (the team trainer)," said Lee (14-11) after yielding five hits in 7⅓ innings. "Buddy put some capsolin on my arm before the game. That's hot stuff — it makes your arm boil. I'm telling you that wasn't my arm either."

Whoever was throwing for Boston, he showed the effect of the "boiling" arm. The guy in the Bill Lee suit struck out six batters but the "hot stuff" wore off with one out in the eighth when Lee issued his only walk followed by singles to Pete Varney and Jorge Orta.

Diego Segui came on and got American League home run-leader Dick Allen to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Six different Red Sox drove in runs to give Lee of Terra Linda the victory and Segui his eighth save.

In the only other American League games, Milwaukee edged Oakland 1-0, Minnesota beat New York 6-2, and California blanked Detroit 1-0.

Angels 1, Tigers 0

Twins 6, Yankees2

Bobby Darwin drilled a three-run first inning homer and Joe Decker (13-10) tossed a six-hitter to spark the Twins' over the Yankees. The Twins collected five hits and five runs off starter Sam McDowell in only 1⅓ innings while sending the left-hander to his sixth loss in seven decisions. Craig Nettles homered for the Yankees. Decker of Petaluma went the route for the Twins.

ON DECK BATTER

Kelly Munson, two and one-half-year-old daughter of Yankee catcher Thurmon Munson, grabbed a bat and got ready to participate in the team's family day activities prior to Sunday's game against Chicago in New York. Her father had a pair of doubles to key a 9-4 win for the Yanks. (UPI Telephoto)

Illegal Boycott Of Kapp?

Combined AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — An attorney for former quarterback Joe Kapp says the National Football League engaged in an illegal boycott of the ex-University of California star.

Attorney Moses Laskey told a federal judge yesterday Kapp was fired in 1971 because he refused to sign a standard football contract the lawyer claimed violated antitrust laws.

Kapp has asked the court to find that the Boston Patriots, now the New England Patriots, breached a contract with him and that the league's bylaws, constitution, regulations and practices are contrary to law.

More Football

NEW YORK — The National Football League's policy of allowing refunds for exhibition games up to 48 hours before game time has been discontinued effective immediately, John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council said yesterday.

Basketball

SEATTLE — The Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association yesterday acquired veteran guard Archie Clark from the Washington Bullets for forward Dick Gibbs and a third-round draft choice in 1975.

KANSAS CITY — The University of Illinois basketball team yesterday was found acting in violation of the rules of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and placed on probation for two years — barring the team from postseason competition and NCAA television for one year and restricting their recruiting.

Tennis

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Mexican Raul Ramirez yesterday overpowered Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 6-3, 7-6, 6-4 to claim the singles title in the $50,000 Buckeye Tennis Championships.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Fourth-seeded Julie Heldman of Houston yesterday scored a 6-3, 6-3 victory over unranked national collegiate champion Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis and moved into the second round of the Women's Grass Courts Championships.

Swimming

VIENNA — Kornelia Ender and Karla Link yesterday set East Germany's second and third world standards in the European championships, Ender with a time of 56.96 seconds in the final of the women's 100-meter breast stroke and Link winning the women's 200-meter breast stroke in two minutes, 37.44 seconds.

Committee Knows Yachts' Status

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Only the America's Cup race committee knows how much longer Mariner and Valiant will remain in the race to select a defender for yachting's most prized trophy.

If performances by twice defender Intrepid and aluminum-hulled co-favorite Courageous in yesterday's round-robin action are any indication, it won't be much beyond this week.

Intrepid won the abbreviated 19.8 mile race against Mariner by 2:39 after giving away 55 seconds at the start. Courageous, never threatened in its contest with aging Valiant, won the second division by 6:48.

Light air delayed the start by three hours and light southwest winds never got higher than six knots.

"It was my mistake. They are very good and they don't make many mistakes," said Mariner skipper Dennis Conner.

His "mistake" was changing from a four-ounce jib to a six-ounce jib on the second reaching leg, which slowed the tin-hulled yacht in the very light air.

It enabled Intrepid, with Gerry Driscoll at the helm, to come within nine seconds at the third mark, rounding wide to cut under Mariner and forced her into the starboard tack.

A Lot of Money

Through June, jockey Laffit Pincay's mounts earned a quarter of a million dollars.

"We really opened up right away, cut the tacks and just seemed to be going a lot faster," Driscoll said. The 1967 and 1970 cup defender lost 55 seconds at the start by bad timing, reaching the line two seconds early and was forced to circle around and cross late.

The same thing happened to Valiant, mending a 40 second delay to Courageous, but her splits kept worsening until the fourth mark, where she was down by 7:01.

In today's action, Intrepid was to pair up with Valiant while the two aluminum contenders, Courageous and Mariner, make up the second division.

Intrepid holds a 7-5 edge over Courageous in races this summer. Overall she is 18-6, Courageous is 14-8, Mariner 5-5 after missing the entire July trial series because of rebuilding, and Valiant 1-19.

In the crucial final trials, Intrepid leads 4-1, Courageous and Mariner are even at 3-2 and Valiant is 0-5.

Coggan Is Third In Soling Series

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dr. Jim Coggan of Tiburon stood third going into today's final race in the North American Soling Regatta.

Dr. Coggan, skipper of the yacht Sonnambula, had 89.1 points following the fifth and sixth races in the series yesterday.

John Kolius of La Port, Tex., increased his lead in the series to 18.6 points over second place Jonathan Ford of Riverside, Conn., yesterday. Kolius' point total stands at 41.4.

Nolan To Start Vets Saturday

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan says he expects to start as many veterans as possible Saturday night when his squad visits the Kansas City Chiefs.

"We'll open with Steve Spurrier at quarterback and we want to give Joe Reed some work, too," Nolan said.

"I'm ready to go," said Spurrier, who suffered through much of last season with a torn cartilage and underwent an operation. "I don't even feel like I've had an operation."

Huffaker Car In Second Win

A new Jaguar V-12 owned by Huffaker Engineering of San Rafael set a track record enroute to its second straight victory Sunday in a Sports Car Club of America sanctioned race at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Lee Mueller of Lynwood, Ca., drove the B production class Jaguar to a lap victory over the field, which included many A production cars. His best lap of two minutes, 5.7 seconds broke the old record by almost six seconds.

The Huffaker car also won in Kent, Wash., a week ago with Mueller in the driver's seat.

India Names Fakhruddin President

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, former food minister and a trusted lieutenant of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, swept to an easy victory today to become India's fifth president.

The 69-year-old Fakhruddin will be the second Moslem to serve as president of predominantly Hindu India since independence.

Fakhruddin, nominee of the ruling Indian Congress Party, easily defeated veteran Socialist legislator Tridib Chaudhuri for a five-year term in the largely ceremonial job.

Fakhruddin will be sworn in on Saturday to replace retiring President V.V. Giri.

India's members of the national parliament and state legislators cast their votes last Saturday. The ballot boxes were flown to Delhi and the official vote count began Tuesday morning.

Fakhruddin — whose election was a foregone conclusion since the Congress party controls nearly 70 per cent of the votes — seized an early lead and maintained it throughout the day.

The veteran parliamentarian and attorney resigned his seat as food minister in Mrs. Gandhi's cabinet when he was nominated by party leaders to run for president. He had served as food minister during a particularly difficult period including two years of droughtdamaged harvests.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, August 20th, the 232nd day of 1974 with 133 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

Benjamin Harrison, 23rd president of the United States, was born August 20th, 1833. American actress Shirley Booth was born on this date in 1907.

Also on this day in history:

In 1741, Danish navigator Vitus Jonas Bering discovered what is now Alaska.

In 1914, Germany occupied the Belgian capital of Brussels in World War I.

In 1955, flying a Supersabre jet, Colonel Horace Hanes reached an altitude of 40 thousand feet and a speed of 822 miles per hour.

In 1966, three thousand persons were counted dead in the aftermath of a Turkish earthquake.

A thought for the day: American writer Edgar Watson said: "What people say behind your back is your standing in the community."

You Must Use Own Judgment When Hand Is Quite Unusual

Many bridge players have the mistaken idea that partner's penalty double is something like a Supreme Court decision. This might be true if your partner could see your cards as well as his own. Since he cannot, you must use your own judgment when your hand is quite unusual.

Opening lead — ♣ K

Nobody can blame West for doubling two hearts. From his point of view, the enemy had been delivered was going to smite them hip and thigh.

West opened the king of clubs, continued with the ace and then led a third club to make South ruff.

READS HAND

South could now read the entire hand. Obviously, West was void of diamonds. He surely had five cards in each of the major suits, accounting for his opening bid in spades and his penalty double of two hearts.

The spade suit was surely headed by K-Q, since otherwise West would not have a reasonable opening bid.

South led a trump to dummy's queen, drawing East's only trump. Back came the jack of spades, to give West a spade trick.

LOW SPADE

For lack of anything better, West led a low spade and South finessed with dummy's ten. Declarer then cashed the ace of spades, discarding a diamond and ruffed a spade.

Now South led a diamond. West could discard his last spade, but he had to trump the next trick and lead a trump to South's A-K-10. This gave South his doubled contract, for game and rubber.

East should have bid three clubs instead of passing his partner's penalty double. Even if he didn't get to game in clubs, he would surely make a respectable plus score at that suit.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - K Q 9 8 3
♥ - J 9 8 7 4
♦ - None
♣ - K Q 7

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade — if your partner is a reasonable soul.

It pays to open borderline hands of this kind when you have length in both majors. Beware of such bids with jumpy partners, however.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

An Advantage In Fund Share Swap

By ROGER E. SPEAR and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I have 320 shares of Mass. Investors Trust. If I transfer some of these to Mass. Income Development will I improve my income and if so, by how much? How many shares must I transfer to realize the $1,000 minimum investment that is required? How much loss would I have on the transfer? Is this allowed as a loss on my income tax? V.S.

A. Since you have not included cost information in your question, I have no way of answering whether you would incur a capital loss upon exchange of your MIT shares for those of MID. However, this type of exchange within a mutual fund group is certainly a taxable transaction. Thus, whether you have a capital loss or a capital gain, it must be reported for income tax purposes.

Your 320 shares of MIT have a current value of about $2,800 on which you earn $118.40 annually from income dividends (a 4 per cent yield). By exchanging this entire amount for MID you would earn $224.50 from income dividends (an 8 per cent yield). Capital gains distributions, which vary from year to year, are not included in comparing yields. If you wish to transfer only the $1,000 minimum amount, about 115-120 shares of Mass.

Q. I hold 100 shares of International Telephone & Telegraph (NYSE) at an average cost of 46 1/2. When it reached 60 we decided not to sell. Now it is about 20 what should we do, average our cost with another 50 shares or sell? A.R.

A. This giant corporation faces major uncertainties in the disposition of Avis and Levitt, stockholders' suits, grand jury investigations and the outlook concerning Hartford Fire Insurance. Earnings have also been disappointing recently. While the company has some very healthy businesses, it also has serious "image" problems which may continue to depress share price. I would suggest accepting your loss in IT&T.

NEW RESTAURANT — Giant lanterns mark the entryway to Marin Toyo, which just opened at the Alpha Beta Shopping Center in Larkspur. It is open for dinner, 5 p.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. Owner Kazuo Hisamatsu has furnished the interior with bamboo screens and natural wood beams and lathwork, in addition to hanging plants and lanterns.

Market's Morning Spurt Fades Away

NEW YORK (UPI) — An early market rebound lost steam toward the noon hour today as prices moved slightly higher in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The gap between advances and declines narrowed, with issues riding in price still holding a lead over losers, 620 to 453, among the 1,512 issues traded. The blue chips posted fractional gains while the glamors softened after attracting buyers in early trading.

Sales through noon came to more than 6,650,000 shares, against 5,270,000 shares changing hands at the same time yesterday.

Wall streeters said the market was ready for an upward bounce after a sharp decline which cut the Dow industrial average by 75.72 points in the last eight sessions.

President Ford's choice of Nelson A. Rockefeller as his vice presidential nominee might have given the market a slight lift, but the overriding concern of investors — as it has for sometime — centered on inflation and the future course of the economy.

Among the marginally higher blue chips, U.S. Steel added ¼, Chrysler ⅛, Dupont ¾, Union Carbide ⅜, and Exxon ⅜.

Clorox led the actives, off ⅛ to 8 ¼ on 245,100 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in quiet trading. Syntex, the volume leader, rose ¼ to 38 on 14,700 shares.

VOLUME 506, No. 27— WEATHER: Sunny, Breezy, Cooler.

BIG THREE UP!

G.M., Ford, Chrysler Hike Prices.

DETROIT—To keep up with recent rises in the price of steel, the Big Three auto manufacturers announced new increases on cars and options.

This is GM's seventh price rise since the end of the '73 model year. Increases have included not only the basic vehicle but extra standard equipment, optional equipment and destination charges. The increases average over $550 per vehicle over final '73 model prices.

It was the sixth [illegible] for both Ford and Chrysler, hiking their prices a total average of $584 and $458 respectively.

Extraordinary Increases

The multiple price increases put into effect by the auto makers are unusual for the industry, which in the past tried to limit increases to one per model year.

However, the recent rises in the cost of materials have forced the auto mak[illegible] as quickly as

SAVE 30% On Radial 36 Tires

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects, (2) normal road hazards, or (3) tread wear-out,

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.

Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge.

Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.
